FARM MARCH PROTESTS HOOVER

Today

Japan Asks, "What About It?"
The Road With Traffic.
Short, Yes. Funny, No.
Where Gold Slumbers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ANYBODY WHO does not know already will soon know how much the League of Nations amounts to when it comes to dealing with a nation of importance.

The League solemnly passes judgment on Japan's course in Manchukuo. Japan is condemned. VERY wicked, indeed.

Newspapers in Tokio call the decision an insult and Japan announces that she will proceed in Manchukuo as hitherto, paying no attention to the League. She will decide later whether or not to resign from the League.

What will the League do about it? Exactly nothing.

INTERESTING THINGS are seen, looking out of a window. The Irish lady in Eva Gore Booth's poem preferred the little Irish road that passed her house to "the grand road from the mountain," with "traffic on it, and many a horse and cart."

The East River flows, as the tide rises and falls, just below the window where this is written. There is much traffic on that, and occasionally things more exciting than tug boats, passenger boats and hydroplanes. You see a ship landing a cargo of boxes neatly wrapped in brown paper. That means "bootleg."

You see mild excitement at the edge of the river, a policeman running. Some man "sleeping it off" on the string piece, just above the water, has fallen over.

YESTERDAY THE event of the day was unusual. On the Manhattan Bridge, a little to the left, where heavy suspension cables run at a sharp curved slant from the floor of the bridge to the top of tall towers, George Kennedy, 65 years old, undoubtedly demented, could be seen walking steadily up one of the cables.

He reached the top, looked around. His plan was to jump down 200 feet and go to another world, of other rivers.

While he thought about it, two policemen, as swiftly as possible, were scrambling up the cable after him. They could be seen, presently, arguing with him, as he stood at the edge. They all came down together. Hundreds gathered, traffic was blocked.

THE GRAND Old Party listens in while women make speeches for the Republican ticket "on the air." Campaign managers, fearing that women will make speeches too long, implore them to be "brief and funny."

Brevity is good, humor on the air is not so good. Speakers should remember that their "unseen audience" is 90 per cent "broke," and talk accordingly.

If you lack a job, you want serious talk, not jokes.

PRESIDENT HOOVER knows that. Before he was elected or nominated, as Secretary of Commerce he paid much attention to radio. He told this writer:

"Those that listen do not care for jokes, and above all, they object to anything in the way of unpleasant personalities or abuse."

In singing you may do as you like, but in talking you are expected to stick to facts and make it short.

HERE AND there one man "flays" a candidate on the other side of the fence. Another man "flays" and "skins alive" the candidate of the first speaker.

And nobody pays much attention.

The average citizen would like to be told how somebody, anybody, proposes to start the wheels turning, and the payrolls increasing. Nobody seems to have definite plans about that, and "flaying" your opponent is not particularly consoling, no matter who does it.

THE VAULT in which the Bank of France keeps the French billions of dollars in coin and gold bars, including much American coin, is a real vault.

The gold is far down in the earth, surrounded with fifteen feet of steel protection. Three sets of elevators lead down to it. The vault door is of hardest steel two feet thick. When it is officially closed, a little electric locomotive moves a turret of solid steel fifteen feet wide, which is locked to the walls in front of the door, closing it up.

Provision is made for employes entrusted with the care of the gold, enabling them to stay under the ground indefinitely if Paris were taken.

TIMES HAVE changed. When Germany took one billion dollars from France after the war of 1870 she buried the money, paid largely in five franc silver pieces, in the ground at Spandau. One good bomb would have blown the whole thing into the air.

For France it is gold, not silver, and if anything could be bomb-proof, that gold vault is bomb-proof.

Of course, if Paris were taken, engineers would soon find a way to get the gold, but the vault has much psychological value. It makes the French feel rich, and they are rich.

WHEN THE body of Frederick Titus, alias Teti, was found on New York's sidewalk yesterday, there were seventeen bullets in his body, including three in his face. His killers shot him many times, apparently for additional vengeance, after killing him.

Teti, a war veteran, had tattoed on his left forearm the face of a Red Cross nurse, with the inscription "Rose of No Man's Land." The dead man's record showed that he had been arrested seventeen times, for crimes that included killing, and never convicted. Gang vengeance did what ordinary justice had failed to do.

BLONDE DEAD IN BROADWAY MYSTERY

Apparently Suicide, Beauty's Last Note Hints Murder

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A baffling Broadway death mystery confronted police today when the body of a beautiful blonde, Marian Elliott Jennison, formerly of Milford, N. H., was found in a room at the Hotel Cadillac, on Times Square, with a pistol bullet through her head.

The woman lay faced own on the floor, her gloved hand clutching a .38 caliber revolver, the right side of her neck near the wound burned by powder marks. Her right index finger had stiffened in a clutch of death around the trigger.

It looked like suicide.

LETTER HINTS PLOT

But the woman herself, in a letter mailed at 12:28 a. m. today and received by the hotel management in the morning mail, had voiced fear of an unnamed man who, she said, had followed her into her room and threatened her with death. The letter said:

"If I am found dead, it is not a suicide. A man has been following me. I have been carrying a .38 revolver with three bullets in it for protection.

A man came to my door on the second of October, but I made no complaint to the hotel. I am afraid that this man will take the gun and shoot me. I have no reason to take my own life.

"This morning (Monday morning) at 8 o'clock, while I was going out, a man threatened to kill me if I didn't let him in my room. I had the revolver under my pillow, and I put it under his nose. He left and said he would get me.

"The man was about 5 feet 6 inches, very handsome and dark complexioned."

BACKS MURDER THEORY

The possibility that her death was murder was further borne out by the testimony of W. K. Otto, occupant of the room next to Miss Jennison's. He told police that he heard loud voices, those of a man and a woman, coming from the room about 3 o'clock.

Later, around 4 a. m., Otto said he heard a sudden noise which he supposed at the time was the slamming of a door. In view of subsequent developments, this probably was the girl's death shot.

Hotel officials could give little information regarding the victim. She arrived on October 2 and registered as Jean E. Merriam. Only after her death was her true name and her address established. She appeared about 30.

What she was doing in New York is still unexplained. Her only luggage was a small bag containing underwear.

Miss Jennison left her room for a time yesterday, and then returned and re-registered. The management heard nothing more of her until 9:20 a. m. today, when the letter forecasting her death was received.

Couple Wed as Both Celebrate Birthdays

When next October 3 rolls around, Arthur L. Hill and Viola Lium, both of 531 North Beatty street, can celebrate their wedding and birthday anniversaries simultaneously.

Yesterday was the birthday of both. They picked the day for their wedding. Hill is 25 and Viola's 19.

Garbo in Turkish Bath Nearly Meets Wales

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Two of the world's most glamorous figures—Greta Garbo and the Prince of Wales—almost met yesterday afternoon in a Turkish bath.

They happened to be in the place at the same time, but there was no meeting—even though a Stockholm newspaper did print an elaborate account, with imaginary details, of their introduction.

Miss Garbo, her European manager said, is as retiring as ever. Even his efforts failed when the British heir and his brother, Prince George, were there. She is refusing all invitations which would involve her appearance in public.

"Whee!" said Miss Andreucci to friends as she held aloft the silver piece only to have it slip from her fingers, fall into her mouth, slide into her stomach in a single gulp. MEXICO SEIZES ARCHBISHOP

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Archbishop Leopold Ruis y Flores, apostolic delegate to Mexica, was arrested at his residence here today and ordered deported as an "undesirable foreigner."

His arrest followed action by the Chamber of Deputies in voting for his expulsion because of the manner in which he replied to President Adalberto Rodriguez's recent vigirous criticism of Pope Pius, encyclical condemning alleged religious persecution in Mexico.

The archbishop will be taken to the border in a military plane this afternoon if the weather clears sufficiently. The prelate will be landed probably at Matamoras and expelled from the country.

His arrest was no surprise to the archbishop, as he had listened over the radio to the congressional debate which resulted in the vote demanding his expulsion as a "pernicious influence."

Exile will be nothing new for the archibshop. He was expatriated in 1917 and again in 1927.

RATE PLEA WON BY MINES HERE

Western Pennsylvania's coal industry today was handed back a potential 3,000 to 4,000 ton-a-day market lost last August.

It means work again for approximately 600 miners.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in Washington, announced that it had revoked its order suspending reduced rates on coal from Western Pennsylvania to Northern Ohio over the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway.

Early in the summer, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway, pending a hearing November 9, had reduced its differential from here to Northern Ohio from 39 cents to 10 cents, allowing Western Pennsylvania coal companies to compete for the steam plant and domestic market.

Johnny Weismuller's Wife Wins Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Testifying her husband embarrassed her by bringing his brother to live with them in their single apartment and that he rarely came home to meals she had prepared and she was forced to eat alone and in tears, Bobbe Arnst, musical comedy star, was granted a divorce today from Johnny Weismuller, swimming champion and screen actor.

Brock, Globe Flier, In Grave Condition

GANG BEATS PASTOR IN REVENGE

Aged Minister, Who Prosecuted Bandits Found on Street

Gangland apparently struck back at the Rev. Isaiah Hawn, 77, and left him critically injured early today on the steps of the Friendship Avenue School.

TWO THEORIES HELD

Police had two theories, one a gangland reprisal, the other that the aged minister had fallen while walking in Friendship avenue. When found, his feet lay in the doorway of the school and his head and shoulders were on the sidewalk.

Mr. Hawn encountered the bandits early in September as he was walking in Kirkwood street, between Beatty and Whitfield streets. Two men, both armed, stepped from a coupe and ordered him to throw up his hands. As he complied, he saw a young woman at the wheel. He was robbed of $53.

PAIR ARRESTED

A few hours later, Mary Howard, 22, of Carlton street, and Gilbert Martin, 26, of Warrington avenue were arrested. At a hearing before Magistrate Charles Papale, in East End Police Court, the minister was late for the hearing. Both were released.

Upon the insistence of Mr. Hawn, Miss Howard was rearrested and held for court on a robbery charge. Denying the charge, Miss Howard blamed a rejected suitor for her arrest.

Drunken Witness Jailed for 10 Days

John Sampson, 28, of Penn Township, a witness in Criminal Court, was sentenced to 10 days in jail today by Visiting Judge R. L. Lewis, of Potter County, for testifying under the influence of liquor.

Sampson appeared in the case of Charles Jones, of Haffey, Pa., who, accused of striking Frank E. Clark in Plum Township May 28, was found guilty and fined $100.

TWO INSULLS INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

Embezzlement Laid To Former Utilities Czar, Brother

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Samuel Insull and Martin J. Insull, once head of a gigantic $2,000,000,000 utilities "empire," were indicted today by a Cook County grand jury.

The true bills charged the brothers with embezzlement by larceny and larceny by bailee, it was said.

Immediate steps for extradition of Samuel Insull, now in Paris, and Martin, in Canada, were expected to follow.

The charges were based on alleged manipulations of securities and cash of various Insull companies for the use of Martin Insull's personal brokerage accounts.

The first indictment named Martin J. Insull only, charging embezzlement, larceny and larceny by bailee of $344,720.

The second named Martin and Samuel Insull with the same three charges involving $66,000 in connection with a transaction involving Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment Company.

The third made similar charges against the brothers in connection with a $104,272 transaction of the same company.

LEHMAN FOES KEEP FIGHTING

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—After a futile session of almost two hours in the hot, stuffy and smoke-filled armory today, the Democratic state convention recessed until 7 o'clock tonight, with the leaders absent in hotels, still struggling over the makeup of the state ticket.

With their backs to the wall, forces behind Mayor John Boyd Thacher, of Albany, candidate for Governor, were fighting desperately to block the nomination of Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman as head of the state ticket.

FOES CONFIDENT

Supporters of the Albany Mayor expressed confidence they would be able to block Lehman's selection if they could stave off the business of nomination until tonight. Thacher's followers claimed that even without the aid of Tammany Chief Curry or John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, they were within "striking distance" of Thacher's nomination.

Despite the last-minute spurt on the part of the Thacher supporters, the Lehman forces were absolutely certain that Lehman would win the nomination with the aid of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Former Gov. Smith, regardless of what action is taken by Curry and McCooey, is prepared to go on the floor of the convention and lead the fight for Col. Lehman.

IOWA PARADE HOSTILE TO PRESIDENT

Huge Demonstration Precedes Arrival Of Executive

International News Service.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 4.—Coming from all parts of the state, between 5,000 and 10,000 farmers staged a protest parade here today in advance of President Hoover's arrival to deliver a campaign address tonight.

Riding in farm trucks plastered with anti-Hoover banners, the farmers invaded the downtown section of Des Moines, halting traffic for 45 minutes until the line of march had passed.

Farmers in several trucks held megaphones through which they bellowed to the crowd that a protest rally meeting would be held this afternoon, 45 minutes before the President's scheduled arrival.

SPECTATORS SILENT

Milo Reno, national president of the Farm Holiday Association, which sponsored the parade, said there were 12,000 farmers in town. He said last night's rain and sharp cold kept 10,000 more from coming.

For the most part, spectators watched the parade in silence. Occasionally, however, there was an outbreak of applause.

The trucks bore slogans such as these:

"Cost of production will save our homes."

"Hoover depression — repeal Hoover."

"We're not 'so damn dumb' in 1932."

"We don't want loans, they just make more debts."

Several hundred unemployed men, members of the Polk County Unemployed League, were lined up in front of the state house prepared to fall in behind the farm parade, but were stopped by policemen. They later were allowed to proceed, however, in an independent parade. They also car-

Poll Points to Roosevelt Triumph in Penna.

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are for Roosevelt.

That these ordinarily invulnerable Republican strongholds will be in the Democratic column in November is indicated today by a critical analysis of 13,381 postcard ballots in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Roosevelt also rules a favorite in Pennsylvania as a whole.

On the basis of the returns, Roosevelt is due for a majority of 195,000 in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, which cast a third of the state's more than 3,000,000 votes. He is in line for 100,000 to 125,000 in eight outside congressional districts.

A dozen districts are due to give Hoover from 250,000 to 300,000 majority.

Two districts, including the cities of Reading and Erie, are yet to be heard from in the poll. They

DAVIS JUROR GETS $100 FINE FOR CAUSING MISTRIAL

ADMITS CHARGE, ASKS MERCY OF JUDGE

Venireman Given 24 Hours to Pay Sum Of Go to Jail

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Throwing himself on the mercy of the court, Henry Moore, juror who caused a mistrial at the "lottery" trial of United States Senator James J. Davis, was fined $100 and his name permanently stricken from the federal jury list by Judge Frank J. Coleman today.

Moore caused the abandonment of the Davis trial on the eve of its closing because he visited Chief Defense Counsel Charles J. Margiotti to complain about an alternate juror.

Judge Coleman passed judgment on Moore, a slim, clean-shaven man, in his chambers.

ASKS MERCY OF JUDGE

Moore said he didn't bring a lawyer with him because he wished to throw himself on the mercy of the court.

Moore told the judge:

"I am very sorry for what I did. I didn't mean to hound anybody or cause a mistrial."

Judge Coleman said:

"The harm is done. Your good intentions do not excuse your fault."

In reply to the judge's questions, Moore said he was married, had no children, and was out of work. He said:

"When I have a job I'm a photoengraver."

The judge hesitated a few minutes and then passed his judgment.

Judge Coleman gave Moore 24 hours to obtain the money to pay his fine.

AIMS TO BORROW CASH

Moore said he would borrow the sum.

After Moore said he conceded the facts in the story told as to his voluntary visit to Defense Counsel Margiotti, Judge Coleman said:

"That cannot undo the great harm, not only to the government and defense, but to the community itself by impairing the faith they have in the jury system.

"I'm convinced that there was no corrupt intent on your part and because of that I am not going to send you to jail.

I believe you were actuated by motives other than corrupt ones. Apparently, you were in a state of partial inebriation, which probably had some effect on your decision to violate my instructions."

Defense Counsel Margiotti reported the visit of Moore to the hotel suite immediately after it was made.

Judge Coleman commended the action of Margiotti. After the lawyer and jurors had been questioned in court by the judge, he exonerated the juror complained against, and termed Moore's conduct as "highly improper."

Moore charged that Alternate Juror No. 13, Abe Weintraub, "was spreading poison" against the defense among the other jurors.

Weintraub and the other jurors denied it.

WALKER SAILS; STILL TIRED

CHERBOURG, France, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—James J. Walker, hoping to reach a decision during the five-day voyage as to whether he will be a candidate for re-election as mayor of New York, sailed today for home on the liner Europa. He said:

"I am as tired on leaving Europe as I was on leaving New York."

He blamed his present weariness to "the high strain of being idle."

He came here by train from Paris after a hurried trip across Spain and France. He abandoned the Italian liner Rex at Gibraltar, where the vessel was disabled during its maiden voyage to New York.

Mr. Walker will be unable to reach New York until three days after the city Democratic convention there to select a candidate for mayor. The Europa is due in New York Sunday.

RALLY MEETINGS

Reno said the "rally meeting" scheduled this afternoon would deal with the farm strike movement and that there was no intention to organize another anti-Hoover demonstration later today. He said:

"In fact, speakers will exhort the farmers to be respectful to the President and refrain from any unbecoming conduct."

The farmers came from practically every county in Iowa. They rode into town in farm trucks fitted out so they could sleep in them here tonight.

Hoover Preparing 'Fighting Speech'

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO DES MOINES, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Feverish activity was apparent aboard President Hoover's campaign special today as Des Moines was neared with the executive's speech for tonight still uncompleted.

A special staff of typists from Republican headquarters was put aboard at Chicago to aid the White House personnel in whipping the address into final shape. Mr. Hoover dictated and revised steadily between stops.

Secretary Theodore Joslin handed out about 5,000 words of mimegraphed copy but announced that the "fighting part" of the speech—to run several thousand words—was still in the making.

This "fighting part," it was reported, had to do with farm relief. It was anticipated that the executive would offer some new plan of aid to the agriculturists and take direct issue with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. He will be speaking to a particularly attentive audience tonight on that subject, for Iowa is in the heart of the farm belt.

At Chicago, Mrs. Hoover "stole the show" from her President-husband when their special train arrived in a heavy rain and windstorm.

Mrs. Hoover appeared first on the rear platform of the presidential car and showed concern over the small crowd being drenched in the rain.

Still later, she pleaded with the newspapermen:

"I want to make a request of you photographers. I wish you wouldn't break your flash bulbs (for taking pictures) on the cinders. Just think of the little boys who might come along and step in the splintered glass."

President Hoover passed through Pittsburgh last night on his way to Des Moines, Ia., for a campaign speech. His private car stood for seven minutes in the Pennsylvania Station, the President, Mrs. Hoover and their party remaining behind drawn curtains while 100 or so looked at it expectantly. It was reported the President was asleep. The time of arrival was 11:20 p. m.

The party had appeared on the platform in Altoona, where the President spoke briefly to a large crowd. Ignoring a megaphone, his voice was drowned out, and only those close to him heard him say:

"We are doing what a government can and should do to help its people."

Mrs. Hoover grabbed a megaphone and asked those in the rear not to crush the children up in front. There were many children in the throng.

YOUNG G. O. P. GROUP MEETS

Organization work among young Republicans of Allegheny County for action in the presidential campaign is to be undertaken within a few days, following a preliminary meeting last night in the William Penn Hotel. Representatives from the six senatorial districts of the county were present to hear Charles W. Carroll, of Philadelphia, state chairman of th Young Republicans, outline their hopes.

Carroll was accompanied by Morley W. Baker, Harrisburg, secretary of the organization. Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman, cognizant of the doleful reports coming into Republican headquarters, urged the young Republicans not to be dismayed. He predicted 295 electoral votes for President Hoover, 34 more than necessary to elect.

Two Held in Attack On Raiding Officer

Accused in connection with the shooting up of the home of Herman Shalanski, a raiding deputy constable, at 2408 Wylie avenue, several weeks ago, two Negroes were held for court in $1,000 bail each by Justice of the Peace Lawrence V. Gibb in Sewickley last night. They are Edward Boyer, 635 Francis street, and Sydney Lewis, 2412 Wylie avenue. Three others, Irving Johnson, 605 Junilla street; Ralph Smith, 2631 Webster avenue, and Erskine Lynn of 2427 Wylie avenue, were discharged.

MOB ATTACKS DRYS IN RAID ON HOTEL

Agent, Three Others Taken to Hospital Following Battle

Four men, one of them a prohibition agent, were injured slightly early today during a free-for-all fight in Federal street, climaxing a raid upon the Delmont Hotel, second floor of 120 Federal street. A riot call sent to North Side police station brought Capt. John Flavin and a dozen patrolmen, who restored order.

The agents said they were attacked by 25 to 30 hoodlums armed with chairs removed from the dismantled Delmont barroom and dance floor.

BATTLE STARTS

The fight started when prohibition agents attempted to arrest L. A. Sarrick, 33, of Beech avenue and Roup way, whom they accused of taking away a cash register.

Sarrick was one of those injured. The others were: Robert Davidson, 28, of 3122 Iowa street, a special patrolman; N. Weinbrake, 32, the prohibition agent, and William Davison, of the Grant street garage.

All were treated for sligt lacerations in Allegheny General Hospital. Sarrick was lodged in North Side Police Station charged with the theft of government property.

LIQUOR SEIZED

The raid, made on a "buy," resulted in the seizure of a quantity of whisky, gin and beer. Twenty male visitors were not molested.

The agents arrested Harry Bernstein, 25, and Sam Brown, 40, charging both with the sale and possession of liquor.

A crowd of 150 persons gathered in the street and looked on as prohibition agents carried the furnishings and contraband to the street, where it was loaded into trucks.

When agents removed the barroom fixtures, they broke a water pipe, flooding the barber shop of Harry Hague, of 9 East General Robinson street.

'ACE' DECLARED DESERTER

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—The belief of a stranded bonus marcher that he is Andrew Courtney Campbell, Jr., World War ace, conflicted here today with Department of Justice reports that he is, instead, Clarence Stephen Wendell, of Richmond, Va., a deserter from the Navy.

In a search for relatives and for proof of his identity, the former veteran had his fingerprints sent to Washington after friends here had failed to obtain definite leads in other directions.

The resultant report, the man said, failed to strike a response in his memory. He claims to have been a victim of amnesia.

The excuse of Thomas Bolson, 17, of 502 Foreland street, that he was trying to rescue a cat when found on the roof of Kirners book store, 309 Market street, last night, failed to impresse Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court today. The youth was fined $25 with the option of 30 days in jail. Police testified they saw nothing of a cat. A protective service operative discovered Bolson.

END BRITAIN'S HOLD, AIM OF DE VALERA

Free State Head May Assume Post Of McNeil

International News Service.

DUBLIN, Oct. 4.—President Eamonn De Valera of the Irish Free State loomed today as the country's next probable Governor General, succeeding James McNeill who resigned as Ireland swept forward in another dramatic move toward complete Republicanism.

Officials declared De Valera would probably incorporate the post of Governor General with his own office as President of the Irish Free State's executive council, rendering the nation a virtual republic.

A possible alternative to this was that a commission of three judges might be named to discharge the duties of the post McNeill was virtually forced to vacate.

As soon as McNeill closes viceregal lodge, as he has been directed to do, the last relic of British rule in the Irish Free State will have disappeared.

Ousting of McNeill climaxed a campaign to rid him of his office which has been underway ever since De Valera came into power.

Regarding the post of Governor General as an anachronism and an irksome link with the British crown, De Valera and his adherents have never lost an opportunity of making their stand on this matter apparent.

DAVIS CALLED 'RACKETEER'

James J. Davis, seeking re-election to the United States Senate, used his own lodge for a racket, preying on his own members, Attorney Barney McGinnis told a political gathering today in the old Allegheny City Hall.

McGinnis spoke after Lawrence H. Rupp, Democratic United States senatorial candidate, scheduled to speak, failed to arrive because of trouble he had with his automobile while driving here from Harrisburg. McGinnis said:

"You have been reading something about Jim Davis' trial down in New York. You'll notice he had a mistrial down there; whether he is proven guilty or innocent of the charges, it has been shown he was using his own lodge for a racket, preying on his own members.

"We have an Elk for a candidate but he never took a dollar from another Elk. If Davis can be Secretary of Labor under three administrations, those of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, that showed pretty well his sympathies were not with labor but with big business."

Rupp was expected to arrive later today. Tonight he will speak at Charleroi; East Pittsburgh and Washington, tomorrow; Oil City, Thursday evening, and New Castle and Beaver Falls on Friday. Saturday evening, on his way home for the weekend, Rupp will address a Berks rally at Strausstown.

Accuse Society Butler Of Job Fee 'Racket'

Accused of collecting fees for obtaining employment for servants in homes of wealthy Pittsburghers, William Allman, butler in the home of Mrs. Herbert Dupuy, 646 Morewood avenue, was to be given a hearing this afternoon before Alderman C. W. Haas, 1809 West Liberty avenue.

An information charging Allman with operating an employment agency without a state license was made by John W. Borland, an inspector of the State Department of Labor and Industry, after a three-week investigation.

Allman blamed the prosecution on a former woman cook at the Dupuy home who had been discharged and, according to the butler, threatened to "get even." He had obtained jobs for several persons and had received presents, but denied he had charged a percentage of their wages. He said he formerly was butler in the home of Justice James B. Drew, of the Supreme Court.

Appearing before Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court, Eastley said he and two other boys were kicking a football near the Westinghouse High School, when Sturtz took it, pushing them off the steps.

Sturtz maintained he had warned the boys to quit making a noise, as he, working nights, had to sleep during the day. Neighbors testified against Sturtz.

Calls 'Whitewash' Lie

BRIDE TO SPURN HONOR KILLING RETRIAL

Victim Fears Return To Honolulu, Scores Clearing Natives

By E. L. RAWLEY
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Bitterly indignant, Mrs. Thalia F. Massie today denounced as "a lie—and a stupid lie," veiled suggestions that the four Hawaiian natives placed on trial for attack upon her were not the actual participants in the attack.

Her resentful retort came in answer to rumors that operatives of a New York detective agency had prepared a report for Gov. Lawrence M. Judd, governor of the territory, and John C. Kelly, Honolulu prosecutor, exonerating the natives who won freedom when a jury disagreed.

'HONOR SLAYING'

After the trial, the young bride's husband, Lieut Thomas H. Massie, shot and killed Joseph Kahahawai, one of the alleged assailants.

Her sanctuary in quiet, suburban Lansdowne disturbed by the recurring reports, Mrs. Massie not only accused Gov. Judd of opposition to a retrial of four of the natives but said flatly she would not return to Honolulu to testify in the event of a retrial. She said:

"It would be unsafe for me to do so."

Gov. Judd, she asserted, is opposed to a retrial because of political and business reasons. She added:

"A pardon for the men, based on the statements of these detectives, is probably his idea of the easiest way out.

COSTLY AFFAIR

"The affair cost Hawaii too much money and they want to get rid of it. Business men lost $5,000,000 by withdrawal of the fleet and slackening of tourists trade subsequent to the trials, and they are all anxious to let the thing drop."

Two identifying witnesses were never brought into the case, Mrs. Massie said. She concluded:

"The men who dragged me into a car were seen and recognized by two sailors from the submarine base who were using a service truck without permission and did not come forward with their evidence.

"Their names, however, were in the hands of the investigators."

CAROL DENIES PLAN TO PART HELEN, SON

Legation Asserts Boy Has Never Heard of Magda Lupescue

By H. K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Princess Helen's assertion that King Carol had ordered the young Crown Prince Michael to return to Bucharest because he was receiving too much publicity in London, was flatly denied at the Rumanian legation today.

The Rumanian charge d'affaires also denied that Carol intended to prevent the boy from seeing his mother again, and declared that, on the contrary, Princess Helen and Michael probably would met again on the continent before the prince returns to Bucharest.

Michael, the charge said, is leaving London to attend the automobile show in Paris. He will visit his cousins in Germany and return in time for King Carol's birthday, October 14.

Princess Helen, in an authorized interview published by the Daily Mail today, charged that her former husband had ordered Michael sent home at once, though he was to have spent six weeks with her. She expressed the fear that it was Carol's intention to separate her from her son permanently.

It was said at the legation:

"There was never any question of such a separation. Princess Helen is leaving London shortly, and the Crown Prince doubtless will rejoin her on the continent."

The Rumanian charge ridiculed a report that King Carol had ordered Michael home because the youngster, while in Paris, had learned of his father's escapades with Mme. Magda Lupescu. He said:

"The Prince has never heard of Mme. Lupescu."

Michael, Princess Helen and his aunt, Princess Irene of Greece, were guests of King George and Queen Mary at tea at Buckinham Palace this afternoon.

CLOSE SCHOOLS, TEACHERS URGE

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—A demand that Chicago's public schools be closed was made today to the Board of Education by 14,000 unpaid teachers.

2 'HUNTING' PET COON WARNED

Coon hunting within city limits is taboo, Police Magistrate Ray E. Schneider warned two nimrods in North Side Police Court today as he discharged them.

The two, Joseph Abbott, 36, of 3957 Perrysville avenue, and Ray Chartener, 23, of 215 Bonvue street, the former with an empty rifle, were arrested early today, after they had tried to capture a coon in a tree in the yard of Jesse Pugh, 3895 Perrysville avenue.

Police said the Pugh family resented efforts of the hunters to get the coon, a pet. The animal, after being shaken down, took refuge in the Pugh cellar.

"We're not engaged, just friends. I came here because I wanted to have lunch with Mr. Warburton."

The actor interrupted:

"That is not precisely true. She came here because I wanted to have lunch with her and couldn't leave the studio."

The two have appeared together at a number of recent social events.

TORTURE TRIAL GUARD DENIED

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—A special protective guard for George Courson and Solomon Higgingbotham, former prison camp officials charged with murder in the sweatbox death of Arthur Maillefert, young New Jersey convict, was refused as selection of a jury to try them progressed slowly today.

As court recessed yesterday only seven of the jurors had been tentatively seated.

Judge Couper Gibbs denied the plea for a special guard for the defendants following the announcement of receipt of an anonymous letter which threatened to "put the lights out' for them during the trial. The missive was postmarked East Liverpool, O., July 17.

Maillefert was found strangled in the prison camp sweatbox last June 3, a heavy chain about his neck and his feet encased in wooden stocks.

FIREMEN 'FIRE' BETHEL CHIEF

Shorn of his toga as chief of the Bethel Township volunteer firemen, A. W. Devlin sped eastward today to Lancaster to represent the Alegheny County Volunteer Firemen's Association at the state convention.

Members of the department said Devlin was "expelled for conduct unbecoming a member." Suspended by the Board of Directors of the company on charges that he had attended a show of questionable character at Connellsville during the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's convention, Devlin was recently reinstated.

Informed of the firemen's action, Devlin said:

"Why those firemen can't fire me. I'll be reinstated at the general meeting Friday night."

To which the firemen replied:

'We shall see. We shall see."

The interior low pressure developed into a well-defined center over the mouth of the Ohio River, and covers the whole central valleys section. It is causing cloudiness and rain over the central valleys and plains states from Canada to the Gulf. The amounts were mostly light, but generous over large areas. This disturbance will produce rain over this section, beginning early tonight. The high pressure following the rainstorm is centered over Montana. It is causing a marked drop in temperature over the Upper Mississippi Valley and the plains states, and the coldest weather of the season in the Far Northwest. Temperatures are below freezing over the Canadian Northwest and the cold extends southward over Montana and into Wyoming.

EVICTION SALE STIRS ROW

The hoots and boos of an angered neighborhood turned to action late yesterday when Constable John C. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon, started a landlord's sale of the household furniture of John Ferguson, father of 13 children, at 208 Dolphin street, Hazelwood.

Edmundson's automobile was turned over on its side, its tires slashed, by a mob of children and grownups, while the Constable was ordering the arrest of Frank Alsup, 44, of 4717 Blair street, after the two had collided in Ferguson's doorway at the start of the sale.

Constable Edmundson said he was serving a warrant on Ferguson for $238 back rent in behalf of the property owner, Thomas Fitzgerald, Hazelwood real estate man.

Hoover Offering Wares in Region Already 'Sold'

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Mr. Hoover is headed for the open spaces where men are now men and used to be Republicans.

We don't know whether Herbie will do any business or not. A salesman named Roosevelt just covered that territory with a fine line of samples.

It's going to be a tough job explaining how two chickens in every pot turned out to be two goose eggs in every pocket.

Right now the G. O. P. is plenty sour in the farmlands. It's almost as healthy as the girl who got the job playing Eliza in Uncle Tom's Cabin. She was so enemic the bloodhounds wouldn't chase her.

It's been four long years since our fairy godmother waved the magic wand over that pot and we still don't hear any cackling.

Republicans accuse Gov. Roosevelt of glittering generalities. Well, when it comes to political jewelry the G. O. P. ain't lacking in fool's gold and rhinestones.

And the most we can say about their 1932 argument is that it is a nice repaint job.

Trial Over 75-Cent Book Costs Two Men $60

A charge of larceny by bailee of a 75-cent book, "War Birds," from a circulating library, took up two hours time in Criminal Court, resulting in a verdict late yesterday of not guilty, costs divided equally between prosecutor and defendant.

The costs amounted to about $60, so that Joseph Cortese, storekeeper at 405½ Sixth street, who brought what is said to have been the most trivial suit in the history of Criminal Court, must pay about $30, and he failed to get his book back.

Edward Grudowski, 525 Talbot avenue, Braddock, the defendant, offered testimony to show he was in West Virginia September 18, 1931, when Cortese said he took the book from the library on a cent a day basis.

Judge John P. Egan, who tried the case, warned the attorneys to confine their arguments to the legal facts, thus shutting off any remarks about taking up the court's time with trifles, and the case was tried with the same solemnity as would have marked a big suit.

Birds Feared Doomed In Air-Well Trap

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Two city-bred sparrows and four migratory brown thrushes from the woods are trapped at the bottom of the deep well formed by the four inside walls of the 17-story Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company Building, doomed to life imprisonment unless some means of rescue can be found.

The Chicago Humane Society has called upon the management of the building to save the birds, but all efforts to do so have failed.

Nicholas Becker, superintendent of the building, said:

"We told them to come themselves and try to catch them. It can't be done. Apparently the four walls of the building form some sort of a vacuum that drew the birds down. Once in they don't seem to know how to get out. At first they tried to fly out, but they only butted their heads against the windows."

The predicament of the birds was first noticed a week or so ago. Meanwhile tenants of the building are daily tossing them breadcrumbs.

may bring Hoover up to a point where his district majorities would equal those of Roosevelt, including the two major cities.

Pittsburgh and the mining and steel regions of Western Pennsylvania are the seat of the main Pennsylvania revolt against the present Republican national administration. The Democratic nominee has dominated the returns not only from Allegheny County but from the six districts immediately adjoining or most contiguous thereto.

The 2,224 poll ballots from Allegheny County favor Roosevelt by at 63 per cent margin. The Twenty-third to Twenty-eight districts inclusive give him percentages ranging from 55 to 71 with 1,761 ballots recorded.

Philadelphia's 4,049 poll ballots favor Roosevelt by 57 per cent.

WIFE, 13, FREED BY COURT

The marriage of a girl of 13 and a man of 45 was dissolved on the ground of fraud by a decree handed down by Judge Samuel H. Gardner in the suit of Elizabeth Puleo, by her father, Frank Roberts, of 1212 Gilmore way, against Samuel Puleo, 1018 Wylie avenue.

They were of that age, she testified, when Puleo took her to the marriage license office, telling her to say she was 21. She inadvertently said 20, the girl testified, causing Puleo to have a man pose as her father and "consent" to the marriage.

She said her real father took her home after the marriage. Ernest Nasser, her attorney, said the girl is now in Morganza.

Divorces were granted Natalie E. Rankin from Lloyd M. Rankin, William T. Hensen from Eva V. Hensen, Morris K. Hoover from Euphemia W. Hoover, John Kron from Viola M. Kron.

B. E. F. MEETS TO MAP WAR ON HOOVER

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 4.—"No more bonus marches" and no "third party" were the outstanding points of Capt. Hoke Smith's keynote speech to more than 300 veterans of the Bonus Expeditionary Force in convention here for a three-day session today.

Capt. Smith, national field commander of the B. E. F., who bears a letter of authority for the organization of the Bonus Army on a national scale, sounded the keynote in an address to the veterans assembled here in the opening session of their three-day meeting, the first since their rout from Washington by armed troops two months ago.

GRIFFITH TO SPEAK

State Commander Paul H. Griffith of the American Legion, delivered the principal address. Dr. W. B. Hindman, chairman of the Fort Necessity Memorial Committee, delivered the invocation.

Commander Griffith in his address said:

"Just now our government is going through a great economic crisis, the like of which has never been known. Sometimes I believe these times are brought on by a great reckoning force to bring out the real manhood in us. I am convinced that the members of the American Legion will demonstrate the fact that they are conscious that their responsibilities as citizens of this great nation underlie their work in the Legion and that in the final analysis the first group to whom this country may look in this time of peril and distress is that same group of men who 15 years ago became the armored hope of humanity."

The veterans, gathered from all parts of the country, plan to form a national organization which will devote its entire energies up to the November election to defeat President Hoover's re-election. Capt. Smith, in an exclusive interview, told the Sun-Telegraph today that the bonus army would not support a third party, nor would it countenance another march on Washington.

SUPPORT DEMOCRATS

He said:

"We intend to defeat the dishonest candidates of both major political parties.

"We favor Roosevelt and Garner on the presidential ticket because we think the veteran will get a square deal from them—in fact, we believe the whole country will get a square deal.

"We are not planning another bonus march to Washington and we hope it never will be necessary to even think of one."

The convention got under way with more than 300 veterans in attendance. By tonight, it was expected that the number of delegates would increase to more than 500. They are housed in a vacant warehouse on the outskirts of the city, and fed from field kitchens erected by members of Camp Sherry. The first permanent Bonus Army camp established in the United States.

William H. Duthie, United States Air Service, Rodgers Field, refused to quit flying at his wife's request and she left him, he testified in Common Pleas Court before Judge W. Heber Dithrich, seeking a divorce from Agnes Duthie. He said:

"She said she didn't want me to work at the airplane business any longer, as it was too dangerous, and she feared they would bring me home in a box."

His wife left him in October, 1925, a week after she threatened to leave if he continued flying, and Duthie has not heard from her since, he said. They were living at San Diego, Cal., where he was a government plane inspector at the time. They were married in October, 1917, in Detroit.

PARK TO FIGHT SUCCOP APPEAL DELAY

Stiff objection to any postponement of the appeal of Bertram L. Succop, former director of supplies, convicted on 29 counts of misdemeanor in office, will be filed in Superior Court, it was stated today. When Succop was sentenced to one year in jail by Judge Thomas D. Finletter, he filed an appeal.

Col. E. L. Kearns, counsel for Succop, today petitioned the court to postpone argument for one month in order to give him time to prepare his briefs. Judge Finletter sustained the jury's conviction as to Succop, while setting aside the verdict convicting Mayor Charles H. Kline on one count. The court threw out one count in Succop's conviction.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, his first assistant, George P. P. Langfitt, and Earl F. Reed, special prosecutor, will protest this latest move. District Attorney Park's office expects to file briefs in the state's appeal before the end of the week.

Attorney Charles B. Prichard, counsel for Mayor Kline, said:

> "We are ready to go ahead with the argument, opposing the state's appeal, in the Mayor's case as soon as the District Attorney's office and the court is ready."

Under the rules of the court in appeals of this kind, those taking the appeal have 21 days in which to file briefs, which means that October 7 will be the last day. The case then goes down for argument automatically the fifth Monday following notice of the appeal, which would take the case to the head of the list for argument in Philadelphia, October 17.

PUBLIC WATER PLANT URGED

Municipal ownership was urged last night as a solution to the Mt. Lebanon water rate situation by a special committee appointed by township commissioners to study the situation.

The committee's report, presented by George P. Kountz, chairman, said that rates proposed by the South Pittsburgh Water Company were inadequate and suggested new downward revisions be presented.

Kountz said municipal ownership would mean reductions in consumer's cost from 30 to 40 per cent and that construction costs of municipal facilities would be liquidated in 17 years.

Township commissioners and the committee are to hold a joint meeting to further study the report.

DOPE WAR JAILS LONDON DEB

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Scotland Yard's recently launched campaign against smuggling, purveying and use of narcotics netted its first prominent victim when Miss Brenda Dean Paul, daughter of Sir Aubrey Paul, and once a prominent society girl, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for possession of morphine.

For several weeks Scotland Yard operatives have been frequenting fashionable haunts in the West End favored by drug addicts, who are believed to be supplied by an international narcotic ring whose London agent is a French woman masquerading under the title of "The Countess."

While Scotland Yard remained secretive regarding its operations, it was understood evidence had been uncovered indicating that a number of persons in London's gay night-clubbing society set are involved in the drug ring's activities.

One of those under observation is the younger son of a peer who owns his own airplane and is said to have made several unreported landings in England after flights to the Continent before checking in at the Hendon Airport.

SWAIN'S FRIEND SLAIN BY RIVAL

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Blows from the fists of an amateur boxer proved fatal today to Casimir Kozlowski, 19. He died in a hospital after being knocked unconscious in an argument over the love of a girl.

Police are holding Henry Jakubowski, 18, the boxer, who, they say, confessed the attack, which was on the wrong person. And the attacker was not the suitor, but only a friend of a youth who had been paying attention to the girl.

The police said Jakubowski struck Kozlowski three times and knocked him to the pavement.

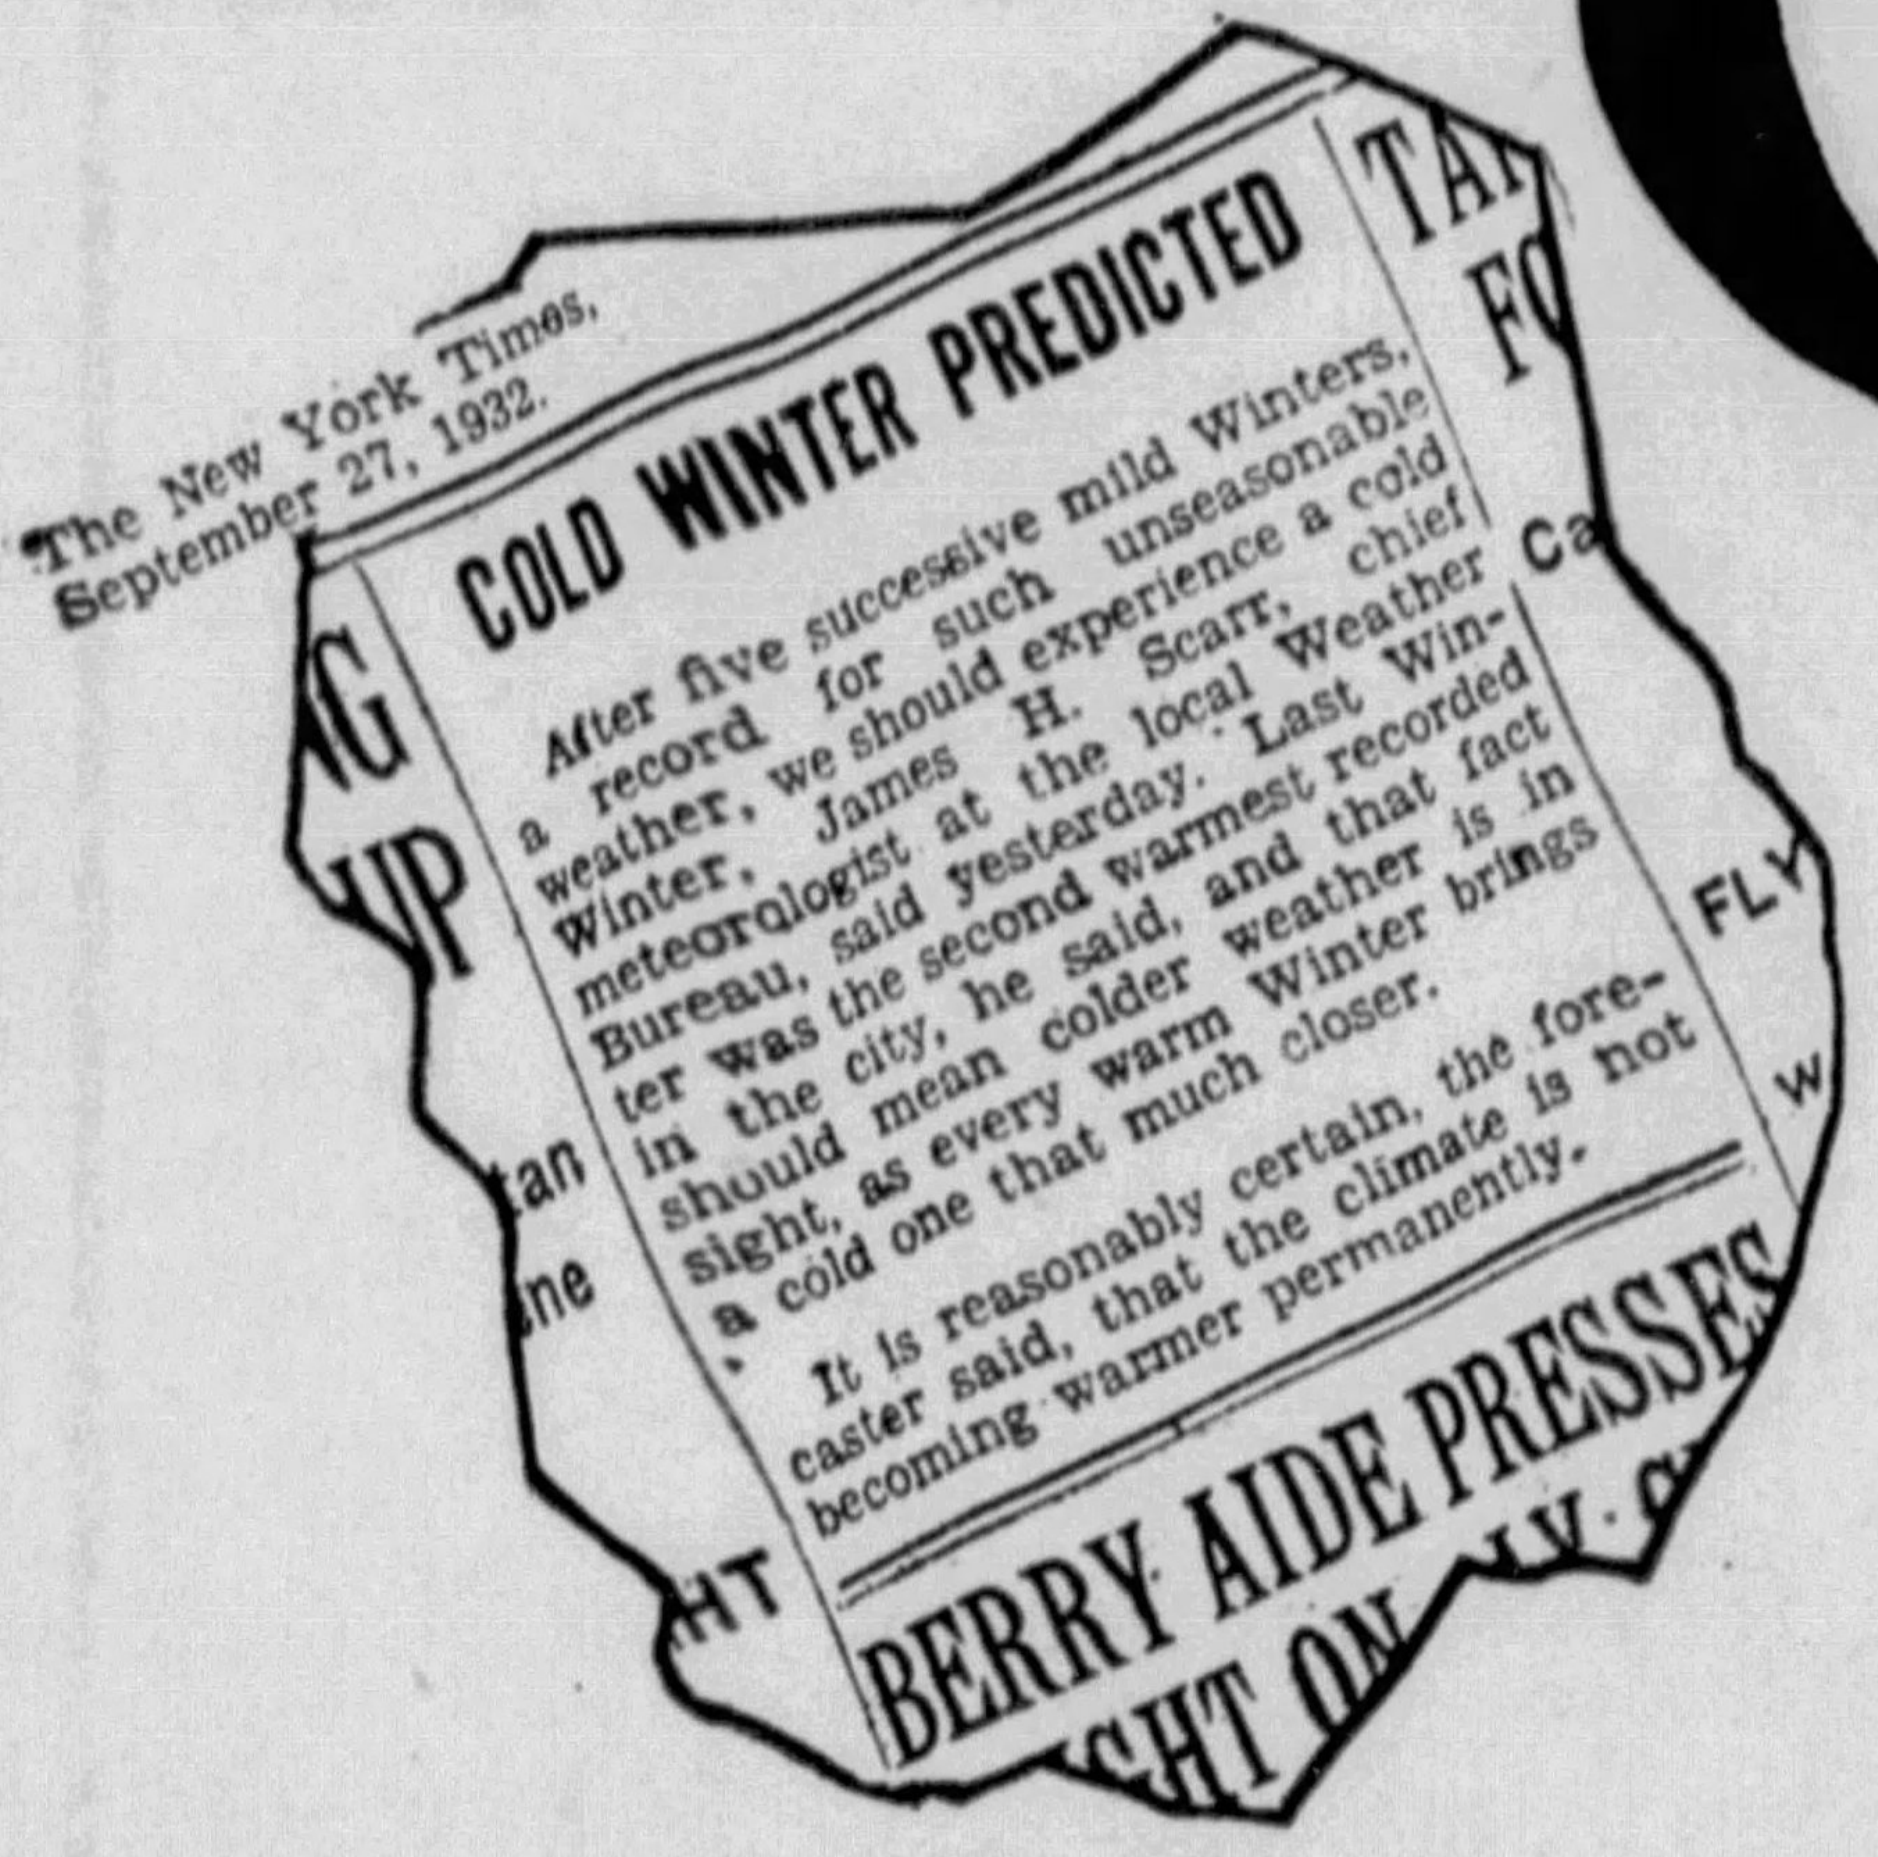
McCANN'S 59TH YEAR OF ABSOLUTE RELIABILITY

A Tip to Men—

Buy Wool For A Rise...



The New York Times, September 27, 1932.

COLD WINTER PREDICTED

After five successive mild Winters, a record for such unseasonable weather, we should experience a cold Winter, James H. Scarr, chief meteorologist at the local Weather Bureau, said yesterday. Last Winter was the second warmest recorded in the city, he said, and that fact should mean colder weather is in sight, as every warm Winter brings a cold one that much closer.

It is reasonably certain, the forecaster said, that the climate is not becoming warmer permanently.

BERRY AIDE PRESSES

HORNE'S ANNUAL Overcoat Sale

begins tomorrow

$18.50 $24.50 $34.50

This is the year to buy an overcoat, and tomorrow's the day!

The above prices are the lowest ever quoted in this Annual Sale, which goes back many years. Last year's Sale advertisement, herewith reproduced, furnishes a comparison with last year's sale prices for like qualities, at which hundreds of coats were sold.

Wool after a long, unprecedented decline, has turned about, and begun a sharp upward climb, which is already reflected in stiffening wholesale prices.

Our preparations were begun away back in June, when prices were at their very lowest. We not only bought our woolens at the bottom of the market, but had the coats made during the manufacturers' slack season when they were able to give our orders their best attention and were willing to make unusual concessions for the business.

Every coat was made to carefully laid down specifications and is Horne standard inside and out.

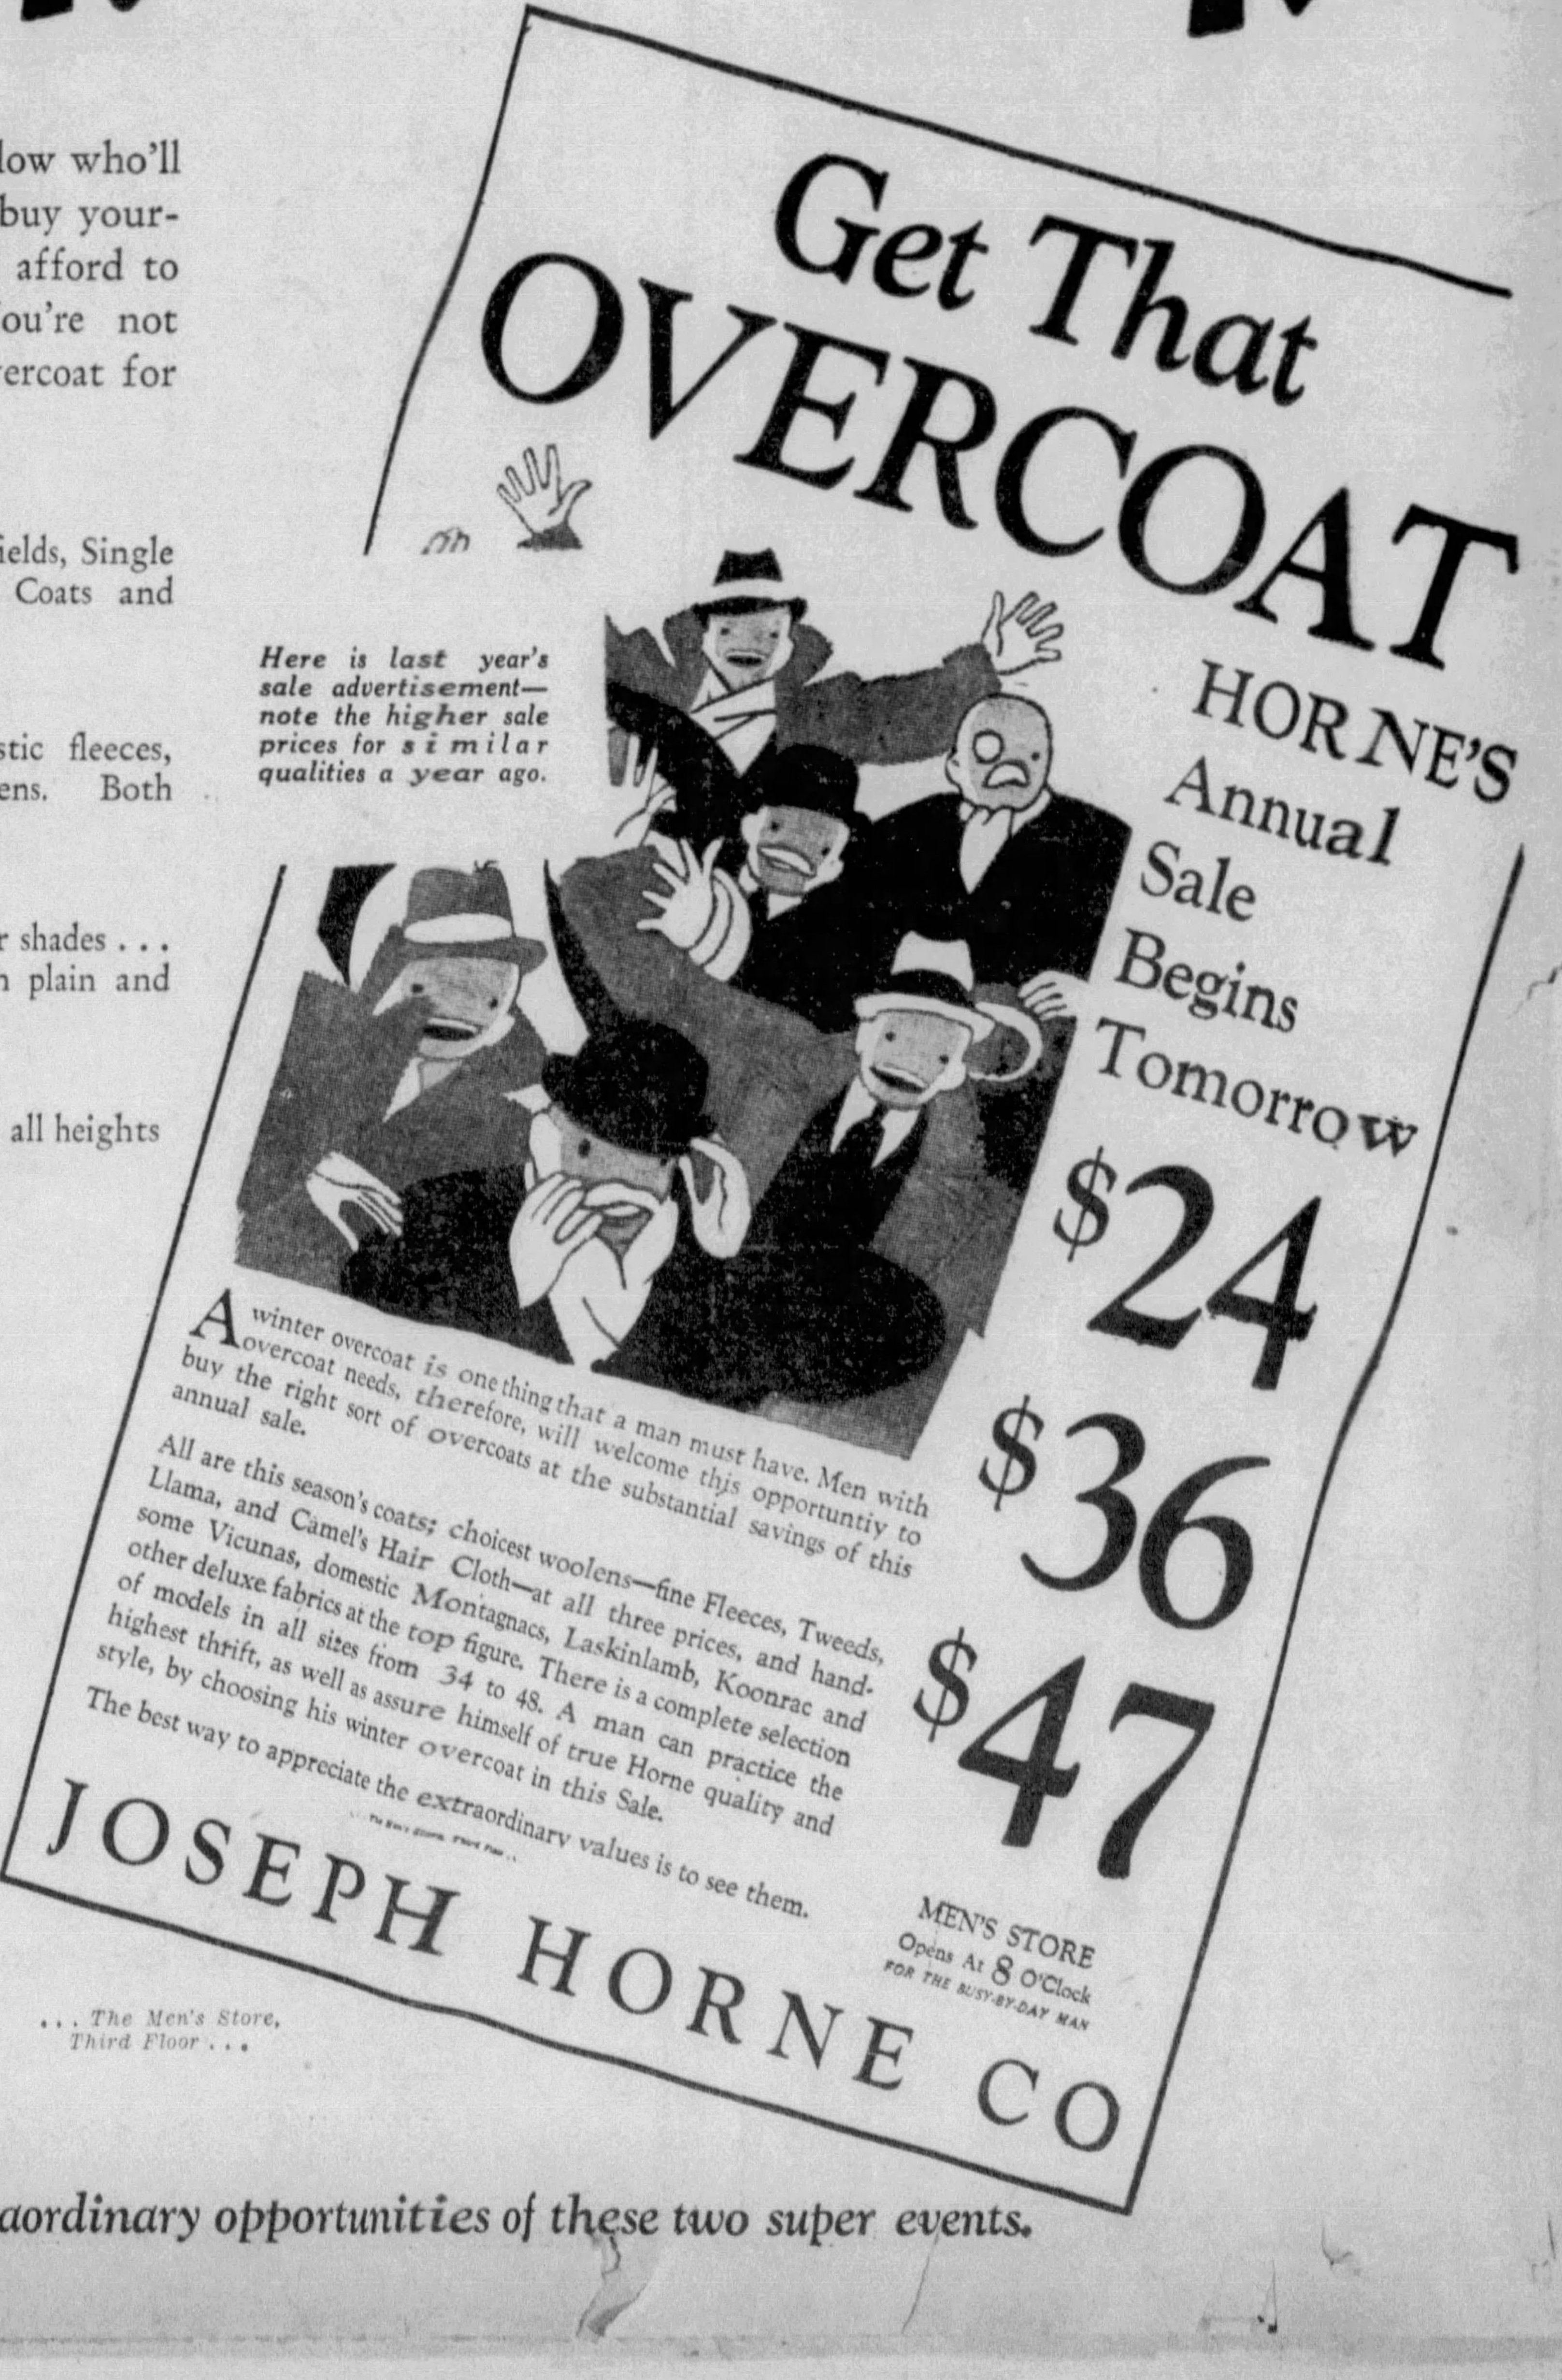
Give your old coat to some deserving fellow who'll need it (a cold winter is predicted) and buy yourself a new one. At these prices you can afford to look prosperous, and well dressed. You're not likely to have the chance to buy a fine overcoat for so little again as long as you live!

Styles: The latest draped models, Chesterfields, Single and Double Breasted Styles. Raglans, fitted Coats and Ulster Types.

Fabrics: Are fine, imported and domestic fleeces, tweeds, shetlands, twists, and novelty woolens. Both medium and heavy weights.

Colors: Provide the wanted fall and winter shades... black, blue, oxford, gray, tan and browns, both plain and fancy.

Sizes: Are complete, with models for men of all heights and proportions.



Here is last year's sale advertisement—note the higher sale prices for similar qualities a year ago.

A man can practice the highest thrift, as well as assure himself of true Horne quality and style, by choosing his winter overcoat in this Sale.

Blame Bootleg War For Bombing in Ohio

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—One house was wrecked, another was set afire, and four persons were hurled from their beds last night by a terrific explosion, which police said was an act of reprisal in a bootleggers' war.

The explosion, evidently caused by a bomb, destroyed a house owned by Theodore Wodser, reputed "beer king" here, who a month ago began serving a nine-month term on a federal liquor law conviction.

DOCTOR'S VOTE ATTACKED

Although Dr. William A. Renne has voted for 14 years from the 1900 block in Carson street, several residents of the voting district have petitioned the Registration Commissioners to strike his name from the books. Renne is a candidate for the Legislature from the Sixth District.

The hearing, which started yesterday afternoon, will be continued at 1 o'clock today. Attorney Robert B. Averbach, counsel for Renne, brought out on cross-examination of several witnesses that although they knew that Renne had been voting from his office address for years that not until this year did anybody protest.

An investigator for the commission testified that Renne has sleeping quarters in a room adjoining his office at 1902 Carson street. He also testified that Renne until last year maintained a voting address at 1923 Carson street.

Renne lived for several years at 108 Hornaday road and now owns a residence at 18 Stewart street, Carrick.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

"My complexion was very poor because of pimples and blackheads which covered my face and neck. I had been advised to try Resinol Soap and Ointment, but had tried so many other things without success I was disgusted with everything. But, a friend urged me to try a sample anyway. In three days' time the improvement was so great I could hardly believe it. I will always have a word of praise for Resinol." (Signed)

When children won't eat—and won't gain weight—

Try This!

The youngster who has no appetite, probably has stasis. A little fig syrup will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat—and gain!

Mothers should never coax a child to eat. Nature knows best. Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for sluggish, listless children in every part of the country!

A Pound a Week

Your child will eat well from the day and hour you conquer sluggishness. But that girl or boy with furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts!

Begin tonight, with enough pure fig syrup to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week, until the appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone. When a cold or other ailment has again clogged the system, fig syrup will soon set things to right.

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, California fig syrup will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food.

Just One IF—The claims made for California Fig Syrup are true and it will do the same for you—IF you get genuine CALIFORNIA fig syrup. Don't accept any of the substitutes.

The broadcast, which originates in Des Moines, Ia., is one of a series of Republican campaign talks scheduled on NBC and CBS chains through November 7, the eve of the election.

Senator Wagner

"What the Government Can do to Prevent and Relieve Unemployment" is the topic of a discussion by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, and Prof. Charles A. Beard during the "You and Your Government" program on KDKA at 8 tonight. The broadcast is heard under the auspices of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education.

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Enoch Rauh, of the Welfare Department, and Charles H. Joseph are guest speakers during a gala Frank and Seder Silver Anniversary program on WCAE tonight at 8. A 15-piece concert orchestra under the direction of David Levin presents the musical portion of the program, which includes excerpts from "Hit the Deck," Herbert's "Air de Ballet" and "Die Meistersinger," by Wagner.

Program Pointers

Mrs. Ely Culbertson, whose husband calls her "the greatest bridge player in the world," heads an informal Tuesday Afternoon Bridge Club at which leading authorities will discuss everything from bridge to what one should wear at a bridge party and what to serve, which is inaugurated on WCAE today at 4 o'clock. J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, is guest speaker during the "Pittsburgh Industries" broadcast on KDKA at 7:15 tonight. He discusses the coal industry.

Mrs. Culbertson

"The Case of Slippery Baxter," the story of a prisoner's sensational break for freedom while en route to Sing Sing and life imprisonment, is dramatized during the Dance Hour on WCAE at 10. Roger Wolfe Kahn provides the musical portion of the program.

The Orient is the setting for "The Twelve Coins of Confucius," the Crime Club presentation on WJAS at 9:30 tonight.

Bertha Schmid, soprano, returns to the WJAS waves tonight at 6:45 after a brief vacation.

Another of the "Maud and Cousin Bill" sketches from the pen of Booth Tarkington, in which Maud elects herself reporter for Bill and Henry's newspaper and rates a "scoop," is presented on KDKA at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

Georgie Price gives his impression of George Lashwood, famous old-time comedian, singing "I Forgot the Number of the House" on WJAS at 7:45.

LISTENING IN

Morton Downey Returns Minstrel Coming Back Pat Barnes Goes Movie

Morton Downey, off the air since last spring, is listed to return via CBS Friday night. He'll sing once a week with Leon Belasco's orchestra. . . . Otis Skinner, and probably his daughter, Cornelia, will be the guests of Rudy Vallee on the first of Rudy's new variety shows to start on WCAE Thursday . . . Al Bernard, of minstrel fame, is to stage a comeback over an NBC network soon . . . Wayne King starts a new series of Tuesday night programs over NBC-WEAF next week.

Mr. Downey

Pat Barnes is toying around with a movie camera and spends most of his spare time "on location" . . . Pat, you know, hails from Sharon, Pa.

Jolly Bill and Jane recently celebrated the fifth birthday of their program.

Not long ago a woman presented herself at CBS and said she could crow like a rooster, meow like a cat and bark like a dog—and then proceeded to do so, much to the amusement of the onlookers.

Eunice Howard, of Hello Marie fame, played one of the principal roles in the radio version of "The Phantom of Crestwood" . . . William Rainey, NBC actor, has appeared on the stage with John Barrymore and Nance O'Neill . . . Jane Pickens does those arrangements for the Pickens Sisters.

The youngest child heard over CBS is Bobby Jane Allert—4½ years old.

Because the listeners made so many requests for more solos by the Old Singin' Master (Harry Frankel), the program undergoes considerable change. Instead of a choir and instrumentalists occupying most of the broadcast, Frankel will be given the spotlight and the entire program devoted to his songs and stories. His accompanist will be Emil Seidel.

Ray Perkins, who has been letting his master mind play on the subject of politics, emerges with the following gleamings:

"Now we know what Justice is doing in that statue pose of hers. She's trying to balance the budget.

"As far as I can see everything that has been said so far in the campaign boils down to two propositions on which both parties agree: (a) there's been a depression and (b) neither party is in favor of it . . . At that, it took the Republicans two years to agree to the first proposition.

How Do Chorus Girls Manage?

The theatre knows no "sick list." Chorus girls just can't be "absent." Regardless of their monthly sickness, they must be in line, on time, on their toes, and smiling. How do they do it? Nature doesn't spare them. They stop the pain for hours at a stretch, by the use of a perfectly harmless medicine called Midol.

It acts in seven minutes. Relief is complete. The pain is gone. Midol is not a narcotic and offers no interference with nature. All druggists; ask simply for Midol.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—

Patricia Pitt

The first play of the Theater Guild series, now under the auspices of the American Theater Society, always brings the really, truly first night opening of the season for Pittsburgh fashionables.

"The Good Earth," opening at the Nixon last night, brought forth hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of faithful first-nighters for the first Guild play. It was one of the largest crowds I've ever seen at the theater, and an appreciative one, too.

Although the women of the smart set looked charming, they were not so brilliantly gowned as in former seasons.

I had a glimpse of attractive Nancy Byers, a charming type of American girl, with her mother, Mrs. J. Frederic Byers. I couldn't see Nancy's gown, for she was completely covered with a lovely full length cherry red velvet wrap with a shirred velvet collar.

* * *

Gown of Velvet

Another member of the younger set there was petite Gretchen Bickford in a shell-pink velvet gown with wrap to match. Laura Evans chose an interesting gown with a skirt of sapphire blue crepe and the brief bodice of pale blue crepe. And her wrap was of apricot velvet.

Mrs. Raymond Hilliard was there, wearing purple crepe, Mrs. Harry L. Mitchell in red crepe and her tall, slender daughter Caroline in cream satin.

In a group with Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife, who wore an interesting gown of white satin, fashioned with short, wide sleeves banded in mink, were Mrs. John H. Ricketson III, in black crepe, and Clodagh McCune.

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson in black crepe, I saw with her sister, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, who chose an attractive gown of flowered chiffon.

* * *

Applique Flowers

Large flowers in pastel tones appliqued on white chiffon made Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby's gown distinctive. Mrs. R. Kent Hanson I saw in the crowded lobby during intermission, Mrs. Blair Childs in pistachio green satin, Mrs. Mortimer Miller in a red velvet wrap over black and red chiffon, Frances Forsyth in black chiffon, and Margaret McCready.

Mrs. James Verner Scaife was one of the most distinguished looking women there. Her gown was of sapphire blue heavy lace, and her wrap was of sapphire blue velvet.

Mrs. T. M. Jones III chose green satin. Evelyn Evans was there in a green crepe frock printed with gold rings; Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, in orange crepe; Mrs. Charles Flaccus, in sapphire blue chiffon, and Mrs. Charles S. Wunder.

Wrap of Velvet

Green crepe formed the frock of Mrs. George A. Kelly III, over which she wore a black velvet wrap with a collar of chinchilla. Clara Dorothea Jenkins wore red satin, Frances Fitzgerald red satin, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt a flowered yellow chiffon dress, Mrs. J. O. Burgwin black crepe and Frances Johnston black velvet, with the bodice embroidered with steel beads.

One of the most interesting gowns was that of Mrs. Frank C. Irish. It was of black crepe in the empire mode having a cowl effect in cloth of silver.

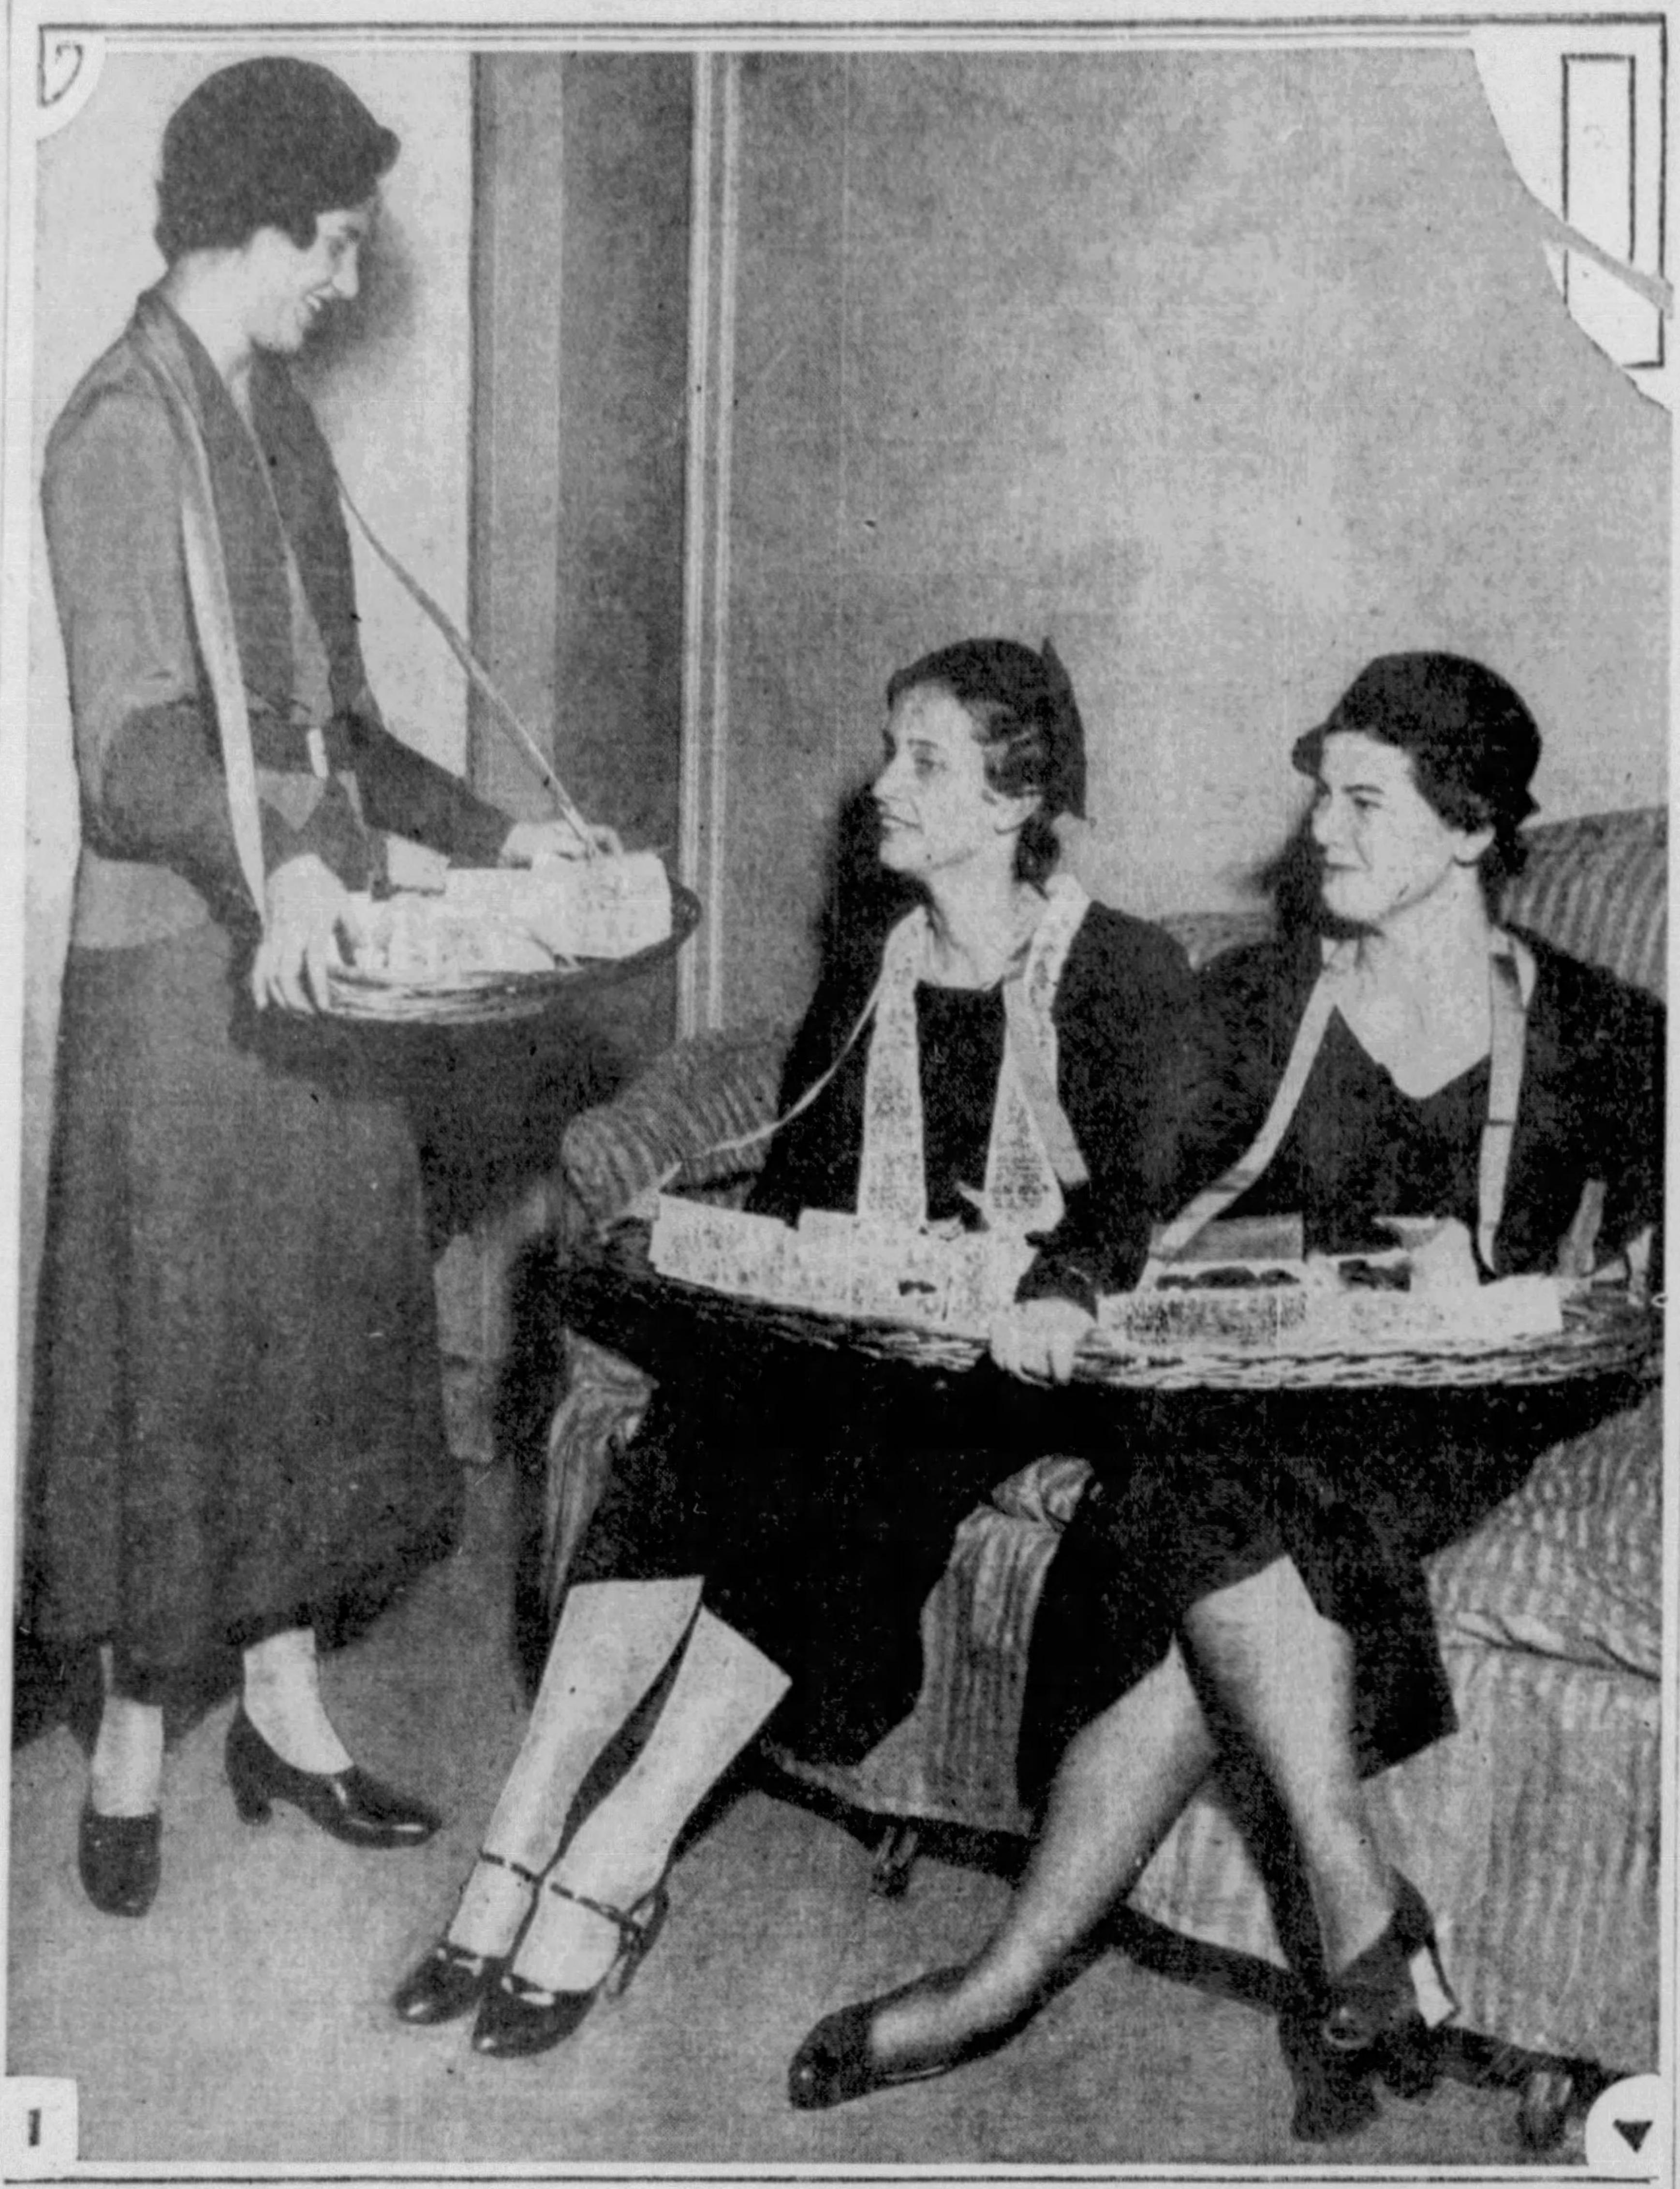
AIDES AT THE D. A. R.'S SCHENLEY BRIDGE PARTY



MISS PEGGY WILSON — MISS JOAN POLLOCK — MISS LARRY SIDWELL

AIDES WITH REFRESHMENT TRAYS YESTERDAY AT DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION HOTEL SCHENLEY BRIDGE

Brookside Woman's Club Guest of Mrs. Goodrich

The Brookside Woman's Club is opening its season today at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Goodrich. The meeting is given over entirely to business except for a group of piano numbers by Mrs. Charles H. Bayha.

'White Elephants' Given at D.A.R. Card Party

In Burma many natives worship white elephants, and in Pittsburgh yesterday many of the fashionables were coveting white elephants at the Daughters of the American Revolution bridge party.

And no wonder, for at the bridge party in the Hotel Schenley ballroom, the white elephants were prizes, all sorts of articles given by members who had no particular use for them.

There was an exquisite piece of old American glass, a covered compote with frosty etching for ornament. There was a gay, modern cocktail set, silk pajamas, tooled leather articles that suggested visits to Florence.

At the end of the bridge, those holding highest score made their choice of prizes, with the time for selection limited to three minutes.

At Prize Table

In charge of this table was Miss Neil Stewart in a brown and white costume, Miss Romaine Clark and Mrs. J. N. Forker.

Mrs. William J. Crittenden, the regent, looked distinctive in a softly draped gown of black velvet with the sleeves fitting to the elbow, and then cut into deep flares. Her small hat of black had a bow of white velvet. Caroline Crittenden was there in orange crepe.

Playing at one table was Mrs. William Frew in black and white. In her party was Mrs. Charles Orr.

Mrs. Biddle Arthurs in a brown and white printed crepe I saw greeting arrivals. Mrs. H. P. Davis in a black and white costume was engrossed in her game of bridge.

Seen at Bridge

Others I noted in the thronged ballroom were Mrs. John M. Phillips, Mrs. R. W. Tyler, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. William Foster, Mrs. Charles Madison Graham in a jade green crepe gown, Mrs. Howard Eavenson, Mrs. W. J. Holland, Mrs. William Zang in green crepe with a black hat trimmed with a spray of white feathers, Mrs. Moses Atwood and Mrs. Charles Miller.

Mrs. Frederic C. Buckmaster, in charge of the aides, pretty young daughters of members, was chatting with Louise Bausmann in an orange crepe dress draped in cowl fashion at the neckline.

Barbara Chess in a gay green wool frock with a jabot and cuffs of white pique, was with a group of sister aides. Among them were Peggy Nelson in orange crepe, Joan Pollock, Larry Sidwell, Eliza Crannell in an ashes of roses crepe printed in a small white motif, and a jaunty velvet hat of matching shade, Barbara Bissell and Betsy Dandridge.

Miss Willa Marie Ross Weds J. Edward Davis

The marriage of Miss Willa Marie Ross, of Navahoe drive, Mt. Lebanon, to J. Edward Davis, of Wilmington, N. C., took place at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. L. Pielow, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mt. Lebanon. The bride was given in marriage by her father, R. F. Ross, Sr.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. W. M. Wilkes, of New York, her sister; Miss Dorothy Davis, of Wilmington, N. C., and Mrs. F. M. Wise, of Pittsburgh, another sister. Everett Huggins, of Wilmington, N. C., was best man, and Rupert Irwin, George F. Ross, R. F. Ross, Jr., all of Pittsburgh, were ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will be at home after an eastern trip, in Navahoe drive, Mt. Lebanon.

Emily J. Irwin's Betrothal Is Announced

At a prettily appointed bridge luncheon for 50 guests on Saturday in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, given by her mother, announcement was made of the betrothal of Miss Emily Taylor Irwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker Irwin, of Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, to Richard Miller Reeser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis A. Reeser, of New Kensington.

Miss Irwin and her fiance are graduates of the University of Pittsburgh, and he is also a graduate of the Morgan Park Military Academy and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Miss Irwin is a Kappa Kappa Theta.

The guest of honor wore a black velvet gown with a matching hat banded with galyak, and a corsage of gardenias. Her mother appeared in brown velvet with a corsage of yellow tea roses, and Mrs. Reeser chose a gown of black wool trimmed with galyak, and wore pink sweetheart roses.

The luncheon table, centered with silver cranes, was lovely with large bouquets of roses, gladioli, and chrysanthemums and long sprays of smilax were entwined the length of the table, lighted by green tapers.

New President Feted By Homewood Women

Another season of social and charitable activities was begun yesterday by the Homewood Women's Club, when the new president, Mrs. R. H. M. MacKenzie, was honored at a reception in Homewood Carnegie Library.

Among the visiting presidents and representatives were Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, district president of the state federation, and Mrs. H. J. Fox, president of the Allegheny County federation.

An orchestra played several selections, and Miss Grace Quinnert, accompanied by Miss Pearl Snyder, sang. Mrs. Roy Huntsman, chairman of the social committee, was in charge of the tea hour, and the ushers were Mrs. Arthur Leech, Mrs. Raymond Achom, Mrs. J. I. Pratt and Mrs. George Aurouze.

Home and Hospital Club Plans Welfare Campaign

At a special meeting of the Bellevue Home and Hospital Club, held last night in Mrs. C. E. Elste's home, Dawson avenue, plans were made for a welfare house-to-house canvass on Sunday. A meeting in the interest of the campaign and to solicit volunteers will be held Sunday afternoon in the Borough Hall.

Mary Crawford Is Married to W. J. Lamb, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Crawford, of Pritchard street, Sheraden, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Annetta Crawford, to William Joseph Lamb, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lamb, of Crucible street, Elliott, which was solemnized very quietly at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, in Holy Innocents' Church, Sheraden, by the Rev. Daniel J. O'Shea. Only the immediate families attended the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of soft blue transparent velvet, princess mode, and a matching hat. She carried cream colored roses, and her sister, Miss Estelle Jean Crawford, as maid of honor, wore rust colored velvet, with a hat to match, and carried Talisman and after-glo roses. Charles Lamb, of Charleston, W. Va., was his brother's best man.

There was a wedding breakfast in the Crawford home, after which Mr. and Mrs. Lamb, Jr., left on an Eastern motor trip.

BIAS CUTS AND STRAIGHT LINES BOTH EQUALLY POPULAR

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Designers of dresses for 1933 may be divided into two schools—those who cling to bias cuts and those who have swung over to straighter lines. The one favors the full skirt, which is more or less circular; the other contends that the straight skirt has more youth in its scanty lines. It seems to be a battle in which neither side is winner, for both types of designers make use of both types of cutting and line.

* * *

WITNESS THE two frocks in today's sketches—one an afternoon dress of striped silk, from Mirande, the other a street frock of one of the new stretchable fabrics which approximates jersey, from Lyolene. The print dress has a full skirt, but the plain-color incrustations at the arm-eyes accent straightened lines; the street frock has a skirt which is practically straight, yet there is frank bias cutting to the blouse and the little straight-edge ruffles which form the decoration.

* * *

THE MIRANDE dress is unusually simple in that it has no trimmings—no collars, nor frills, nor bands, to detract from the natural lines of the figure. The neckline is an altered square and is marked at either side with the plain brown which forms the arm-eye incrustations. The crepe de chine of which it is fastened is printed in a waving brown-and-white stripe.

* * *

THE LIOLENE dress, in black, has white accents in the little pique edgings on the trimming bands, and in the white leather which forms one-half the belt. Note how the belt dips upward at the center-front, giving the semblance of a raised waistline.

Political Talks Given Before Press Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Herbert Hoover is a good father and a good husband and he probably would be a good citizen if he stayed long enough in one place, Mrs. Carroll Miller said in her talk on "Why I Shall Vote for Franklin Roosevelt" before the Women's Press Club yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Miller's talk followed one by Mrs. William Anderson on "Why I Shall Vote for Herber Hoover," and was largely a reply to her Republican friend's statements.

Mrs. Miller said:

"We are told we shouldn't change horses in midstream, but if the horse is lying down and the rider has fallen off, it's time to get both a new horse and a new rider."

Because a woman is a Republican, she said, is no reason for voting the Republican ticket, for the Republican party has long since deserted the aims and ideals of Abraham Lincoln, who founded it. Mrs. Anderson stressed party loyalty. Replying to Mrs. Anderson's statement that the Republican administration has made a higher rate of living, Mrs. Miller said it is transportation and inventions which have raised the standard.

Both women, of course, referred to their respective party platforms, discussing both tariff and prohibition repeal and Mrs. Anderson challenging the Democratic party to show how the present tariff law had caused a falling off of trade. Trade in dutiable goods has increased, she declared. The Smoot-Hawley tariff bill has not made business good, but it has kept it better than it would have been without the law, she claimed. Mrs. Miller quoted figures showing how foreign trade has been restricted, saying the last tariff bill was passed in the midst of the depression and against the advice of economic authorities.

If the Republican tariff law was a great law, there should have been no unemployment, she went on, adding that it is not the tariff, but trade and the demand for labor that protect the working man, and in order to have trade there must be a balance between exports and imports.

Mrs. Miller mentioned the several Republican administration scandals and called attention to the fact that there never had been a scandal in the 16 years of the Cleveland and Wilson administrations. Speaking of A. W. Mellon, she said, the great difference between Mr. Mellon and Alexander Hamilton is that Mr. Hamilton found an empty treasury and filled it, while Mr. Mellon found a full one and emptied it.

Mrs. Miller also emphasized the fact that there is money in the New York state treasury under Gov. Roosevelt, but that the federal government under President Hoover is "in the red."

Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "tonic!"

Every child's stomach, liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those bilious days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.

3 STAGES OF A COLD

Far Easier Relieved in the First Than in the Second or Third Stage!

It has been discovered that a cold ordinarily passes through three stages. The first is the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours. The second is the Watery Secretion Stage, 1 to 3 days. The third, the Mucous Secretion Stage. A cold is far easier relieved in the first stage than in the later stages.

The wise thing is not to let the cold get into the second stage. Check it quickly. This you can do by taking Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. A few of these tablets taken immediately upon catching cold will usually expel the cold overnight and thus prevent the infection spreading within the system. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine routs a cold quickly because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels—kills the cold germs, infection and fever in the system—relieves the headache and grippy feeling—tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

No worry about what you're taking when you take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It is utterly safe. Contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. Does not upset the stomach or make the head ring. Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Quinine. It has been the standard cold tablet for years. Handy, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. Remember, anything less than the treatment afforded by Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is taking chances. Get it today.

PIMPLES? LARGE PORES? BLACKHEADS?

Beware of SEPTIC SKIN

Nurse tells how to get clearer, smoother skin almost OVERNIGHT

THE first sign of any of these disfiguring skin faults is a warning of infection—septic skin. End them quickly . . . But you can't do it with ordinary creams. They merely wipe away surface dirt. You need the correct medical treatment to effectively rout out all deep-lodged impurities that cause these unsightly blemishes.

That's the advice of hospital nurses who have treated thousands of serious skin conditions. In countless cases doctors prescribe Noxzema, the famous snow-white, greaseless, medicated cream that purges and heals.

Noxzema contains a remarkable blend of scientific antiseptics and healing medicines. First it penetrates the pores and cleanses away every particle of clogged, germ-breeding matter that erupts in ugly pimples blackheads, blemishes. The pores breathe freely — become scientifically pure and clean. Then Noxzema's mild astringents gently firm the enlarged, coarsened pores and leave the skin far finer and more even-textured —thrillingly smooth and velvety.

No wonder over 6,000,000 women depend on Noxzema for complexion health and loveliness! One woman tells another of this wonderful beauty find. Your very first application of Noxzema will tell you why. In 8 hours—overnight—it begins to work its beauty magic. The improvement is often astonishing. Soreness gone, coarse pores reduced, roughness smoothed away.

To gain and to keep a radiantly healthy, appealing young complexion—use Noxzema regularly. At all Drug and Dept. Stores.

Should a Fellow Marry Girl Who Hates Children?

Do you think you could be happy with a girl who hated children—if you wanted children yourself?

That's the big question in George's life just now.

When he met Nonie he thought he had met the girl of his dreams. She was pretty, peppy, generous and a good sport. He fell for her, hard; asked her to marry him. And when she said "yes" he thought he was the happiest hombre on earth.

Then they got to talking over their future—and the blow fell. She'd marry him, yes; but no babies!

What's the answer?

"Dear Sally:

"Will you please give me some advice? I seem to be in a regular blind alley, and I am having an awful time trying to decide what to do.

"About a year ago I met Nonie, and began to be interested in her. I thought from the first that I had found my one girl, and began asking her out. She liked me, too, so we went together steady, and the more I saw of her the more I liked her.

"She is very pretty and peppy. She has always been a good fellow, and seemed so decent and sensible and generous! She's smart, too. She can cook and sew, and is neat as a pin. Well, to make a long story short, I fell deeply in love with her, and two months ago I asked her to marry me. She said 'yes,' and I was so happy I was almost going around in circles.

"Then we began to plan our future together, and I was deeply shocked by her saying that she hated children, and never wanted any. I tried to argue with her, but she still held on to the idea, and finally she said that she flatly refused to have any, ever.

HOPED FOR CHILDREN

"Now, that hit me particularly hard, because I love children and have always looked forward to having some of my own. I have thought how proud I would be of them, and what fun it would be to have them around and watch them growing up.

"Maybe that seems strange to you. I know a lot of fellows don't seem to want any, but I'm different. It seems to me that the little home I've always looked forward to would be awfully bare and empty with just myself and my wife in it.

"I don't know what to do. I love Nonie deeply. We like the same things. We're first class chums, as well as sweethearts. It breaks me all up to think of giving her up. But her attitude toward those kids I'd like to have breaks me all up, too.

HESITATES TO DECIDE

"Do you think I would ever be happy without them? Do you think that just having her would be enough? Or would I look at other folks with their families, and resent it because she refuses to have any, and maybe break up our marriage on account of it?

"I just can't decide. And I don't know what to think of her. Is it selfishness on her part, that makes her like that? Would she turn out to be selfish in other ways? I feel that having a family would give me something to work for, but she can't see it that way. Please help me. What shall I do? Shall I go on, and give up the idea of the family? Or shall I break with her?

"GEORGE J."

What's your answer, Stranger? Supposing you felt like George does, and had fallen for a girl who felt like Nonie? What would you do? Would you marry her, or give her the air?

Maybe that's just what you have had to decide.

If it is, let's have your story. Did you "live happy ever after"? Or did you eat your heart out with longing? Did you marry her; and was her love enough? Or did you feel that she had cheated you?

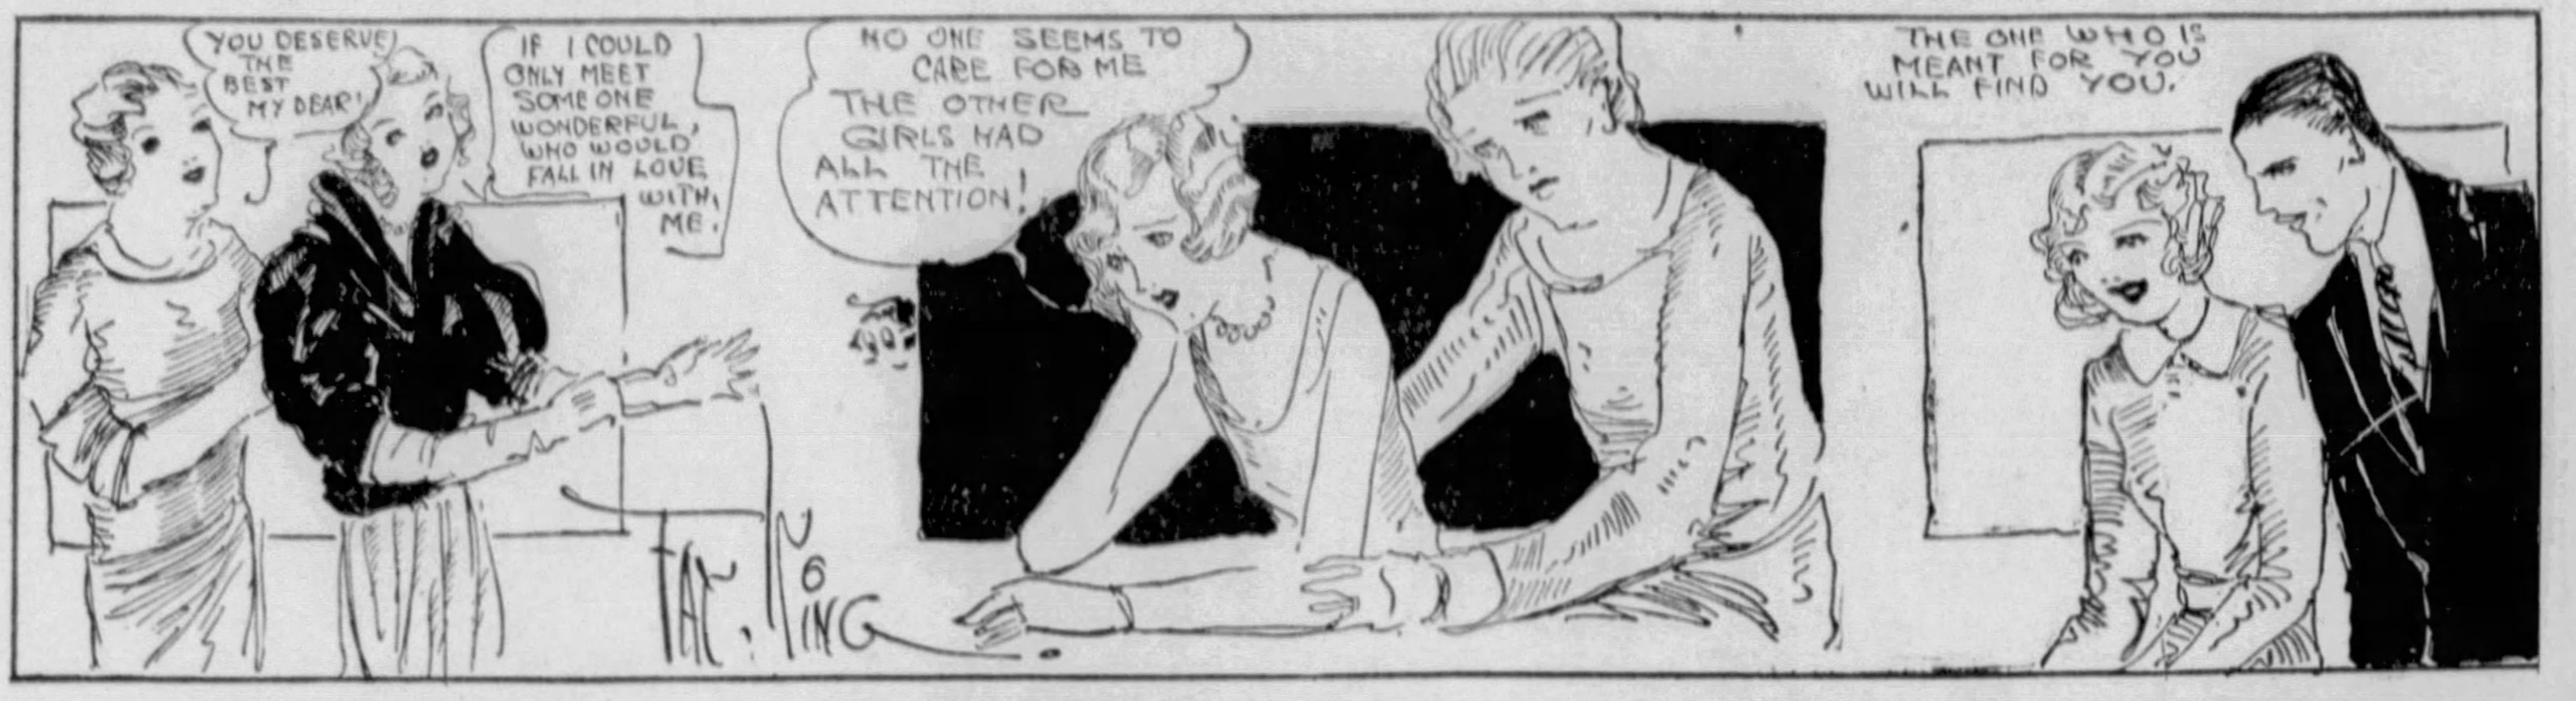
Fay King Advises Girls Not to Despair Because No Boys Have Loved Them



YOU DESERVE THE BEST MY DEAR!
IF I COULD ONLY MEET SOME ONE WONDERFUL, WHO WOULD FALL IN LOVE WITH ME.
NO ONE SEEMS TO CARE FOR ME THE OTHER GIRLS HAD ALL THE ATTENTION!
THE ONE WHO IS MEANT FOR YOU WILL FIND YOU.
FAY KING

By FAY KING

She is young, dresses nicely and dances well.

She goes about, but is despondent because no man she has yet met has fallen in love with her.

She feels she is a failure, and that she lacks the charm and attraction for men that other girls have.

There is no need for this despair.

She has as much charm and attraction, perhaps even more, but it is not the popular sort that instantly appeals to the general run of men.

She must admit, too, perhaps, that the men most girls are attracted to do not interest her any more than she seems to interest them.

The one who is meant for her will find her in time.

It is fate—and well worth waiting for.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Exercise Daily—but Do It in a Safe and Sane Manner

Thousands of persons witnessed and admired the splendid achievements of the athletes who competed in the Olympic Games recently held in California. No one can deny that many of these stalwart and upright young men and women were the very perfection of health.

Dr. Copeland

Exercise is beneficial for everyone. Yet not everybody can indulge in the strenuous exercise that is common for the hardened and well-trained athlete. Too often harm can be traced to poorly supervised exercise, or to overzealous participation in athletics.

It is an accepted fact that a certain amount of muscular exercise is essential to good health. The infant, long before it is able to sit up, obtains this exercise by kicking its feet and throwing its arms about. As the child grows older, its exercise is gradually increased.

Exercise is harmful when taken in excess. It is particularly dangerous for an individual who has an organic defect of some sort. Exercise should never be taken suddenly or severely. It should only be in moderation and gradually increased as the body becomes accustomed to it.

Lack of a regular amount of exercise is detrimental to the health and welfare of the body. The digestion is markedly influenced by lack of exercise. Many persons suffering from constipation can trace this disturbance to insufficient walking and exercising. This particular ailment, so common today, is rarely seen among athletes and persons who daily partake of a certain amount of exercise.

There are many forms of exercise. Often the doctor advises exercise, but may not specify what kind or how much. For elderly individuals, golf is beneficial. But it should not be indulged in too strenuously. The person beyond middle life often takes up golf too energetically. In his enthusiasm he forgets about his handicaps and sometimes plays more golf than is good for him. This is particularly dangerous when done on a hot day or after a hard day's work at business.

Golf, horseback-riding, tennis and swimming are forms of exercise that are beneficial, but expensive and beyond the reach of many. I can think of no form of exercise that is more advantageous than walking. Walking is beneficial and within the reach of everyone.

It is a valuable exercise because it is taken outdoors. The advantages of sunshine and fresh air cannot be overemphasized. This form of exercise can be indulged in all year round. In walking, one should always be careful to see that the shoes are well fitting, with low heels and broad toes. Warm stockings should be worn as protection against dampness and cold.

Before attempting any form of exercise, consult with your physician and obtain his approval. Bear in mind that exercise which produces a state of exhaustion is harmful. A physician once remarked very wisely: "Do not overdraw your strength any more than you would your checking account."

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

First Hand Psychics

One grave objection to Opening bids on trickless hands—the so-called psychic bids so popular with many players—is that the player himself, having first placed himself in the psychological situation where he anticipates the worst, is never prepared for the fortunate outcome of an adverse contract, and thus a barrier is built in the partnership bidding which is difficult to surmount in later rounds.

An example of how two New York experts got extremely bad results in the recent Southern New England tournament, conducted by the United States Bridge Association, is given on the hand below, which was played in the final round of the pair championship at New London, Conn.:

West—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

North:
♠ A 10 4 3 2
♡ 10 4
♢ A K

West:
♠ 5
♡ Q 8 7
♢ 10 9 8 6 3 2

East:
♠ K J 7 6
♡ A K 2
♢ Q 4
♣ Q 9 5 2

South:
♠ Q 9 8
♡ J 9 6 5 3
♢ J 7 5
♣ 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	1 ♢ (1)	2 ♢ (2)	Double (3)
Pass	2 ♠ (4)	Double	Redouble (5)
Pass	3 ♢	3 ♠ (6)	Double (7)
Pass	4 ♢ (8)	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—The Opening psychic on a trickless hand.

2—Not a good bid, although North has a very fine hand.

3—At this time East does not know whether his partner's bid is based on real values or not. The Double is designed to meet the situation, in case this has been a psychic Opening.

4—Continuing the psychic barrage.

5—An attempt to prevent partner from defending the hand too long.

6—North's bid of spades, after having doubled West's bid in the same suit, discloses to his partner and opponents willingness to play the hand at that declaration.

7—Pass would probably be better here, although it requires great precision to make the contract of three spades.

8—In view of East's strong bidding, West should pass. The barrenness of his hand suggests that East may be able to defeat the contract.

Played at four diamonds, doubled, the contract was defeated 3 tricks for a penalty loss of four hundred points. North, by the most precise play, could have made the contract of three spades, doubled. However, in order to make three spades, the player must not only be expert but must play throughout with faultless precision.

The manner in which the contract could be made would be that North would ruff the third round of hearts, lay down the Ace and King of clubs, ruff a small club in Dummy, return to his own hand with a diamond, cash his last diamond and ruff the remaining club in the Dummy. East would then be permitted to win the Queen of spades. He would be forced to concede North two more tricks in spades. This might have been an unhappy outcome had West permitted East's Double to stand, but no doubt the best results for East and West would have been obtained had West made a perfectly correct pass on his trickless holding, as in that case it would be entirely possible for North and South to have reached an entirely unmakable game contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

In response to a Forcing two-bid, having adequate trump support, 2 or more honor tricks and no biddable suit, should honor strength be shown by the notrump Jump bid or should your Raise be given first?

Answer—Unless the distribution were very balanced, the hand would contain 3 to 4 playing-tricks, in which case a triple Raise should be given.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Bacteria that produce decay of the teeth likes best to gather close to the gums. So see that the bristles of the toothbrush clean the sides as well as inner and outer surfaces of teeth. Use dental floss once a day.

In middle age it often happens that the upper lip takes on fine up and down lines, at first almost imperceptible to the eye. They must have attention; advancing years won't make them any better. Dip the finger tips in a heavy cream or muscle oil. Place at either corner of the lip, work toward the center with rotary movement, very light. Place first finger in the center of the lip, thumb and second finger at each corner, bringing them up to the first finger, forming a Cupid's bow. Repeat.

Easy on the Eyes

When one's eyesight is not of the best, threading the sewing machine needle is a task. Try slipping a piece of white paper or cloth behind the needle and see how much easier it is.

Too Red and Rosy

It is a wise woman who is careful how she makes up her face in the daylight and does not overdo it. Artificial night lights can stand much more make-up than pure sunlight.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Salad Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My many friends have suggested that I write to you.

At an informal luncheon, to the left were two forks, a salad and a meat fork. After the fruit cocktail was removed, the entree of one-half chicken and vegetable came accompanied by a small lettuce and tomato salad, to the right.

I used the meat fork for both the salad and the fowl, and had the salad fork remaining. Both forks were used by the others.

The dessert was served, there was a small fork for this on the plate. I still had the extra fork.

May I say, too, there was no butter spreader and I crisscrossed with the meat knife.

EMBARRASSED.

Don't worry about this, for it isn't really necessary to use the special fork for the salad that accompanies the meat, although it is better to do so. The appearance of the salad fork with the salad is more attractive, the meat fork being reserved for the meat, or, in this case, the chicken.

Hostesses are becoming increasingly careful about this placing of a salad fork for the salad that accompanies the main course, and since they are, we must remember to co-operate with them by using the fork . . . or we won't get it again! And you do agree . . . don't you? . . . that it does make the course "neat and tidy."

Chinese Drama of the Soil Shows Alla Nazimova Great as O-Lan

By GEORGE SEIBEL

To get under the skin of an alien civilization is the most difficult task in all drama. Because the audience finds strange things ludicrous, there is always the danger that tragedy may turn into farce and deep emotion into shallow show. But Owen Davis and his son Donald have taken the Chinese novel of Pearl S. Buck, "The Good Earth," and turned it into a touching threnody of the soil, made poignantly real by the acting of Alla Nazimova as the eternal woman who suffers and dies as the daughter of the soil.

Mr. Seibel

Only once, when the coffin-maker brings in the casket that is to hold Wang Lung's father, did the large audience at the Nixon Theater betray any indication of not taking the play seriously. To see the old man overjoyed at the gruesome present his son has made him does seem hard to understand for people who die in hospitals and are buried from funeral parlors. But the tender simplicity with which Henry Travers acts this scene went far to restrain the temptation to laugh.

Wang Lung's uncle, played by Sidney Greenstreet, creates another element of extravagance which might fall into bathos and burlesque. But the whole atmosphere has been so thoroughly saturated with sincerity from the first act, that this bit of overdone characterization also is blended into the wide-spread canvas.

The impressiveness of the whole even overcame the unevenness of Earl Larimore's partrayal of Wang Lung, who became a conventional American villain when he fell in love with Lotus. Perhaps he talks too much to be credible as a Mongolian. It was only in the famine scene and in the death scene of his wife that Earl Larimore gave Wang a convincingly human note.

DRAMA THAT'S DIFFERENT

Partly by the high level of the acting and partly by the severe simplicity of the dialogue, Davis et fils have produced a drama that is different from the ruck of average plays. It is as pastoral as the book of Ruth and as poignant as a novel by Knut Hamsun. You almost feel as if behind all those actors there was the Soil itself—that the real hero of the drama was the glebe from which springs life and wealth to fall back in famine and death.

The story is episodic, but the episodes are so closely interwoven that they become epic. Naturally the play falls into three periods—the first ending with the birth of Wang Lung's first son; the second turning upon the arrival of the second wife; the third closing with the death of O-Lan. There is a tendency on the part of the playwrights to talk on into anticlimaxes. This will probably be overcome by some pruning in the final scenes of each act. Perhaps there's a pruning-hook among the other agricultural props on the stage.

FOLLOWING THE BOOK

Davis et fils are too adept in the arts of the theater to have followed the book too slavishly. They have taken the emotional high points, arranged them in a rising sequence, and the result is drama. The materials of this drama are not the ordinary stock in trade with which popular successes are stuffed. Theoretically there is no conflict—the real drama is the development of O-Lan's character through her marriage to Wang Lung. This female slave has the brains of the family. She makes him what he becomes. And then she is discarded and neglected until she comes into her own again through death.

Nazimova is very impressive and convincing in her role, not only by a remarkable makeup, but even more by the angularity of her movements, even the angularity of her speech. She seems to be a part of the soil, something that has grown out in the fields, something just rooted out of the earth.

In few words, Nazimova has created another great role.

SOME OF THE HIGH SPOTS

Other players besides Nazimova and Henry Travers touch high points of sincerity and truth. Kate Morgan as the Ancient Mistress of the House of Hwang has one scene of mordant power in the first act. Clyde Franklin as the neighbor Ching does a subdued piece of realism that is very touching at times. Marjorie Wood as the slave Cuckoo has a few strident moments of drama.

But it's Nazimova, Henry Travers, the epic quality of the dramatization, and the abundant local color provided by Mrs. Buck, and translated by Philip Moeller and Lee Simonson into this production that made it a memorable opening night.

Deep tragedy, filled with grief and suffering, stark as anything by Tolstoy or Hauptmann, "The Good Earth" is profoundly affecting and very well played. It shows us the antipodes and widens our horizon of human sympathy.

Coming

Thurston Hall will come to the Nixon next Monday to appear in "The Pure in Heart," a Theater Guild production. He formerly played stock here.

Syria's Variety In Mosque Good Entertainment

By JAMES J. MOORE

Hilarity reigns supreme this week at the Syria Mosque. The reason is a sizzling and highly entertaining vaudeville show, sailing gaily along under the title of Syria's Varieties.

High-grade dancers, comedians and musicians have been gathered for this amusing evening revue and nothing has been left undone to make it a thoroughly enjoyable program. From the opening number until the closing act there's not a dull moment in the three-hour bill of real entertainment.

Undoubtedly Freddie Stritt, master of ceremonies, "steals the show." He is a mirthquake, to put it short. Freddie had a chance to exhibit his showmanship last night when one of the acts was tardy. He had to gag for time and did it so well nobody knew the difference.

To enumerate a few of the hits on the program: The Perry twins and Ethlyn Terris, the 12 dancing debutantes, the Gold Dust Twins, Joe Delier & Co., the six young China stars and Tex Morrisey with her idiotic mule.

Then there is Mahnac, who tells all you want to know. She answered many love questions, said that Roosevelt would be the next President of the United States and predicted that beer is on the way back. The act is presented in a novel way.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Pest

IF THIS story sounds a bit cockeyed, it will sound a bit cockeyed, and don't come running to me with any complaints. In fact, I hereby warn you, in all fairness, that it's one of the dizziest yarns that ever came my way. And that, you will admit, covers a multitude of columns.

It was related to me in one of the swankiest dairies of the East Fifties. Now this was one of those novel spots where you can pay the British war debt in one night without getting an edge on. And yet the waiters hold their noses so high that if it ever rained, they'd drown . . .

What I was doing there in the first place, I haven't the faintest idea. But the bartender had been out in back mixing some gin and cider and pouring it into champagne bottles, when the pest edged up to me. He was tall and broad and he had a face that looked as though it had been caught in a revolving door recently.

He slapped me on the back most heartily.

"Well, well, well," he yipped. "If it isn't old man column himself. What are you doing here, pally? I say, what are you doing here?"

I turned his way slowly.

"I was just beginning to wonder," I replied vaguely.

"Say," he said suddenly, "could you use a good story?"

Now when I hear those lovely words, I can forgive even a pest. So I promptly crawled into his vest pocket and said, "Sure."

"Well," he said, "I'll tell you a swell yarn about revenge, fella. But first I want to ask you something. Do you know Sidney Wilkens?"

Now what's in a name? Besides, there was that story. So—

"Do I know Sidney Wilkens?" I said. "Of course I know Sidney Wilkens. Good old Sid. Sure I know Sid."

"Well," he replied, "I'm Sidney Wilkens!"

"Whaddya know," I retorted with typical Hellinger wit. "How time does change a man. But the story. "The Revenge."

"I'm coming to that, Mr. Winchell," he continued. "Just a minute. The story concerns myself and Joe Black. You know Joe, don't you?"

He wasn't going to catch me the second time.

"Certainly," I murmured. "That's you, too. Am I right?"

"You are not," he replied affably. "Joe Black was my partner in the importing business. A greater guy never lived.

"Joe and I," he went on, "were pals since we were kids. When we got old enough, we started a little business together and I don't mind telling you we prospered. We vowed never to marry, for fear it would split our partnership and friendship. You can understand that."

"To be sure," I agreed. I could also understand the end of the story.

"Well," he continued, "things went well until just before the war. It was about that time that I met Nellie."

"I was afraid of that," I ventured.

"Well, Nellie and I fell in love. It couldn't be helped. It was one of those wild, uncontrollable, passionate loves that are stopped by neither mountains nor mortgages. We went gaga."

Period. New paragraph.

"I tried to keep it from Joe, but after we were married, I guess my happiness gave me away. He guessed what happened."

Mr. Wilkens stopped to finish my bottle.

"From that point onward, he acted rather coolly toward me. Business went on as before, but something was lacking. We weren't the friends we once were. Yet, somehow, I didn't care. I had a gorgeous home, a lovely wife—"

"—And a baby," I concluded.

"Say!" Wilkens expostulated. "Who's telling this story? We had no baby."

"Pardon," I said. "My error. I must be thinking of another column."

He smiled in friendly fashion.

"You fellows are all alike. Always impatient. Always jumping ahead. Bartender," he said, turning to the dairy maid, "another bottle of champagne for Mr. Winchell."

I nodded.

"Yeah," I said. "And charge it to Winchell."

"Now," he said, "getting back to the story. Where was I? Oh, yes. I had a gorgeous home, a wife, and a car. And when we were married two years, Joe Black ran off. Absconded. Can you beat it?"

"You mean," I said, "that your pal took the firm's money and left town?"

"Exactly. That dirty, low down heel ran away with everything but the bills. He left them for me. It was at that moment, when I saw how matters stood, that I determined to be revenged. A Wilkens never forgets, you know."

"I had imagined as much," I murmured.

"Well, I sold the house and car and put my wife in storage with my mother-in-law, and followed Joe Black. The first clue I got was in Buenos Aires. The police there said that he had left an hour before for Port Said.

"No sooner Said than done. So I hopped the next boat, and when I reached Port Said I found that he had crossed into India. I followed."

"Skip all that," I begged. "And tell me when you caught up with him."

He finished the bottle, and ordered another.

"In short," he continued, "I followed him all over the world. I used the fastest boats, trains and planes trying to catch up with him, but I couldn't.

"After one solid year of chasing that mug, I gave up. I took a slow steamer home and tried to figure out a way of building up the business again.

"Arriving in New York, I first got myself carefully plastered before going to my mother-in-law's house. Imagine my surprise when I walked in and found my wife in the arms of another man!"

"Horrible," I said.

"Well, sir, I fixed her all right. I sued for divorce immediately, and named her sweetheart as correspondent. My case was clear. I won the divorce. And here I am."

I passed a weary hand over my forehead. This bird was slowly driving me daffy. I had to think a moment before I could even remember what story he had started out to tell.

"But," I murmured, "What about this guy Joe Black? Didn't you ever see him again? Is that the way your story ends? What about your revenge?"

"My revenge?" he whispered. "My revenge? Oh, you mean my revenge. Well, I got that all right. That was simple."

"How?" I begged, all a tremble.

"I just told you," he yelped. "The guy I found with my wife was Joe Black. And the poor simp married her!" . . .

Romance Beats Pride In the Cinema

Old-fashioned romance rules at the Avenue Cinema this week, in a film comedy called "Das Lied Ist Aus" (The Song Is Finished). Liane Haid is an opera singer who falls in love with the returned officer whom she has engaged as her secretary after he insulted her by walking out of a cafe while she was singing her big number. Since the soldier-secretary is Willy Forst, they were sure to be singing a duet before the end of the picture.

Of course, there is another woman, of whom Liane is jealous until she finds out she is the grandmother of the ex-officer. And, of course, he will not declare his love for the brilliant artiste, even though she dictates a love letter to himself. All this is necessary to make the romance come out true.

And there is a Walt Disney cartoon, "The Spider and the Fly," that is the most ingenious and spirited yet. It is more thrilling than the recent war.

Misses Carroll, Dee To Be Featured

Nancy Carroll and Frances Dee will be featured in "The Good Thing," Lawrence Hazard's play. Norman Taurog, director of "The Phantom President," will have "The Good Thing" as his next assignment. Casting is expected to be completed within a few days for this romantic drama of plots and counterplots, all of which hinge on a horse race that provides the climax.

Lively Comedy Gives Vail Players In Pitt Good Impetus

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

What adverb shall we say describes how the Edwin Vail Players opened in the Pitt last night? "Auspiciously?" Hum! True but trite. Yet it does denote an occasion carrying promise of success, and certainly the debut of the company Mr. Vail has assembled to represent Pittsburgh's newest theatrical enterprise fairly exuded a promise—a pledge—that it will not fall short of anything that may be expected of a stock company, which always labors under handicaps. So trite though it may be, auspiciously is fitting—let it stand. For the company did more than was expected of it in "The Bride the Sun Shines On," a modern comedy by William Cotton in which Dorothy Gish appeared last season in New York.

We can dismiss the play in a few words. It is a lively comedy. It is almost farcical at times. It is frenzied and emotional, with a satisfactory first act, a strong second act, and a third that isn't so strong. Had that act been better it is probable we should have had to pay more to see it, as a road show, or have waited longer to see it in stock. It has a double triangle theme that works out amusingly if not entirely squarely and it gives all principal members of the company a chance to shine.

MISS BOOTH COMEDIENNE

You will love Shirley Booth, who is small and blonde and possessed of talent for comedy that is another example of the adage that good goods come in small packages. Her work in this play, in which she portrays a girl about to be married to one when she really loves another, proclaims her to be an actress of some emotional range, for she is called upon to be humorously tearful, lugubriously happy, and to be passionate in her denunciation and renunciation of the man of her heart who waited until a few minutes before the time set for her marriage to another to tell her of his love.

Miss Booth made good in a big way.

AUDIENCE IMPRESSED

In only slightly less degree, because he had less opportunity, did Alden Chase, leading man, impress the audience. His characterization of a young man who withheld too long a confession of his feelings because he considered the girl a sort of petulant child, instead of a woman, had a certain satisfying grace that promises to make him popular as audiences become better acquainted with him.

Other members of the company, all of whom gave satisfactory performance, included Ella Ethridge, Sam Flint, Kathryn Meskyl, Baker Moore, Sam T. Reed, Sylvia Manners, Henry Richards, Grayce Thorson, Roy Elkins, Regis Joyce, France Burrage and Charles Webster.

Six local girls who appeared as bridesmaids, gushing appropriately, are Olivia Kelly, Verne Finlayson, Ruth White, Mercedes Hoffman, Eve Schaub and Nancy Leslie.

'Midnight Ramblers' Academy Bill

"Midnight Ramblers" is the first road show of the season in the Academy. It is in two acts and 36 scenes, with Hap Freyer and Eddie Kaplin as the head funnymen. In addition to the regular road show, the Academy Stock Burlesque Company also is playing this week. Mildred Cozierre, singing "St. Louis Blues" had two encores. The "Four Merrymakers," of two women and two men, sang, offered bits of comedy. As a special feature, 10 usherettes performed on the illuminated runway.

When Too Much Food . . . Too Much Tobacco

"GETS" YOU

Just try this . . . Results will Surprise You

How by Doing One Simple Thing, You Can Minimize the After-Effects of Too Much Food . . . Too Much Tobacco . . . To a Remarkable Degree

Modern science now throws a new light on the problem of overindulgence—eating too much, smoking too much, drinking unwisely. A way that millions are learning. And millions doing.

What you do is this:

"TAKE—2 tablespoons of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water before bed."

"TAKE—2 tablespoons of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water with the juice of a WHOLE ORANGE when you get up."

Or take six Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets the same way, which give an equivalent amount of Milk of Magnesia, for each Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablet equals one teaspoonful of the liquid Milk of Magnesia.

Tomorrow you'll feel great. Science says it is the Quickest, Simplest and Easiest way to overcome the effects of too much smoking, eating, drinking known.

How It Works

Results are quick and sure because this small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts to alkalize the system. And an alkalized system is largely impervious to the bad after-effects of too much smoking or other overindulgence.

It sweetens and purifies your stomach. Banishes the acid headache, sour stomach, deadly depression that mark the price of immoderations.

Take Every Night

Every person who smokes excessively should know this. And never go to bed without taking this minute quantity of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia before. And every person who lives too well—overindulges—should never forget it.

Try it—once. Feel how clear your head feels the next day—how free you are from head-dullness and depression. You will be amazed.

When you buy, be sure you get the REAL article—Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Always ask for it by the name Phillips—for all "milk of magnesia" is not alike in effect. So take care to see you get Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—the kind doctors endorse; judged the most powerful neutralizer of stomach acids known.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Gossip About Plays and Players—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Pure In Heart," second Theater Guild production of the season, likewise the second play of the local subscription season of the American Theater Society, will come to the Nixon next Monday. The public sale of seats will open Thursday. Described as an "ironic comedy," this new play, by John Howard Lawson, will be presented by a company including June Walker and Howard Thurston, both seen here previously in Guild plays, and Osgood Perkins. "The Pure In Heart" is having its premiere in Baltimore this week. Theresa Helburn, head of the Guild, directed it.

* * *

The next attraction in the Pitt will be "As Husbands Go," giving the Edwin Vail Players another modern comedy for their second play. This play, although not a Theater Guild production, was sponsored by that organization as part of its last subscription season and proved to be one of the most satisfying offerings of the series here. It is by Rachel Crothers, whose dramatic touch is so sure that she seldom misses. Her new comedy, "When Ladies Meet," tried out during the summer in Dennis, Mass., will have its New York premiere tonight.

* * *

The first of a series of lectures on "The Spirit of the Time in Modern Drama" will be given in the College Club, 143 North Craig street, tonight. The speaker will be Elmer Kenyon, dean of the school of drama at Tech. Other talks in the series will be given on succeeding Tuesday evenings up to and including November 8.

"Mademoiselle," produced by William A. Brady; "The Man with a Load of Mischief," produced by the New York Repertory Company, and "The Late Christopher Bean," a Gilbert Miller production, have been approved for tours under the banner of the American Theater Society. The first named, by Jacques Deval, will feature Grace George and Alice Brady, wife and daughter, respectively, of the producer, and E. A. Matthews. Jane Crowl will head the cast of "The Man with a Load of Mischief," while Pauline Lord will play the lead in "The Late Christopher Bean," an adaptation from the French made by Sidney Howard.

JAILED WITNESS CHARGES PLOT; MAN HELD

Pending investigation of charges that he "kidnaped" a witness in a county court liquor case, Joseph J. Stevens, 211 Attica street, was free on $1,000 bail today. Before Alderman Thomas Geary, informations charging him with impersonating an officer were filed by county detectives.

Andrew Copeland, of Rural Ridge, identified Stevens, detectives said, as the man who had him arrested and held in Carnegie on trumped up charges so that he could not testify against John Andrew and Nicholas Durabis, both of Indianola.

The two Indianola men, Copeland said, were discharged when arraigned on liquor charges because he was "framed" by Stevens, who, he declared, got him several drinks and "planted" a bottle of liquor in his pocket.

Copeland told detectives a constable arrested him for disorderly conduct and for possession of liquor after he was slugged by Stevens in a restaurant.

After being held in jail in Carnegie all night, Copeland said, he was taken before Justice of the Peace A. S. Keith, of Imperial. After the hearing, Copeland said, he was too late for the Stevens hearing.

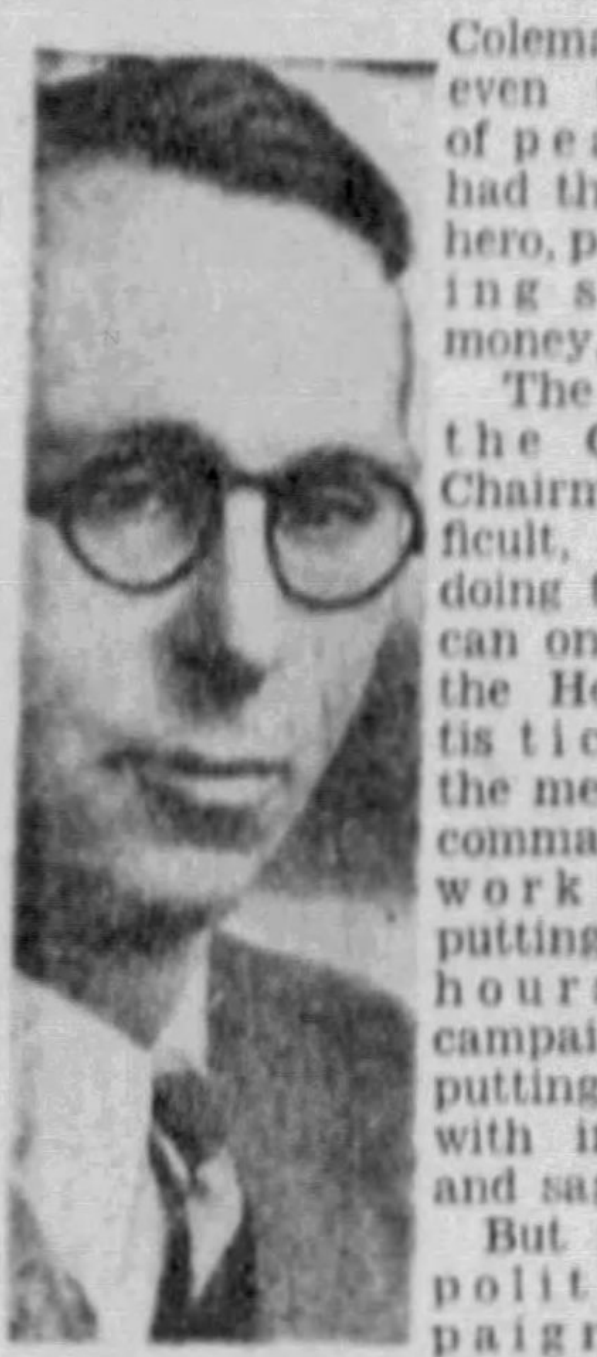
DOCTORS SCORE DRY LAW IN CONVENTION HERE

POLITICS

G. O. P. County Chief's Position Difficult.

By MARK SHIELDS

In the political drama of this year Republican County Chairman is representative of the boy who stood on the burning deck, alone among the flames. Indeed, Mr. Coleman has not even the solace of peanuts, as had the youthful hero, peanuts being slang for money.



Mr. Shields

The position of the County Chairman is difficult, but he is doing the best he can on behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket with the means at his command. He is working hard, putting in long hours on the campaign, and putting them in with intelligence and sagacity.

But running a political campaign is not a one-man job, and the usual lieutenants are not rallying around this year. There are many reasons, outstanding being admitted strained relations between elements powerful in the County Committee and counter elements influential in the city administration. There are any number of men closely attached to the organization of Mayor Charles H. Kline who would shed no tears should the county organization, headed by Coleman, backed for the position by Senator James J. Coyne, be humiliated by losing the county this year to the Democratic candidate, Gov. Roosevelt.

This is the surface indication of the tenseness which grips local politics as a view is taken ahead to the mayoralty election of next year. The Mayor's associates do not wish to help build up prestige for an organization which next fall may be arrayed against them on behalf of some candidate for Mayor designated by Coyne.

* * *

Stories of Gloom Brought to Leaders

The ward chairmen this year, with a very few exceptions, are not striving diligently for Republican majorities. They, and even the exceptional among them who are working, bring to their leaders stories of gloom and despondency, tales that conditions are bad in their districts, that there is anti-Hoover sentiment in large quantities.

The same reports are brought in from a large number of boroughs and townships by the organization outposts there. And few who bear these dolorous messages appear to be much upset at the prospect. There is probably less interest among professional Republican politicians in the success of their national ticket this year as ever has been evidenced in an election in Allegheny County.

Election day is just five weeks off, and no headquarters have been opened by the Republicans. Indeed, the leaders will put off the location of elaborate staff rooms as long as possible. They fear the inrush of patriots looking for berths on the campaign payroll, and there isn't going to be the money to fill this demand.

* * *

Money Extremely Slow This Year

Money is extremely slow this year, not only for the local headquarters but as a contribution to the national cause. The Pittsburgh quota set by the Republican National Committee was $200,000, this to be collected by Col. Eric Fisher Wood, acting for W. L. Mellon, designated to take charge of collections in the western end of the state. That sum has not been forthcoming, according to reliable information.

Moneyed men to whom the hat has been passed have kept their hands in their pockets this year, some abruptly refusing to contribute anything. Time was when this would not have occurred, when the fear of the Mellon influence in state politics, if not love of the party, would have resulted in greater liberality.

It is all a very strange series of political incidents, and the result is that men conversant with politics look on the prospects here with dour forebodings. Outside estimates of the Hoover majority in Allegheny County are around 12,000, and there are some close to the game who contend that an excellent showing will have been made by Mr. Coleman if he gets even half that for Mr. Hoover. The truth is that the country chairman is not being given the assistance upon which a Republican county leader should be able to rely.

* * *

Efforts Made to Rally Young Republicans

With the oldsters of the party looking the other way, efforts are being made to rally the young Republicans. That was the purpose of the meeting last night in the William Penn Hotel, participated in by two young women and two young men from each senatorial district of the county, with Charles Carroll, state chairman of the Young Republicans, present to give them pep.

The Young Republican movement is being pushed all over the state, but there are some ill feelings and jealousies there as well as within the circle of veterans.

Just as there are individuals and groups within Allegheny County who would relish the humiliation of the county leadership, so are there groups in the state who would chortle at the discomfiture of State Cairman Edward Martin through a sender majority for Hoover—or none at all.

In all fairness, these leaders, county and state, are not being properly supported by men upon whom they should be able to lean. But politics is like that, and the game is not always played with every card on the table.

R. F. C. AID LOAN DISTRIBUTION PLANNED

Harris Calls Session; Action on Further Funds Awaited

The destitute of Allegheny County waited today for promised word from Washington that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had loaned an added $5,000,000 to Pennsylvania for relief purposes. The expected loan will, it was said, give back to Allegheny County funds taken from it by Gov. Pinchot for relief in other counties.

The needy had been told to expect action last Saturday. A postponed meeting indicated the loan would be made yesterday. Again today they hoped, but there was no definite indication of the loan being granted.

Meanwhile, State Senator Frank J. Harris announced a meeting at 2 p. m. today to discuss organizing to distribute Pittsburgh's share of the $100,000 of the first $2,500,000 R. F. C. loan which Gov. Pinchot ear-marked for milk for undernourished children.

President Marcus Aaron, of the school board; Maj. Philip Mathews, of the Allegheny County Emergency Association; John F. Casey, Jr., of the association, and others were to be asked to attend the meeting. Harris is chairman of the Allegheny County sub-committee of the State Emergency Relief Board, administrator of state and federal aid in Pennsylvania.

The meeting was expected to draw up an estimate of costs of administering milk in Pittsburgh. The estimate was to be given to Theodore B. Appel, of the State Health Department, who is authorized to approve or reject the plan.

Milk administration in the county will be directly under the Health Department.

POLITICAL FOES DEBATE RUM LAW HERE

Mrs. Carroll Miller Declares Prohibition Benefit Negative

What this country needs may be a good five-cent cigar, but Mrs. Carroll Miller thinks it's Roosevelt and no prohibition, and Whiting Williams thinks it's Hoover and prohibition.

Some two hundred intellectuals, teachers, clubwomen and society folk and three children of tender ages heard the two debate last night on "Resolved: That the Eighteenth Amendment Has Been Beneficial to the American People."

Mrs. Miller is a Democratic national committeewoman from Pittsburgh. Williams is representative of the prohibition group known as the Allied Forces, is an author and lecturer, a student of social reforms.

PROHIBITION AND PEACE

Of prohibition and the depression, Williams said:

"The absence of the saloon is one of the reasons for the astonishing calm and good feeling and patience among the workers during the depressions today. It is a great civic factor in lessening unrest."

Mrs. Miller didn't agree, so she asked.

"When haven't the American workers been patient? They never were rioters."

Williams said:

"The total excise taxes collected by American government from beer up the list of liquors for 10 years before the war was but $78,000,000, according to Prof. Carver."

Mrs. Miller answered:

"If we taxed according to the old idea of taxation—which was not high—the taxes would yield, altogether, $1,496,898,000 per year."

PERSONAL LIBERTY

The high point of Williams' argument was his declaration that personal liberty must end when the people take over the controls of machines. He declared:

"The American worker today enjoys a higher standard of living that workers in any other part of the world—because he enjoys control over more machines than any other workers in the world.

"Nobody in the world is going to allow the worker personal liberty if that means he can drive a machine while in an intoxicated condition."

Increase in crime and in arrests for drunkenness Mrs. Miller laid at the door of probihition, with other evils.

Waxing political, Williams said:

"I believe President Hoover is right. I think the Democratic plank is a New York made plank, while the Republican plank is one representative—not of Homestead or New York, but of all the country."

Quoth Mrs. Miller:

"I'm for Roosevelt."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 4.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Been reading lot of editorials and everything about what the world was going to do about Japan taking over Manchuria. Last December Floyd Gibbons and I flew from Japan to Mukden, Manchuria. At the hotel was gathered from newspapers all over the world about 20 star writers. Floyd asked 'em "What's going to happen here in Manchuria?"

Will Rogers

I will never forget their answer, it was so unanimous. They were all Far Eastern writers and knew what they were talking about. "Say, these Japanese are in here t stay, League of Nations, World Court, Kellogg pact, nine-power treaty, America, Russia, or anybody else, who's going to put 'em out?" Now you got the whole Manchurian problem right there. So you just as well quit talking about it, if you ain't going to take a gun with you. Land doesn't change hands by treaties. Land changes hands by arms.

Yours, WILL.

500-LB. BARREL CRASHES HOUSE

A barrel of tar, weighing 500 pounds, rolled 200 feet down a hillside from McNeil Place, Herron Hill, early today and crashed into a house at 3363 Monroe street, overlooking Bigelow boulevard, rudely awakening, but otherwise uninjuring, a mother, father, grandmother and seven children.

Mary Carnevale, 18, who slept in a room with her sister, Amelia, 16, and her grandmother, Mary Carnevale, 66, said:

"The barrel hit on the side of the house where we slept. We thought it was a bomb."

Dominic Carnevale, the father, his wife, Rose and the other children slept in other rooms.

Police said the barrel had been rolled from a garage in McNeil place.

ROUSED BY A BARREL!

Miss Mary Carnevale, 18, roused from her sleep when a "bomb" hit her home! The "bomb" was a barrel of tar that rolled 200 feet. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

Commissioners Take Care Of Kin on County Payroll

All Relatives Able Workers on Jobs, Say Officials

Members of the new Board of County Commissioners, as did their predecessors, have given relatives jobs on the county payrolls, or used their influence to obtain state jobs for them.

Circumstances have made it imperative in some cases, they explain. The relatives are capable and have been loyal to them during preceding years and preceding campaigns. And at present, when the reward of a job and a salary is most desired, they are being repaid. They have practiced nepotism fairly in ratio to the extent of their relationship.

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern has six on state, county and federal payrolls. His relationship is large. He gets $15,000 a year; a son, Charles, in the county treasurer's office, gets $200 a month. A nephew, Regis Conti, custodian in the Registration Commission, gets $150 a month. He has been there for eight years. Another, Dr. Eugene Conti, is the county medical director, a state position paying $3,000. Miss Madelaine Conti, a niece, is a clerk in the deed registry office at $178 a month, while John Hyde, half-brother of the Commissioner, is a mechanic in the county garage at $1.25 an hour.

A daughter, Miss Josephine McGovern, is a clerk in the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue at $125 a month. She obtained her position through civil service 12 years ago, and her position is remote from politics.

Commissioner McGovern explained he has installed capable employes who have worked loyally for years for his success. There are many more, he added, who could justifiably, by their past efforts, merit office in public service.

Commissioner William D. Mansfield likewise has relatives in public service. He holds two jobs, his membership in the State Senate, the salary of which he turns over to charity, and his $12,000 commissionership. A brother, Frank H. Mansfield, is assistant superintendent of maintenance for the State Highway Department at $2,100 a year. He formerly was a well-known contractor, and admittedly is very capable. Earl L. Farley, a brother-in-law, is driving a truck in South Park at $135 a month, and William B. Mansfield, a cousin, is a starter at South Park at 50 cents an hour. The last two, former railroaders, the Commissioner explained, are both capable men who needed jobs. They have every right to them, he feels.

Commissioner Cadwallader M. Barr has a limited relationship. His brother, Ralph, was recently appointed a member of the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes at $5,000 a year. The Commissioner, who gets $12,000, declared he did not vote on the appointment of his brother and feels that he could do better outside political office, but that his talents are very useful in public service.

Barr Tells of Fight Against Naming Of Brother

Commissioner Barr said:

"The only relative I have on the payroll is my brother. I did not want him appointed. He was picked by my colleagues over my protest. The papers give me credit for two relatives on the payroll. I would like to know who the other one is. I have never met him or her."

The Commissioners individually furnished the lists of their relatives upon request, as did Miss Rose Donahey, secretary to Commissioner McGovern. She gets $3,600 a year, while a sister, Miss Alma C. Donahey, for many years secretary of the Juvenile Detention Home, gets $125 a month. One brother, Daniel, at present is employed in the Registration Commission, doing temporary work at $5 a day.

PROTEST ROLES AS 'NATIONAL BARTENDERS'

State Group Also Fights Laymen's 'Meddling' With Profession

Prohibition, described as having made physicians the nation's bartenders for 12 years, today was condemned as a failure before the opening general convention session of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania in William Penn Hotel.

Dr. Charles Falkowsky, newly-installed president, of Scranton, and Dr. Albert H. Freiberg, of Cincinnati, both attacked legislation aimed to control personal behavior.

SCORES PROHIBITION

Dr. Falkowsky, in the president's address, charged:

"Eclipsing the economic problems involved in the coming election, is the question whether or not the license granted the members of our profession by a paternalistic government to act as bartenders shall be resubmitted to the voters for their decision. Both great parties after 12 years, during which the criminal element has almost become the ruling class, have suddenly concluded that this greatest of experiments, in controlling by law the customs and morals of our citizens and the therapeutic practice of our physicians, has been an utter failure."

DUBIOUS LEGISLATION

In eht same trend, Dr. Freiberg said:

"Enough has already occurred to make it plain that national legislation touching the personal behavior of our citizens is dubious both in wisdom and efficiency. The political, social and economic condition in the 48 states differ too greatly from one another to be easily controlled by national laws."

Dr. Falkowsky warned against the encroachment by welfare groups and the Legislature upon the practices of the medical profession. He urged the profession to take immediate leadership.

The warning was sounded as a special committee of the house of delegates considered a code for such regulations and to be presented to the delegates' group tomorrow.

PROTESTS 'MEDDLING'

Declaring the doctor's work peculiarly personal, Dr. Falkowsky charged:

"In this era of shifting economic tides, engulfing bureaucracy, regimentation of ideas, panaceas and short-cuts for everything, the practitioner of medicine must be ever on the lookout for those who would submerge him. Economists, sociologists, moralists, reformers, prohibitionists, politicians and misguided philanthropists are exerting every effort to impose upon us new rules for regulation, guidanc and recompense."

The practice of "so-called insurance companies of promoting contracts between hospitals and employes of industrial concerns" at a fixed annual premium was condemned.

While not advocating governmental aid, Dr. Falkowsky urged measures to assure payment for first-aid cases growing out of road accident cases. Organized medicine must take the lead in public health work, he said.

Legislators, seeking to please constituents, are apt to pass laws detrimental to the profession, Dr. Falkowsky said, warning the society to watch the next sessions of the Legislature and Congress. He cited the nonservice disability act for veterans as a political gesture that increases governmental expenses and diminishes the income of taxpaying physicians.

Aims at Squirrel, Kills Youth of 16

WEBSTER SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—While he sat cracking hickory nuts in the woods, Robert Heavner, 16, of French Creek, was shot to death yesterday when a squirrel ran down the grapevine and Joyce Schrader, a hunter, fired at it.

Bell Nearly Blind, Says Lawyer; Asks Fine Cut

Judge Frank P. Patterson reserved decision after listening yesterday to arguments on a petition for reduction of the $19,000 fine imposed six years ago on John A. Bell, Carnegie coal operator and banker, who was also sentenced to six and a half years in jail for embezzlement involving about $1,000,000.

Bell was paroled after one year, most of which was spent in Allegheny General Hospital. A bond of $25,000 was furnished by a security company to guarantee the fine and Bell's appearance when he took an appeal. The bonding company wants to be relieved of its bond.

Attorney O. K. Eaton presented the case for reduction or annullment of the fine. He said that Bell is now 77, broken in health because of a stroke, and nearly blind from a cataract, as well as financially unable to pay the fine.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and County Solicitor M. B. Lesher opposed the motion, Lesher being the spokesman. He cited court decisions to back up his argument.

'NUMBERS' RAID DOWNTOWN

Crusading county detectives, operating on complaints to Judge Frank P. Patterson, returned to the Downtown district today to raid the Victory Hat Cleaning and Shoe Shine parlor, Sixth avenue, near Wylie.

Four slot machines and paraphenalia used in the "number racket" were found, according to the officers, who said they arrested John Nelson as he was conducting a lottery in the back room. They are seeking Tom Pappas for questioning in connection with the machines, detectives said.

George Cohen, 4740 Liberty avenue, near the Osceola Public School, was released on $2,500 bail after detectives testified before Alderman Thomas Geary that they raided his establishment on complaint of school authorities and confiscated equipment used in the "numbers racket."

Joseph Drexler and Edward Ware, arrested at the Yacht Club, 5038 Broad street, each posted $2,500 bail before Geary after the detectives reported finding Canadian liquor and equipment used in race track betting. W. C. Baer, alleged proprietor of a club in Third avenue, also posted $2,500 bail.

County detectives today raided an alleged barroom on the first floor of 555 Larimer avenue. They reported seizing a small quantity of wine and arresting Joseph Zanbon who was held for court by Alderman Thomas M. Geary.

Slight Earthquake In Helena, Mont.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—A slight earthquake was felt here last night. No damage was reported.

Institution to Close Unless Needed Sum Is Raised

"Save the 'Y'" is the appeal being voiced today as preparations are completed for the $60,000 drive to be launched October 15 by the Y. M. & Y. W. H. A. The campaign will continue until the end of the month.

Following a meeting of team captains at the "Y" last night, it was said that unless $60,000 is raised the "Y" doors will be closed. Edgar Kaufmann, campaign chairman, said success must be made certain not only for the sake of the "Y," but also that the entire community morale be unaffected by the closing of the institution's doors.

Kaufmann also stressed the point that now, far more than ever before, there is a great need to keep the "Y" doors open for the sake of the unemployed and involuntary leisure class among young Jewish men and women. Dr. Phillip R. Goldstein, Jewish welfare head, who took part in last night's meeting, said:

> "Because the organization stands for the betterment of Jewish youth and gives the best expression to all Jewish activities in the community, the "Y" merits everybody's support."

Associated with Mr. Kaufmann are Maurice Falk, W. B. Klee, Herman Passamaneck, Leon Falk, Jr., and Samuel Kaufmann. The speakers' committee is composed of Leonard S. Levin, Anna X. Alpern, Isadore A. Bernstein, Dr. L. B. Bernstein, Louis Caplan, Alexander Cooper, Maurice R. Goldstein, Mrs. Leo L. Half, Nathan M. Katz, Frank R. S. Kaplan, Benjamin Lencher, Maurice Nernberg, Harold Obernauer, David Olbum, Jacob Shulgold, Leon Tolochko, Bessie Sack and A. Leo Weil, Jr.

AWAIT RULING ON ROUTE 15 DISPUTE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission today had before it for adjudication the complaint of a number of boroughs in Allegheny County against the Pittsburgh Railways Company, alleging poor service on Route 15.

At a final argument session yesterday, George E. Marcroft, Jr., counsel for Bellevue, West View, Avalon, Ben Avon, Emsworth boroughs and Ross Township, asked that the company be directed to furnish better service on Route 15. P. A. Pfleger, of Pittsburgh, counsel for the company, asserted that the company's revenues do not warrant better service on this line.

COMPLAINTS OF PATRONS

Marcroft said that no shelters have been erected for the public at points where passengers must transfer to Route 13 and 14 cars from Route 15, and that through service to Pittsburgh is furnished on Route 15 only during rush hours. He said that the company had shown only a small financial loss last year, but had estimated millions of dollars' loss this year, and based its action on this estimated loss. He said the company always has used this form of defense in all complaints in the past eight years.

DEFENSE OF RAILWAYS

Pfleger said that there has been no change in the service in peak hours and that Route 10 cars have been extended to operate over route 15 in non-peak hours so that the public is receiving adequate service. He said the company cannot afford to erect shelters at transfer points.

The argument was made before the new commission comprising Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman, and Commissioners S. Ray Shelby, of Uniontown; Samuel Walker, of Butler; George W. Woodruff, of Philadelphia; Frederick P. Gruneberg, of Philadelphia, and P. Stephen Stahlnecker, of Harrisburg.

DENTIST SEIZED IN TAXI FIGHT

Alleged to have threatened a taxicab driver and battled police for several minutes before he was subdued, Dr. F. C. McDivitts, dentist, was held today by Mt. Lebanon police, after he was arrested last night by Lieut. Ted Carrington.

Police said he refused to pay a cab bill and was threatening the driver when they arrived. During the battle, in which several neighbors and the cab driver took part, Lieut. Carrington was twice struck in the face, police said.

Man Held for Posing As Company Agent

Ben Santini, 54, of 1018 Locust street, was held for court, charged with false pretense and fraudulent conversion, today by Alderman Ray E. Schneider, on informations made by Max P. Herrmann, manager of the North Side branch, Singer Sewing Machine Company. Herrmann alleged that Santini, formerly an employe, posed as a company agent, obtained machines from persons who were behind in their payments and resold them.

HEARING SET FOR DOUGLAS

Council President John S. Herron today set Thursday, October 13, for a public hearing demanded by John Douglas, Jr., sand and gravel dealer, on his charges of collusion by city officials in charge of wharf frontage rental.

Douglas asked the hearing through his attorney, Walter F. Michael, in a communication studied by Council yesterday.

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang has verified the assertion that Douglas has been granted a lease for part of the wharf, in the name of an organization he represents. The lease has not yet been approved by Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Douglas declared he would prove collusion and show that the wharves are operated in violation of the law.

Director Lang and Chief Clerk Edward J. Foley, of the Bureau of City Property, have waived hearings for court on charges of conspiracy brought by Douglas several weeks ago.

Allegheny County's single pen of chickens in the annual state egg-laying contest at Harrisburg, which closed Friday, was back today with the grower, W. H. McNees, of Imperial, with second honors for largest average egg size during the 11-month period.

While definite results have not been announced, the McNees pen is expected to take twelfth place. The pen produced 2,146 eggs, earning 2,234 points. The eggs averaged 25 ounces per dozen. The standard is 24 ounces.

The county is represented by two entries in the second annual match which opened Saturday. Besides a new pen from McNees Farm, the Farmhill Farm, of Sewickley, owned by Mrs. Henry R. Rea, is entered.

DOUBLE-DECK WHARF PLAN OPPOSED

The Lang-Reppert plan of double-deck parking on the Allegheny River front, between Stanwix and Ninth streets today bore the disapproval of the City Planning Commission.

The commission voiced its attitude in a communication to Council signed by L. W. Monteverde, chairman, which advised that more attention be paid to improvements along the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, than a proposal for parking alone.

The commission voiced the opinion that such an outlay for parking facilities would not be justified by the resulting revenue.

ROADWAY URGED

Construction of a roadway along Duquesne way was recommended.

The commission further opposes the plan, devised by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, because its report does not meet the issue of whether the parking project would be on a commercial or non-commercial basis, or whether it would compete with private interests.

FAVOR ALTERNATE PLAN

The commission declared an alternate plan for a slope surface for parking would be much less costly than the double-deck ramp and would be more adaptable to further improvement of the river front.

The commission believes the plan not including the parking decks would be adaptable for insertion of a depressed two-way roadway in a 70-foot island, when the river wall and filled-in wharf is built, thus providing for through traffic to move along the Duquesne way area, without interruption at intersecting streets and bridges.

Council was to study the communicataion today.

CZAR PROPOSED FOR STORES

The furniture business needs a czar—like Judge Landis is in baseball—in order to pull it out of the slump, Arthur Kaufmann, general manager and vice president of the McCreery Company, told members of the Furniture Club yesterday at a luncheon in the William Penn Hotel.

He said:

"The furniture business should appoint a czar to correct its inherent faults.

"This idea of cutting each others head off is the bunk, and it doesn't make a red penny."

Kaufmann cited 10 reasons why the business is not as successful today as it should be, and then gave 10 ways those evils could be cured. He said there are too many gifts, too much of a drive for volume instead of profits, too much free service and meeting competition by slashing prices.

CHURCH FIGHTS GAS STATION

The right of a church to protection against erection nearby of a gasoline station, declared to interfere with church services, was argued before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court yesterday in the appeal of the Crystal Oil and Gas Company from an injunction granted in Cambria County restraining the building of a station in downtown Johnstown.

The Franklin Street Methodist Episcopal Church, the oldest in Johnstown, procured the injunction to prevent the proposed station being erected on an opposite corner. The lower court held the district was partly residential, the company contending it was commercial.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

WRIGLEY FOLLOWERS SCORE REAL TOUCHDOWN AT GAME

Game Incomplete Without Wrigley's Gum on Sideline.

By MISS MINT

We want a touchdown — we want a touchdown—how that crowd did yell. And Wrigley gum users certainly scored on Saturday. The dollar bills passed fast and furiously as I noted the Wrigley gum chewers during exciting moments of the game.

I met V. L. DONAHUE, 2229 Saranac Ave., as I was approaching gate 1. He promptly displayed his package of Wrigley's and received a dollar. "This is the first time I ever signed my 'John Henry' for anything so pleasant," he remarked. Fine, Mr. Donahue, may future signatures prove as profitable.

JOSEPH O'TOOLE, 3924 Nantasket St., told me that "The game wouldn't be the same without Wrigley's." Thanks, Joe.

Many others at the game and elsewhere received their dollar bills—among them were:

JOE ZATMAN, 5231 Forbes St.; BOB STERLING, 142 Ruth St.; SARA CRUM, 340 Melwood St.; LEO J. CROWLEY, 4 Dawson Courts; VIRGINIA WINKLER, 130 Clemmer Ave., Akron, O.; REGIS BONENBERGER, 621 Blanton St.; ESTHER LINDER, 3619 Parkview Ave.; DAVID BARTON, 226 N. Negley Ave.; CALVIN DARNELL, 3902 Nantasket St.; MRS. JULIA SHANKS, 3233 Dawson St.

Don't forget, everybody has the same chance. YOU may be stopped tomorrow. Be sure you are carrying a package of Wrigley's, then you may have one of these new, crackly, crisp dollar bills, too.

FATE OF CHIEF KEPT SECRET

More than 200 people who stood in the street in front of Sharpsburg Borough Building more than four hours last night went home without learning what disposition the Police Committee of Council made of the case of Police Chief Sam Fair, charged with attempted extortion. At the close of the meeting, President William Harris, of Council, announced the results would be announced at the next regular Council meeting on October 13.

Fair was charged by Ira Weichel, Main street store owner, with trying to "shake him down" for $10. Fair denied the charges.

Five witnesses, including a woman, were called into the hearing, held behind closed doors.

Weichel was notified he must appear before Alderman Frank T. Holleran, of Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, today for a hearing on a criminal libel charge preferred by Fair through his attorney, Joseph Rossi.

TUBERCULOSIS HITS GIRLS

Tuberculosis is striking hard at girls between 15 and 25 years, Dr. C. Howard Marcy, medical director of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh said today.

He made the statement in an appeal for clothing for patients of the league, declaring:

"We have never been required to so completely outfit our patients before. Tuberculosis patients spend much time out of doors and must be warmly clad."

The clothing need not be new, he added.

Of young women, he said:

"In the group, from 15 to 25, one out of every three girls who dies is a victim of tuberculosis."

A&P's 73rd ANNIVERSARY

1932

We are seventy three and we're celebrating. It's a great effort for us to be our age and not shout "Bargains-Bargains" from atop our counters. There are fifty-two weeks in a year and over twelve hundred items in an A&P grocery store. We've built our name and fame on our week-in and week-out low prices and on the quality of those 1200 or so food items. Of course we are proud of our accomplishments, but first of all we are in the business of keeping the price of good food low every week in the year.

PENNOCK IN CLASSICS 18 YEARS APART

Herb Pennock

A RECORD SET by Babe Adams when he pitched for the Pirates against the Senators in the baseball derby of 1925 was broken by Herb Pennock in the recent "worst" series. It was the mark for durability as measured by the length of time embraced in world series pitching service. Having starred in the classic of 1909 against the Tigers, Adams, when he worked the final inning of the fourth game against Washington in 1925, gained the distinction of being the only pitcher ever to have appeared in two world series as far apart as 16 years.

But Pennock now has Babe beaten by two seasons. As a member of the A's, Herb finished the final game of the 1914 series against the Braves for Bob Shawkey, so that when he appeared as a relief hurler for the Yankees in the third and fourth games this fall he stretched his record for world series service to cover a span of 18 years. Baseball probably will know very few slabmen still good enough to pitch world series ball 18 seasons after first appearing in the title stakes. Pennock's world series record is a standout from all angles. He has never lost a title game and in a total of 55 innings pitched has given only 39 hits and eight bases on balls.

FOLLOWING THE WORLD series, baseball interest around the major circuits now centers largely in the next move of Connie Mack. Fandom in general is waiting for news of further deals on top of the sale of Al Simmons, George Haas and Jimmy Dykes as evidence that Connie intends to break up his club again, as he did 18 years ago.

The dismantling of the Athletic machine on the heels of the 1914 season, after it had won four pennants and three world championships in five years, was the biggest wrecking job ever executed by any manager in the big show. When Mack had finished, hardly a trace of the once famous White Elephants of that period remained.

THE HUMILIATING ROUT suffered at the hands of the Braves in the world series of 1914, the first time any title classic ended in four games, virtually killed popular support of the A's in Philadelphia and also disgusted Connie with the performances of his noted players.

In addition, the Federal League agents were trying to induce several of the Athletics to jump, so that Mack decided to scrap his once invincible machine by selling his star players.

ON THAT OCCASION also, the White Sox figured in the first sale made by the veteran manager of the White Elephants. They bought Eddie Collins, then king of second basemen, for $50,000, and also paid $30,000 for Outfielder Eddie Murphy. Subsequently, Connie sold Home Run Baker to the Yankees for $37,500, and Pitcher Bob Shawkey went to the same club for $10,000. Shortstop Jack Barry, First Baseman Stuffy McInnis, and Pitchers Herb Pennock and Frank Wyckoff were turned over to the Red Sox for approximately $50,000. In due time Mack also disposed of Catcher Wally Schang, Bullet Joe Bush and Outfielders Rube Oldring and Amos Strunk for about $40,000 more. The result was that the A's dropped from first place to last in a single year, a record plunge for a pennant winner, and for the next seven seasons without a break they finished in the cellar, an all-time low in major league history.

George Haas

ONE REASON FOR the differences between Mack and the players with whom he is now parting was an annual wrangle about spring training. Simmons always insisted on training at Hot Springs instead of going to camp with the rest of the players.

George Haas echoes the dissatisfaction with the practice site of the A's in his comment on his recent sale. "This is a great break for me," he said. "I'll not have to train at Fort Myers. Besides, maybe the White Sox will get a few pitchers. And, who can tell, we may be in another world series."

WITH ALL DUE respect to the players' objections to Fort Myers as a training place, the record of the A's would appear to vindicate Mack's judgment in sticking to that spot for the annual spring work of his athletes.

In the last eight seasons, the Athletes have finished first three times, second four times and third once, indicating that there hardly could have been anything wrong with their physical preparation for the pennant races.

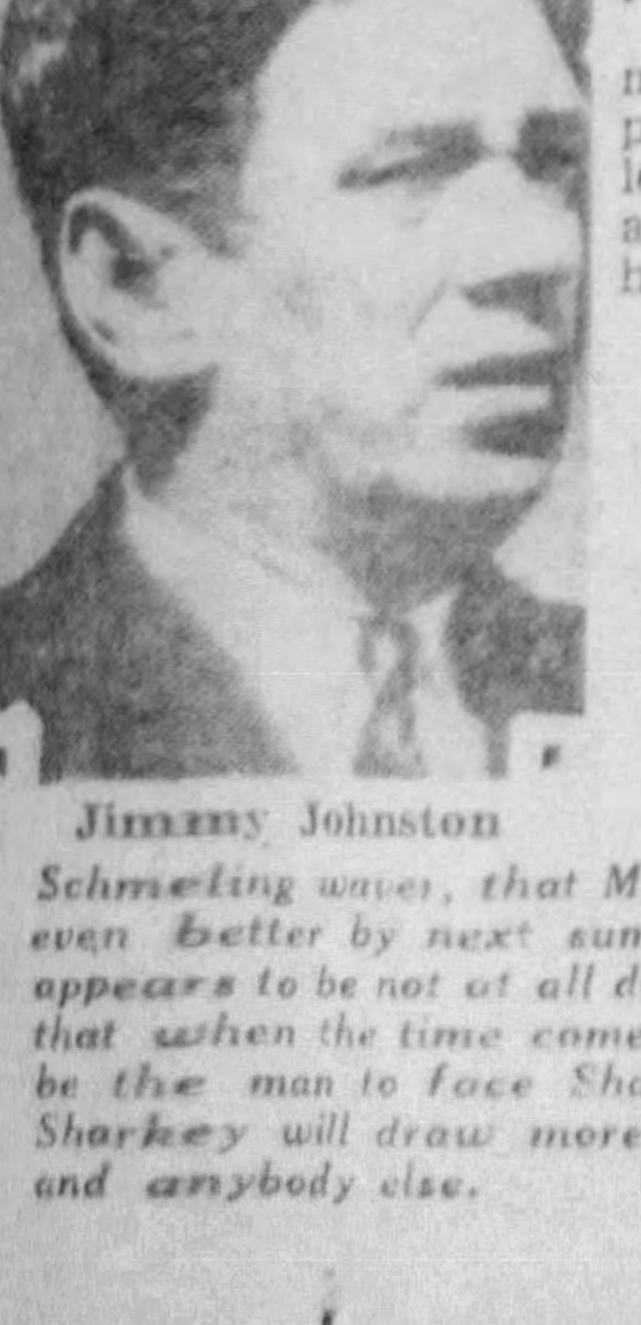
SOME OF THE first-string linemen on college football teams of 10 to 20 years ago would not have a chance of making first elevens of the present day, according to Swede Youngstrom, Dartmouth line coach and all-America guard in 1919. "You must remember," Youngstrom said, "that we never had much to think about when we played. The requirements of a line candidate in my day were a strong body and a sluggish mind. You needed to be strong and rough, so that you couldn't be pushed out of the way. It was an asset to be dumb, since the less you knew about the game the less likely you were to be pulled out of position by the various cross-bucks which were the only deceptive plays then used by an offensive team.

"JUST AS LONG as the opposition didn't push you off the field, you could hold your job, once you gained it. It wasn't necessary to be particularly fast. You never had to pull out of the line to interfere for the backs on off tackle plays. And you never had to worry about spinners, reverses and the like. If the other team completed a forward pass it wasn't your fault, for you were not responsible for any territory in the secondary.

"The present day lineman can use weight and strength, but he needs speed, agility and knowledge of the game more than anything else. A dumb guard or a dumb tackle nowadays can ruin a team's chances for victory just as completely as a dumb quarterback. On three-fourths of the offensive plays today a guard has to pull out of the line and interfere for the ball carrier. On some plays he takes out the end. On others he leads the play through the hole and blocks the fullback or the defensive halfback.

"AND ON THE DEFENSE he has to submarine when plays come directly at him, knife through the hole left by the opposition on flank plays, and pull out into the secondary on forward passes. He may be required to do three different things on three successive plays.

"I really can't imagine some of the linemen of my era ever mastering the art of play that these youngsters are forced to learn today. Many of the old guard probably will not agree with me, but that's my honest opinion."



Jimmy Johnston

THE REFUSAL OF Max Schmeling to sign for a winter fight has peeved Jimmy Johnston to such an extent that the Madison Square Garden matchmaker threatens to send some one else against Jack Sharkey next June unless the German does what he is asked to do. He says the man who wants the title match will have to play ball with the Garden people, and points out, in trying to make Schmeling waver, that Max Baer is red hot right now and may be even better by next summer. Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, appears to be not at all disturbed by Johnston's threats. He figures that when the time comes the public will demand that Schmeling be the man to face Sharkey, and contends that Schmeling and Sharkey will draw more than twice as much money as Sharkey and anybody else.

First place in the Class A championship race of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League will be at stake Saturday afternoon when Ambridge entertains New Brighton at Ambridge.

According to first averages computed under the point system, which governs the Class A and Class B races in Western Pennsylvania high schools, the two teams are deadlocked for the lead with point totals of 110.

Ambridge, coached by Moe Rubenstein, owns two victories over Class A opponents, having defeated Rochester, 7-0, and Mt. Lebanon, 18-0. New Brighton, coached by George Rourke, has one victory over a Class A opponent, Midland being the victim by a 9-0 score.

Butler High and Hurst (Mt. Pleasant Township) winner of the Class B crown last season, are deadlocked for second place, each showing 105 points. Averages computed under the point system follow:

CLASS A LEADERS

(Contenders must play seven Class A opponents to qualify for title consideration.)

Scholastic Notes

New Kensington will have a chance to take undisputed possession of first place in the High School AA Conference race Saturday by scoring a victory over Wilkinsburg at New Kensington. New Castle and McKeesport, tied with Ken High at present, do not play league games this week. Two other Double A attractions are listed Saturday. Clairton goes to Washington and Turtle Creek Union entertains Norwin.

Beaver Falls, with two victories scored in the Class A race, can add another 100 points to its total by defeating Ellwood City at Beaver Falls Saturday. Ellwood City, coached by Ganzy Benedict, already has taken two on the chin from Class A rivals. Butler and Midland turned the trick on the Benedict eleven.

Four attractive night duels will be played Friday. New Castle is host to Coraopolis. Midland is the opponent of Scott High. Canonsburg goes to Monessen and Charleroi plays Fayette City. A victory over Midland is worth 110 points to Scott High.

The feature attraction of the scholastic program for Friday afternoon is listed for the Mt. Lebanon High field, where Coach Leucht's eleven tangles with Miles Bryan, of McKees Rocks. McKees Rocks was the only team to defeat Mt. Lebanon last season and the Cochran road eleven is determined to turn the tables.

Two of the three games offered the followers of Section I in the City League should prove thrillers. South will find Taylor Allderdice a tough opponent at Langley Field, while Westinghouse is expected to give Peabody quite a tussle on the Silver Lakers' gridiron. Schenley should beat Fifth Avenue.

CUPID THROWS THREE YANKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—The world champion New York Yankees were back in town today for a few days before splitting up for the winter. Three members of the team planned marriage in the next few days, Sam Byrd with Rachael Smith, Birmingham, Ala.; Bill Dickey with Violet Arnold, Jackson Heights, and Vernon Gomez with June O'Dea, musical comedy actress.

The two Yankee "siege guns," Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig planned a little exercise in the open air as if their exertions since March were not enough. Ruth hoped to get in plenty of golf and Gehrig was looking forward to a series of fishing trips.

REDS' HURLER TO WED

OTTAWA, Ill., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Silas Kenneth Johnson, for six years pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, and Miss Doris Thompson will be married tomorrow on Johnson's birthday.

The couple will be married in Newark, near the bride's home at Norway, Ill. Johnson comes from Marseilles, Ill.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: BURIED ALIVE—H. A. Morrison embarked on this bizarre venture at Beach Lake, Pa., equipped with two blankets, electric light, speaking tubes and a supply of excelsior. He entered his "coffin," a casket 6 feet, 11 inches long by 30 inches high, and was interred alive on July 21, 1932. He did not emerge from his voluntary grave until he had been buried alive for 37 days.

TOMORROW: A YOUNG FATHER AT 102.

CUB PLAYERS DUE TO GO

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Already well scattered by blasts from New York Yankee guns, Chicago's Cubs today dispersed for the year, followed by rumors that several of them would be elsewhere next season.

Most of the vanquished athletes were on their way home or headed for hunting trips, to which many baseball players are addicted during the off season.

Reports, which lacked anything like official verification, said Burleigh Grimes, Bob Smith and Johnny Moore, veterans, and young Stanley Hack, probably would move on. They may be used as trading material in moves to obtain a starting lefthanded pitcher, and a batsman capable of hitting them frequently and long.

Neither Grimes nor Smith was much help as pitchers, and Moore's hitting was streaky. Hack showed promise and rates as good trading timber. Grimes plans to undergo another thorough examination, after which he may have his ailing appendix removed.

The haste in which the Yankees won the world championship was the reason for continued and unhappy business in the Cub offices. The clerical force today started giving back around $200,000 in refunds for fifth game tickets.

A. L. TO STRENGTHEN

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—It having been demonstrated in three conclusive, sanguinary engagements that the National League's baseball forces have no visible means of stopping the Yankees, the main task of doing something about this menace for 1933 now appears to devolve upon the American League rivals of the world champions.

Led by the Chicago White Sox, who presumably have opened up the war chest and thrown the key away, the magnates will spend at least a half-million dollars to make the next American League tighter and tougher for Joe McCarthy's Rough Riders. The Athletics, even though parting with Al Simmons and other stars, have strong replacements ready. Cleveland, Washington and even the riddled Red Sox will be considerably strengthened.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The Fraternal Order of the Don't Boost, But Knock Brethern wants to vote at least a scallion to the sports critics who finally picked one right in being almost unanimous in selecting the Yankees to win what was called the world series . . . The Brethern claim the boys must have shaken that one out of a hat.

Jim Londos is the heavyweight wrestling champion in Pennsylvania and Strangler Lewis in New York. . . . Now they'll never meet. . . . What are a few lemons to Babe Ruth, who has known the thrill of striking out 30 times in his 10 world series? . . . If they don't come to cheer you, they'll come to jeer, and that's what makes the turnstiles click so merrily. . . . The big league baseball moguls ought to take a lesson from this year's world series and sell all future series tickets on the single game basis, thus giving more fans a chance to see at least one game. . . . Baseball is supposed to be the people's pastime, so why not keep it that when the big stuff rolls around?

The Columbia-Princeton game next Saturday will mark the first meeting in football between these two institutions since 1905, and they first met 'way back in '84 . . . Former President Woodrow Wilson was the coach of the Princeton team that defeated the Lions, 85 to 0, in 1890 . . . Yale, held to a scoreless tie by Bates last Saturday, meets Chicago at New Haven this week-end, in a homecoming game for Old Man Stagg, former Yale star, who is engaging in his forty-first season of coaching this year.

Louis DiSantis, the Cleveland boxer, who looked so good in two bouts at Hickey Park, still is laid up with a bad hand . . . The local fans are pulling for Ted Yarosz to have a good night when he makes his New York debut against Eddie (Kid) Wolfe in the semi-final to the Benny Leonard-Jimmy McLarnin bout in Madison Square Garden, Friday night . . . We'll see next Saturday, when the Dukes tackle Pitt at the Stadium, whether or not Coach Elmer Layden has been holding back in the matter of his offense in the three games played so far.

Art Grahame, the Geneva quarterback, pulled a typical Howard Harpster play when he forward passed successfully instead of kicking from behind his goal line after being backed up by a punt in the Tech game at the Stadium last Saturday . . . You could see the play coming, but he got away with it, the pass carrying the ball out to the 29-yard line . . . Cooper, the tackle, was a bearcat on defense in the Geneva line and helped to ruin many a Carnegie play.—HARRY KECK.

FAVORED NET STARS WIN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 4.—Led by Wilmer Hines, of the University of North Carolina, favorites won their matches without greatly extending themselves in the opening singles matches yesterday of the fourth annual Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate lawn tennis championship.

Hines, the defending champion, brushed aside H. Rhodes, of the Greenbrier Military Institute, Lewisburg, W. Va., 6-0, 6-3.

In the only match to run three sets, Jack Norford, of Lynchburg College, defeated Ned Ragland, of the University of West Virginia, 6-1, 6-8, 6-1.

Stan Keck Named Aide at Dickinson

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Stanley Keck, of Greensburg, all-America tackle on Walter Camp's 1920 eleven, has joined another Princeton star to aid in whipping Dickinson College's 1932 team into shape for its opening game with Ursinus Saturday.

Keck, star Tiger tackle in 1919 and 1920, will coach the linemen, while George Bogar, Harrisburg, Princeton quarterback of two years ago, will handle the backfield. Both will assist Head Coach Joe McCormick.

TECH TO POLISH OFFENSIVE

That there is still plenty of polishing to do on Carnegie Tech's new football outfit was very evident in Saturday's opener with Geneva College. The coaching staff's pre-game estimate of their club ran exactly true. The line showed defensive powers as good as last year, but if Carnegie is to have an effective offense for her big games, it has still to show.

Ragged blocking, slow-forming interference and no clever running were the chief flaws discovered Saturday, and work started yesterday to brush up on those points. Individually, most of the players performed creditably, but as a team-unit, coherence was just not there. This was to have been expected, however, since the team that started against Geneva was together for just five days before the game.

Carnegie people are giving Harpster and Lovewell a world of credit for the sturdy and smart defense that they showed Saturday. In the face of Geneva's inspired playing they are well pleased with their single touchdown victory.

Bill Spisak, who ran like a scared deer at times, but tried to crawl up the back of his interference on other occasions, likely will definitely be stationed at left halfback, at least until Johnny Sayles has completely recovered from his injured legs.

Hopeful notes for Carnegie were sounded by the resumption of Hooks Sample of his great work last year; the splendid punting of Tesser and Mihm, the defensive play of Dutch Croft; the improved passing of Jones, who didn't make a bad fling all afternoon, and the brilliant all-around work of Red Stewart.

Sample usually beat his ends down field under punts Saturday, and, in the best condition of his career, plainly is set for a big season.

FIELD TRIALS CARDED

The Erie County Game and Fish Protective Association will hold its annual field day, skeet shoot and bait casting tournament at Bell's Antler Zoo, near Erie, next Saturday. Entries are being received by R. W. Swan, 354 West Twenty-first street, Erie, Pa.

HARRIERS TO MEET

The Pitt cross-country team will meet Westminster College in a dual meet over the Schenley Park Saturday. The Panthers have one of the best teams in their history.

SUTHERLAND GIVES TEAM LONG DRILL

By JESS CARVER

It bodes very ill, very ill indeed, for the Dukes, but the fact remains that Dr. Sutherland and his Pitt Panthers are taking the game with their city rivals in the Stadium Saturday like little Johnny takes his castor oil—seriously.

Jack Donohoe

From the way Coach Jock hammered at his victory and touchdown satiated Panthers yesterday, one would have thought he was getting 'em "up" for a Notre Dame or Carnegie Tech game. The Pitt mentor, who is not given to crying, but who also is not noted for gazing any too long on the rosy side of things, is afraid his Panthers will take themselves too serious after their rousing victory over West Virginia, start comparing scores and pick themselves to win. When such a condition is brought about on a college team, it is high time to take stock.

PANTHERS FAVORITES

The varsity that gamboled through a lengthy workout yesterday was the same that started against the Mountaineers. Capt. Paul (Bulldog) Reider and Joe Tormey remained out of action, their places being filled by Mike Sebastian and George Shotwell. Shotwell, a heady defensive player, looked mighty sweet in there at the snapper-back position Saturday. His passes were accurate and his charging and interfering of high standard.

Of course, there will have to be a lot of leg and arm busting and wholesale laying low of stars out at Pitt before the Dukes will enter Saturday's game as the favorites. You can't laugh off the difference between 40-to-0 and 3-to-0 victories. Granted that Mike Sebastian's early 56-yard dash for a touchdown demoralized the Mountaineers to such an extent that they were never able to pull themselves together, and that Warren Heller's 33-yard chase for the second score a few minutes later completed the rout, it is likely that the Dukes or any other major eleven might have walloped the Mountaineers as badly as did Pitt on Saturday. It looks like one of those days—when the boys couldn't help but score.

DUKES WORK HARD

Coaches Layden and Bach, of the Dukes, after watching Saturday's debacle in Morgantown, called their Dukes out for a special session Sunday afternoon. They had another long one yesterday and will work the boys plenty hard today, tomorrow and Thursday.

It will be necessary for the Night Riders (Afternoon Gallopers this week), to delve plenty deep into their sack of tricks. The Dukes do not have the power to place full dependence on thenr running attack against the big Pitt line. You can figure on there being plenty of forward passing, lateral passing and just plain passing Saturday.

John Donohoe, husky Duquesne tackle, who wound up with a leg injury in last Friday's game against Grove City, still is limping badly and is listed as a doubtful starter against Pitt. If he isn't able to be in there, his place will be taken by Steve Sinko, who performed right well against the Grovers.

Oh yes, youngsters will be admitted to the game for two-bits, 25 cents in money, marbles or chalk Saturday. The same sections used in previous games will be thrown open to the kids upon payment of a quarter.

The Tipoff

"It's a sight easier to watch one man than to watch 11. These Bobcats will be plenty tough, and if we can beat 'em, we'll be going some."

That was the way in which Coach Hank Day, new mentor at Wash-Jeff, looked forward to the game between his Presidents and West Virginia Wesleyan last week. Day refused to believe the Bobcats would be any softer with the great Cliff Battles out of the lineup. He was afraid of Beveridge, Bachtel and Hull, a classy array of backs, and of the 'Cats veteran line. And if Bob Deacle hadn't come through for him Saturday, his fears might have been well-founded.

Maybe they are not using him right or maybe Jim MacMurdo, Rip Collins and Ernie Pinckert are not clearing the way, but the fact remains that Battles hasn't been able to go for the Boston Braves in the National Professional Football League yet. Battles is playing left halfback for the Braves, with Pinckert at full and MacMurdo and Collins playing tackle and end, respectively, on the right side of the line.

Jimmy Rooney and his mates will do well to put in some good practice licks between now and next Wednesday, the date set for their clash with the Portsmouth eleven of the National Pro League. Portsmouth happens to be one of the toughest clubs in the league. Unless the locals are in good shape and ready to go, they'll take a swell kicking around.

If the local conference teams are smart, they'll follow the example of the big pro elevens and get down to real work. The success of professional football dates back to the exact minute when the pros quit playing hit or miss football and got down to business. This racket of hit-the-line-and-punt and hit-the-line-and-punt, with a pass or two thrown in, isn't going to draw the elusive shekels at the gate. The big money teams saw the light and are making some money now.

MARINES DEFEATED

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Gunners defeated the Quantico Marines, 18 to 6, here last night in the first football game of the season in St. Louis.

WARNER URGES 'SOFT PEDAL' FOR GRID COACHES

PLAYERS ALONE IMPORTANT, POP SAYS

By GLENN S. (POP) WARNER
Member All-America Board of Football
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

This is the season of the year when we football coaches are on the spot. Our names are seen frequently on the sporting pages and we are caricatured in cartoons. We are written and talked about, praised and criticised.

Pop Warner

Much of the criticism is undeserved, and the same may be said of the praise. After a victory in an important game the coach of the winning team receives entirely too much credit, and the players generally too little. The losing coach as a rule dare not appear in public for several days because he is made to feel that he is a failure or a back number.

The critics, the students and the alumni seem never to weigh the many important factors entering into the winning or losing of games. They do not stop to think about the difference there may be in the caliber of the material from which the coaches of the competing teams have to build their teams, and they cannot see why one coach's material should not be composed of just as big and brawny and experienced players as that of the other coach. They do not seem to care whether star players are gathered together in an institution by subsidization or other unethical methods which enables their coach to develop a winner.

CONDITIONS DIFFER

The losing team playing such an outfit may be composed of strictly amateur and truly representative students who are unsubsidized and playing the game just for fun, but the coach is expected to develop just as strong a team from such a bunch of boys as is the coach who brings in the ready-made stars or who has his organization gather them for him. This results in the coach and the institution, where athletics are conducted in a strictly ethical manner being penalized for being on the square, while the unethically recruited team and their coach profit by their, at least questionable methods, and receive undue praise instead of criticism. A man may be the best coach in the world and not turn out successful teams unless he has a 50-50 break with his rival coaches in the way of material. Coach Stagg, of Chicago, the dean of American coaches, is recognized by his contemporaries as one of the very best coaches in the country, but I have often heard coaches of the prominent mid-west teams say that he does not have a sporting chance to win many of his games because of a lack of material. They all recognize his ability.

GRID FATES FICKLE

Gil Dobio, after coaching nine years at Washington without a defeat, and after coaching successfully at the Navy, failed for several years to turn out winning teams at Cornell. The alumni tried hard to have him thrown out, but the athletic authorities at Cornell, watching him work and knowing the adverse conditions under which he labored, stood by him until he has brought Cornell to the front in football. He was just as good a coach during those losing years as he was when he was turning out winners at Washington and Annapolis, or as he is today when Cornell is a big factor on eastern gridirons.

A few years ago Illinois was one of the Big Ten Conference football leaders, having been brought to the front by the able coaching of Bob Zuppke. For the past year or two, Illinois has been near or at the bottom in the standings of Big Ten Conference teams, and yet there is no doubt in my mind that Zuppke is just as great a coach today as he was a few years ago when his team was at the top of the heap.

There is a tendency to overestimate the importance of coaches. They get too much criticism and they get too much credit. Their names are mentioned too much. This overemphasis of coaches is present here on the Pacific Coast much more than in other sections of the country where football is not taken quite so hysterically. Reading accounts of important games back East as reported in Eastern papers, the coaches of teams are seldom mentioned. The players and the teams and what they do in their games are featured, and not the coaches, and this is as it should be.

Uncle Nick Unsnarls Series Conclusions

By NICK ALTROCK
Baseball's Comedian

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 4.—In going over the 1932 world series with a hair brush and a fine-tooth comb, I have unsnarled the following conclusions:

1—The hero of the series was the guy that drew the shower baths for the Cubs' pitchers. He must have nearly suffocated from steam.

Nick Altrock

2—The series goat was the bird from Kansas City that waited in line nine days to buy the first bleacher ticket at the Yankee Stadium and then saw 30,000 empty seats when the opening game started.

3—The Yankees pounded the ball harder when actually playing than they did in batting practice. It was this strategy that lulled the Cubs into the sleep from which they never waked up.

PIPGRAS SETS RECORD

4—George Pipgras broke a record striking out five times in one game. George would make an excellent semaphore during the off-season.

5—From the nervousness he showed I thought Frank Crosetti instead of Lefty Gomez was going to be a bridegroom this week.

6—The Yanks get about $5,000 each for their world series cut while the Cubs average around $4,000. This still leaves the Chicago club ahead as each Cub took more than $1,000 worth of punishment.

7—The umpires nailed $2,000 apiece for umpiring just four games. That ain't bad money for carrying a whiskbroom in your hip pocket and jerking your thumb a couple of times.

8—Ruth and Gehrig put on the greatest bombardment since the battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac.

9—I don't know where the experts got the idea the Wrigley pitching staff had strength unless the Cub pitchers all chew garlic.

MAY CUT TEAM

11—Any time the Cubs' management wants to practice economy at Wrigley Field, it can cut the lineup to eight men and let the first baseman also play right field.

12—My statistics show the Yankees have lost more games to Cavannah, Mobile and East Burlap on their spring training trips than they have to National League clubs in world series.

13—This was the first world series when Graham McNamee didn't last the full nine innings. In fact, Graham's part in the proceedings was so brief he would have got a better break just announcing the signals.

14—Rogers Hornsby must have had an extra plait put in his sleeve so he could laugh up it when the results came in.

UP TO SENATORS

15—With Connie Mack breaking up the A's and selling them in sample lots, I don't know who is going to try and stop the Yankees next year except our Washington club. And gosh, how we dread it!

In conclusion I wish to say to all my admirers that this was the best world series Uncle Nick ever ate himself through and I have 12 napkin rings as souvenirs of the occasion.

WAR SECRETARY LAUDS SHOOT

By LIEUT.-COL. JESS KRUEGER
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The twelfth annual competition in the National Rifle Trophy matches for the William Randolph Hearst trophies was set in motion today by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley. As in previous years, the competition will be under the direct supervision of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding general of the Sixth Corps Area located in Chicago.

More than 500 teams, representing practically every educational institution in the country having a cadet corps, participated last year. The matches are considered among the most important training activities of the reserve officer units.

Secretary Hurley sent the following letter:

"It is a great pleasure to inform you that instructions have just been issued for the department's participation in the Hearst trophy matches as in previous years.

"Unquestionably these matches have been of great value in stimulating interest in rifle marksmanship and they have contributed materially to the maintenance of our national defense. The department's cooperation is assured for the coming year and you may count on every possible assistance."

These matches have increased in popularity since their inception in 1922. In that year 42 teams participated, while 515 teams took part in the 1932 shoot. They have become one of the major activities conducted under War Department authority.

Col. A. V. P. Anderson, R. O. T. C. officer for the Sixth Corps Area, will check all targets and direct the details of the match for Gen. Parker.

Record firing may be started at any time after February 1, but it must be completed by April 8, 1933.

M'GRAW DENIES CLUB DEAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—If a National League team is to be operated in Montreal next season, John McGraw knows nothing about it. And so far as could be ascertained today, neither did anyone else.

Commenting on reports, current at Montreal, that he would head an organization seeking transfer of a National League franchise to the Canadian city, McGraw said:

"I am not interested in any deal placing a National League club in Montreal or anywhere else. There is no basis for such a report."

As the tale was told in Montreal, McGraw and some unnamed associates were seeking to purchase one of the league's franchises with the idea of moving it across the border. Mentioned in connection with this yarn were the St. Louis Cardinals, but President Sam Breadon promptly announced the Cardinals were not for sale.

Another who knew "absolutely nothing" about the reports was J. Ernest Savard, president of the Montreal Royals, of the International League. Presumably the Royals' new plant would have been the basis for operations should a National League franchise be transferred to Montreal.

MACK TO KEEP REMAINDER OF CLUB INTACT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced today that no player at present with the club will be sold or traded to a major league club. This policy, he said, holds for this winter and the season of 1933.

When Mack announced last week that he had sold Al Simmons, Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes to the Chicago Cubs, he said he would make a further announcement at Shibe Park two days after the world series ended.

In stating his policy, the veteran manager also said that, at the end of 1933, if he desires to make a trade or sell, no player will go to any of the first five clubs in the American League.

Asked why he disposed of Simmons, Haas and Dykes, Mack said financial condition "in a way" were a factor.

Gopher Gridder's Condition Critical

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Myron Ubl, 21, Minnesota halfback on whom Coach Bernie Bierman planned to depend for considerable first string duty this fall, remained in serious condition at a hospital today.

Ubl suffered a chest bone fracture in football practice. Pneumonia followed and late last week pus gathered near his lungs, necessitating insertion of draining tubes.

Physicians said recovery was not certain and that Ubl, a Minneapolis youth, would not play football this year. He was a letter winner as a sophomore last year.

Cut 22 ways, the winning players will receive $788.54 each and the losers $525.69.

WEST VIEW MAY GET NEW TEAM

FORMER STARS OF DUQUESNE IN LINEUP

By TOM BIRKS

When Business Manager Buck Schulties, of West View, takes his club to New Kensington one week from tomorrow to meet the Dan Burns gridders in a West Penn Conference game, it is possible that the lineup will show a preponderance of former Duquesne University stars.

Yesterday, when the news was flashed that the Erie Pros had folded up, steps were taken to secure the team to represent West View.

Playing as the Erie Pros, the local stars won two games this fall, defeating Akron and Lorain. Benedict, Ferrare, Devinney, Kovalcheck, Silverstein, Amann, Trambley, Todd and Murphy represent a classy array of ball players. Buff Donnelli is the coach.

MEET BURNS NEXT

West View is not scheduled to play until the Burns game. The East Liberty Papales appear at West View the following Sunday. If the new club is secured and plans for its representing West View are completed, this will give Schulties plenty of time to get things into ship-shape condition. The former Duquesne stars, well known hereabouts, should prove real drawing cards, and aided by the presence in the lineup of Fred Pusch, former Grove City fullback, and Maglisceau, former Geneva tackle star, should be a threat to other Conference elevens.

The Burns eleven meets the Papales at Greenlee Field Thursday night. Local fans will see a crack outfit led by Stanley Berkman, former Thiel College ace. The team has a powerful and well-drilled line and an array of hard-hitting and speedy backs.

Sunday, the McKeesport Olympics visit Greenlee Field for a clash with the Rooneys, as East Liberty invades Bellaire.

ROONEYS CARD GAME

One game is scheduled for tomorrow evening. At Greenlee Field, the Christy Park club is booked for a non-league game with the Rooneys. It is evident that Manager Art Rooney is taking the game with the Portsmouth, O., professional club seriously. This game is scheduled for next Wednesday, and it will mark the first appearance of a member of the National Professional League here.

At Tarentum, Thursday, the Etna Sycamores meet Tarentum.

O. S. U. LINEUP REVAMPED

COLUMBUS, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Coach Sam Willaman, of Ohio State, will have a revamped grid squad when the Buckeyes meet Indiana Saturday in their first Big Ten game of the season. Feeling there is room for improvement over the showing made in last week's game with Ohio Wesleyan, Willaman yesterday considered various shifts in the lineup.

Big Ten Briefs

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Although Assistant Coach Pat Hanley brought back tales of tremendous Michigan power, Northwestern's Wildcats expressed confidence that they will defeat the Wolverines at Ann Arbor Saturday.

The injured stars, Rentner, Potter, Olson and Fencl, all were in uniform yesterday, and all but Potter participated in a long dummy scrimmage on offense. Olson suffered a severe cut over his left eye against Missouri Saturday, but will be in action unless further misfortune overtakes him.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—A steady rain failed to halt the Wisconsin football squad yesterday as it began preparing for the game against Iowa. Coach Clarence Spears gave the second string line an intensive workout on offense, apparently dissatisfied with the running attack displayed by the Badgers against Marquette.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Michigan gridders were let off with a light workout yesterday as a reward for their impressive victory over Michigan State in the season's opener. Coach Harry Kipke found little to criticise in the play of his veteran backs and green line, but reminded the boys that Northwestern's Wildcats will present a much better pass defense than the Spartans.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Illinois gained two experienced football players yesterday but suffered the loss, probably for two weeks, of Fred Frink, star end. Cliff Hyink and Hunter Russell reported after overcoming scholastic difficulties. Frink suffered a torn ligament in Saturday's exercises and will be given plenty of time for recovery.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Complete shakeup of the Indiana varsity lineup, and especially of the line, was in the offing today, as coaches expressed dissatisfaction with performances in Saturday's opener. Line Coach Butch Nowack set about to patch up the holes found so frequently by Ohio University ball-carriers. The squad emerged from the game with no serious injuries.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—With only a short practice week before the Minnesota game, Coach Noble Kizer spent half an hour yesterday brushing up on plays not used in Saturday's opener. A second-string team was sent into action against the freshmen, but Craig was the only back able to gain ground consistently.

McCarthy to Get Pay Boost, Report

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—The world baseball champions may have the highest-priced manager in the history of baseball, it was reported today.

According to word passed about today, Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Yankees, is to receive a three-year contract at $50,000 a year.

McCarthy is now receiving about $30,000, but it was said Col. Ruppert, owner of the Yanks, intended to reward him with a huge boost in his new contract.

Coucci Suspended For Foul Riding

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Charged with foul riding in the fourth race, Apprentice Jockey Sylvia Coucci yesterday was suspended by the track stewards for the remainder of the Laurel meeting and his case was referred to the Maryland Racing Commission.

Coucci was up on Charles Moss' Lucky Racket and was charged with having grabbed the saddle cloth of Chleodair while going into the back-stretch. Coucci told the stewards he grabbed Chleodair's saddle cloth when his mount was in close quarters.

The young jockey is under contract to Mrs. Payne Whitney, owner of the Greentree Stable. He rode his first winner on October 9, 1931, and will lose his apprentice allowance next Sunday.

Coucci has been leading all the jockeys in the number of winners ridden.

Wells to Start Hunt Club Racer

Candler Wells, prominent member of the racing committee of the Genesee Valley Hunt Club, of Genesee, N. Y., has been secured as starter at the seventh annual meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Hunts Race Association, Columbus Day at the George H. McNary farm, near Greensburg.

YANKS DESERVE CREDIT DUE CHAMPIONS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The pronounced tendency among certain National Leaguers to belittle the Yankees by calling the recent world series a bloomer is not "cricket," in the opinion of many observers of less partisanship.

It doubtless is true that the Yanks are not a smart club, like the Cardinal champs of last year, for example, but McCarthy's club doesn't have to be a combination of daring baserunners when it can hit balls out of the lot almost every day to attain its goal.

All the adverse criticism centered on the new world champions cannot offset the incomparable Ruth-Gehrig punch which scatters terror in all cities, including Chicago, which is supposed to be a tough town.

The Yanks may be only fair in fielding and their pitching staff probably is not the best in baseball, yet any club that can win more than 100 battles in a major league has to be good. Let us give them the credit due them as monarchs of the sport.

Chilly Sauce

Larry French, accompanied by his family, departed for his California home yesterday. Larry was much disappointed over the play of the Cubs in the world series. He was keen for action against them had the Buccos copped the flag. Quoth Larry:

"Money is a nice thing to have, but I would have been satisfied to take a second place share just to get a crack at those Yankees. That is one club above all others which I wanted to face this year, and right in the old world series, too."

French won 18 games and lost 18 as he took part in almost 50 contests. Ever since he entered the big show he has been close to the top in the point of total innings pitched. He is noted all over the circuit for his unselfish manner in rushing to the slab.

Little Lloyd Waner is still in Pittsburgh, but the wee centerfielder, with Mrs. Waner, expects to pull out for Oklahoma in a day or two. Lloyd came down the home stretch with a rush and almost caught up to Brother Paul, who was among the league's best batters all season.

Lloyd batted .333 as he played his sixth season in the big show. He has been a jewel of consistency, although he had to miss more than half the Pirates' games in 1930 on account of serious illness.

Brother Paul hung up a mark of .341 for the season just closed. If the Pirates did not have to face many more southpaws than any other club in the league, the two little sluggers might have been right on Frank O'Doul's heels.

BULLDOGS TOLD OF MISTAKES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Yale's Bulldogs spent most of their time yesterday listening to a lecture on their sad mistakes in the Bates game, which resulted in an amazing 0-0 tie. Joe Gilligan was in Bob Lassiter's place at left halfback, but the Southern flash is almost certain to start against Chicago on Saturday.

Eastern Briefs

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Blackboard session and two signal drills featured Columbia's three-hour workout for the Princeton game yesterday. Capt. Steve Grenda was in the lineup and may start against the Tigers, although he probably won't be in the best of condition.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Princeton's second eleven worked on a defense against Columbia plays in a scrimmage yesterday with the scrubs while the varsity was given a light signal drill. Three members of the injured contingent, Dan Hinman, Bill Marks and Adrian Fisher, were in uniform.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Fordham, with rugged Bucknell next on the program, worked on a tightening up of the defense against forward passing yesterday. The Rams did not look good Saturday when Baltimore's light eleven tried the passing game.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Army came through the hard Furman game without serious injuries, although a number of the backs were nursing bruises. The Cadets play Carleton Saturday.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Blaming Navy's defeat by William and Mary last Saturday to fumbling and inability to catch and hold passes, Coach Rip Miller and his assistants yesterday started their efforts toward correcting these faults and polishing the power of the Tar gridiron machine. The Middies were put through about an hour's active drill and then were given calisthenics and dummy scrimmage.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Coach Harvey Harman, with his eyes on the Dartmouth game two weeks hence, has made two important changes in Penn's varsity lineup. He replaced George Munger at halfback with Bill Shanahan. Dudley F. Giberson, of Afton, Ill., from the second string, took Frank Yablonski's place at guard. Giberson was a varsity guard last season but was displaced this year by Osbern Wilson, a veteran.

Pittsburgh fans will see a boxer on Friday night who was wanted as an opponent for Tony Canzoneri, the world lightweight champion, this week.

The boxer in question is Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, who meets Johnny Datto, the Filipino, in the main bout of the second show at the new Arena, on the North Side.

Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, yesterday received a long-distance telephone call from Jack Puggy, of Philadelphia, manager of Massey, asking that the local match be set back because he had a chance to send Massey against Canzoneri at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow night, as a substitute for Ray Miller, of Chicago. Raymond refused to release Massey, and he will go through with the bout here. Frankie Petrolle has been signed to box Canzoneri.

At the same time, Raymond completed his card for Friday's show. He will have Anson Green, Homestead Negro middleweight, against Ray Lyle in the six-round semi-final, and Al Farone, of the West End, against Jerry Clements, of Jeannette, and Mickey O'Brien, of Braddock, against Joey Severino of the North Side, just turning pro, in the two six-round preliminaries.

Between Rounds

Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, writes that he notices Davy Grove is going great guns now and he'd like to get another shot at him before Grove becomes too prominent to box preliminary boys. Joey's still gunning for Marty Gornick, too. He says he's never had a chance to redeem himself against an opponent who has beaten him and would like to get the opportunity, just to learn how it feels.

Two champions will battle when Walter Marn, of Hazelwood, and Al Quaill, of Brookline, meet in the main bout of the amateur show for the Allegheny County Roosevelt-Garner Women's Club in the Moose Temple tomorrow night. Quaill is the A. M. A. welterweight junior champion and runnerup to Charley Crovatto in the senior competition, while Marn is the district Golden Gloves champion.

Al Conrad, of Duquesne, and Al Waldecker, of Tarentum, featherweights, and Eddie Shinn, of Turtle Creek, and Tiger Joe Hughes, of Duquesne, welterweights, have been signed for two of the three four-round preliminaries to the Ray Van Hook-Frankie Bojarski bout at McKeesport tomorrow night. Gene Moretti and Paul Oger are in the semi-final.

Paul Reider, Pitt football captain, will be among the honor guests at the amateur boxing show under the auspices of Duquesne Council, Knights of Columbus, to be held in its clubrooms tomorrow night. Women are invited to attend.

Primo Carnera will box an opponent to be selected in Camden, N. J., October 13.

Announcement of plans to bring Jack Sharkey here for a bout in defense of his title at Forbes Field next summer sounds like so much bologny. Sharkey is under obligation to Madison Square Garden interests to defend his bauble next June, and Max Schmeling is the man who will oppose him and likely take the laurels from the gent who snared them from him. Better matches right now would interest the fans more than vague promises of big stuff next summer.

Business

Purchasing Agents See Slight Improvement In Industry

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

MUCH HAS BEEN said about the business improvement of the past month—about the encouraging lengths to which it has gone and, on the other hand, about its disappointing aspects.

An accurate picture covering the entire country and taking a complete cross section of all industries is difficult to obtain. For this reason a study made public by the Business Survey Committee of the National Association of Purchasing Agents is of particular interest because of the many types of activity included.

The survey represents a composite opinion of purchasing agents in all types of business. For the month of September it indicates a moderate improvement, but does not show any sweeping changes in the situation.

* * *

Moderate Advance Reported in East

THE SUMMARY covers two sections, the East and the Middle West. In the East general business conditions were reported to be better than in the previous month.

Commodity prices were indicated as slightly higher than the previous month. No change was found in the size of inventories in this territory. Collections were practically the same and credit conditions were slow. No improvement was found in employment conditions.

Most buying was discovered to be on a highly selective basis with the great majority of purchasers favoring a policy of buying as little as possible.

* * *

Conditions Uneven In Middle West

CONDITIONS WERE found to be less even in the Middle West. General business was indicated as inclined to be better than in the previous month. This compared with the statement that business in the East was better.

Commodity prices in this territory were slightly higher, as they were in the East. Inventories were practically the same as in the previous month, but showed a slightly downward trend. Collections were nearly the same as in August, but had a slightly better trend.

Credit in the Middle West was characterized as still inclined to be tight. Unemployment also showed no great change, but had a tendency to be less severe. Buyers in this territory were taking as little as possible.

This survey appears to present an accurate picture of the situation as nearly as it can be checked with other sources of information.

STOCKS PUSH UP IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—The stock market improved moderately today, in extremely quiet trading.

Traders were evidently encouraged by firmness of the cotton market, and the drying up of selling in shares in Monday's trading. For the most part, however, traders were content to mark time.

Gains of 1 to more than 2 points appeared in a wide assortment of issues, including a number of the rails, which were under pressure yesterday. Oils and coppers were all but neglected.

Most brokers reported that public participation in the market had all but vanished of late. There was a tendency to look to the principal commodity markets for clues as to the trends of shares. Freight car loadings reports were also awaited with keen interest, in view of the fact that the seasonal peak is usually reached around this time of year. Santa Fe's report, virtually duplicating that of the previous week, failed to provide a basis for estimating a further gain for the Class 1 carriers in the aggregate. Crude oil production for last week, as preliminarily estimated, showed little change. Fresh curtailment is being widely advocated in oil circles.

The market held steady later in the morning. The market at midday was ruling around 7.25 for December, active months generally showing net advances of about 17 to 24 points.

Street Expects Increase In Steel Corporation's Forward Orders

The monthly report of the Steel Corporation setting forth the total of unfilled orders on its books is due next Monday. Thus through the current week it is likely that the probable showing of the figures will be the subject of much conjecture. Last month, it will be recalled, the speculative fraternity evidently let its fancy get the better of its reason, and the net result was the actual figures proved a rather keen disappointment. Unofficial estimates at that time forecast a rather substantial gain in bookings over shipments, but the report when it appeared showed forward orders had increased for the first time in 17 months, but only to the extent of 3,293 tons. An increase will probably be shown next Monday, if the calculations of the magazine Steel, showing raw materials moving faster than finished product, are substantially correct. In September last year unfilled orders declined about 24,600 tons.

Interest is focused in a considerable degree on the commodity markets, particularly wheat. Evidently the idea still holds forth that the latter grain is destined by its action to provide incentive for construction developments in other markets. Wheat ruled lower yesterday, however, and the thought was advanced in usually well-informed commodity circles, that it might be a bit too much to expect anything far-reaching to develop in either wheat or cotton, at least until the impending government crop reports are out of the way. The next cotton report is due on Saturday and the report on grains is scheduled to appear late next Monday. In neither instance, on the basis of private estimates now in hand, is there expectation of any important change from the figures presented by the government a month ago.

Reports made public today indicated a perceptible rising trend in retail sales in the Greater New York area. The Credit Bureau of Greater New York, Inc., reported an increase in the number of applications for credit from consumers. In September there were 16,077 applications against 14,479 in September, 1931. The Federal Reserve Bank also reported for the first half of September that daily average retail sales of metropolitan department stores ran 17 per cent below the same period of last year, a better comparison than in either July or August.

Standard Statistics Company in its weekly review of business said that whether expanding activities in lighter trade lines will be carried into the basic industries remains an open question, although in the absence of evidence to the contrary "the logical presumption favors the expectation of further moderate and irregular expansion." Summing up the business outlook "it appears that the increased activity of the past two months can be traced, for the most part, to urgent replacement demands by ultimate users of commodities. This may well constitute today, as in the past, the first phase of business recovery. The second phase, representing semi-speculative ventures in the purchase of raw materials by manufacturers and similar expenditures of capital in expectation of a profit, has yet to make its appearance."

Porto Rican sugar producers in New York are somewhat skeptical of estimates from government sources placing the loss of current crop as a result of the hurricane as high as 20 per cent. Trade estimates place the loss at 100,000 tons or less, which would be 11 per cent of the record 886,000-ton crop shown in the 1931-32 season. However, it will take several weeks before a field survey will enable an accurate estimate of the crop damage.

With unfilled orders far in advance of last year's figure and field inventories very substantially lower than in 1931, Kelvinator Corporation began its new fiscal year on October 1 in an enviable position, according to George W. Mason, president. In commenting on this statement, Mr. Mason said: "A substantial increase in October shipments over October of last year is assured. Our September shipments were 12 per cent ahead of the same month last year and total shipments for the fiscal year were in excess of those for the previous 12 months."

13,000 Get Work In Beet Sugar Industry

OMAHA, Oct. 4.—The beet sugar industry opens its season today in Western Nebraska and will provide work for about 3,000 men for 100 days. The industry in Wyoming, Colorado and Utah opens next week, employing approximately 10,000 men.

Payment to farmers for sugar beets on November 15 will put millions of dollars into circulation. The beet crop this year is heavy.

Broad Silk Sales Bulge in August

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—An increase of 118.7 per cent in yardage sales of broad silks during August as compared with the previous month, and an increase of 24.9 per cent as compared with August, 1931, is reported by the Silk Association of America, Inc. Stocks on August 31 were 13.5 per cent lower than on July 31, 1932, and 13.6 per cent lower than on August 31, 1931.

Upper Lake Ports' Ore Shipments Off

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4.—Iron ore shipments from upper lake ports in September totaled 641,228 tons, compared with 721,587 tons in August and 4,178,761 tons in September, 1931, according to Lake Superior Iron Ore Association. For the season to October 1, shipments totaled 2,391,155 tons, against 19,952,768 tons in the similar 1931 period.

European Sugar Conferees Agree

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Cable advices to Lamborn & Co. state that the European conference of sugar growers has been settled in principle, with details to be decided on in December.

The purpose of this conference was to decide whether or not Cuba's European export quota should be increased to a million tons from 855,000 tons.

Grain Corporation Sells Coffee Quota

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The Grain Stabilization Corporation has sold the balance of 5,082,000 pounds of the October coffee quota at bids ranging from 10.56 cents to 11.55 cents a pound.

On September 30, last, 3,168,000 pounds of the October quota were sold at 11.50 cents to 15 cents per pound.

Clark's Earnings Up in September

The D. L. Clark Company in September enjoyed the best month in 1932 both from standpoint of earnings and demand for its products. The plant is operating at about 80 per cent of capacity and is preparing for the holiday business, which is expected to be fully up to last year.

Monongahela Valley Carloadings Gain

CHARLEROI, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—The Charleroi Chamber of Commerce announces that coal loadings in the Monongahela Valley last week increased 27,547 tons, a new record for the year in this district. Yesterday 1,401 cars were loaded with coal on the three principal railroad lines in the valley.

FREIGHT GAINS INDICATED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Freight carloadings for the last quarter of this year were estimated by the American Railway Association at 4,566,369, or 10.4 per cent less than actual loadings in the same quarter a year ago, which were 5,094,653. The report said:

"This estimate (compiled by the 13 shippers' advisory boards) is significant, because the same shippers estimated late last June that loadings in the third quarter would amount to 21.1 per cent under the actual loadings for the third quarter of 1931."

Cotton is the only one of the 29 commodities covered in the forecast which it was anticipated will soon show an increase in loadings for the current quarter. Other commodities, it is estimated, will show declines in loadings ranging from less than 1 per cent to 50.8 per cent, the latter in the case of ore and concentrates. Coal and coke loadings, it is estimated, will show a decline of 8.4 per cent from the last quarter of last year, and iron and steel, 13.2 per cent.

Provision Centers Report Stocks Down

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Stocks of hog products at Chicago, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Omaha, St. Joe, St. Louis and East St. Louis show liberal reductions as compared to the previous month. Lard stocks aggregate 50,805,000 pounds, or 26,731,000 pounds less than a month ago, and compare with 46,064,000 pounds on September 1. The reduction the past month was the largest for the period since 1928.

Total stocks of meats are 220,099,000 pounds, a decrease of 32,240,000 pounds in September and comparing with 181,503,000 pounds last year.

O'Fallon Argument Set for November

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has assigned for oral argument here November 18 the findings of its tentative report fixing net railway operating income of the St. Louis and 'Fallon Railway in the reopened proceedings subsequent to the litigation which featured its original findings in this case.

'Soup's' California Loss Exaggerated

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—The Southern Pacific Company estimates cost of repairs to roadway, track and damaged equipment, as a result of Southern California floods, at not more than $500,000.

Unconfirmed estimates yesterday placed the damage around $1,500,000.

Wabash Railway Loadings Expand

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—During the week ended October 1, the Wabash Railway handled 12,337 revenue freight cars, compared to 12,170 in the preceding week and 15,244 in the like 1931 period.

STOCKS STEADY ON LOCAL MARKET

Securities displayed a little more activity on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange during the early trading today as the New York market shook off its lethargy and started forward in rather impressive style during the forenoon.

The dealings here were mainly in small lots with prices showing only the narrowest fractional changes in most instances. Fuels were about unchanged, while the heavy industrials evinced a disposition to hold at the recent levels awaiting the expected "political demonstration" on the "big board." Several of the farm implement stocks improved noticeably, leading to the belief that the speculative element still had confidence that President Hoover's sally into the unfriendly West today would be accompanied by a strong effort to lift the grain market.

GRAIN PRICES SHOW GAINS

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Grain prices tended upward early today. Scattered buying met little resistance, with traders generally hopeful that President Hoover's Des Moines address tonight would prove a constructive market influence. Opening unchanged to ¼ higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started unchanged to a shade advance and continued to gain.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat price advances, and responded also to predictions of heavy frosts tonight. Provisions lacked support.

Bankers Must Seek to Gain Public Faith

By B. C. FORBES

AMERICA'S BANKERS are holding their annual get-together this week, at Los Angeles. I attended their last annual gathering and found them abjectly panicky. Banks were then popping right and left. Hoarding was reaching hurricane severity. This made them sore.

Mr. Forbes

I venture to tell complainers:

"You yourselves have set the example. You pride yourselves in having brought your institutions to an unprecedented state of liquidity. Your depositors are doing the same thing, by withdrawing their money from banks and putting it into safety deposit boxes. When they see you acting nervously, how can you blame them for following your example?"

HAPPILY CONDITIONS have greatly changed in the last 12 months. Money is pouring into banks. Our gold stocks are mounting rapidly. Interest rates in Wall street are phenomenally low. The Treasury can borrow for short periods at the tiniest fraction of 1 per cent.

Twelve months ago pessimism reigned and raged. Today hopefulness predominates. Bankers then were gravely concerned as to how far things would go in the wrong direction. Everybody is now interested in how far and how rapidly things will move in the right direction.

BANKERS WELL know that they have fallen tragically in public esteem. They should address themselves this week to the vital problem of how to regain forfeited confidence and respect.

For one thing, they should lay plans for comprehensive, cooperative educational advertising. They should explain, in the simplest of language, why they have felt compelled to refuse so many applications for loans. They should emphasize that they are simply the trustees of other people's money and that, therefore, it would be morally wrong for them to jeopardize the safety of what belongs to others.

Also, they should decide upon a policy calculated to regain public good will. Now that danger of "runs" has passed, now that liquid funds have become abundantly available to them, now that business is once again susceptible to encouragement, they should proclaim throughout the length and breath of the land their readiness to exercise every reasonable liberality to borrowers.

SILENCE CONTAINS no solution for the problem facing this country's bankers. Unless they can effectively defend their conduct, unless they can rewin some measure of public esteem, they must expect popular indorsement of whatever punitive legislation politicians may propose.

Seeing that there have been more than 4,600 bank failures in less than three years, it is not astonishing that there should be clamor for "guaranteeing" bank deposits. It is not enough that bankers should simply pooh-pooh such a proposal.

They should, as part of the nation-wide advertising program here recommended, tell in the most lucid language exactly what has happened wherever legislation has been passed with the objective of "guaranteeing" bank deposits.

THE AMERICAN Bankers Association too long fought the establishment of branches by strong banks. The reason was that the membership is more largely composed of small banks than large banks.

The devastating events of the last three years have driven home painfully the inability of puny banks to weather the storm. The number of failures among leading banks has been extraordinarily small in proportion to the number of failures among very small institutions.

A question sent repeatedly to this column is:

"Why is it that Canada and Britain have had no bank failures and America has had so many?"

The answer is that both Canada and Britain have only a few banks, all of impressive magnitude, which furnish facilities to the whole country or a large part of the country through branches.

Unquestionably, banking safety lies in progress toward a similar banking structure in the United States. We may poignantly regret the passing of little community banks; we may view with alarm the spread of concentrated banking power in the principal cities throughout the land. But this sentiment must give way to safety.

WHENEVER AN industry fails to satisfy the public, it must expect increased regulation and restriction. Bankers face fresh legislation.

It behooves them to do more than they have ever done in the past to lay their case, their position, their problems before the public for the purpose of averting the passage of laws which would hurt us all.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The bond market moved cautiously today with traders and investors still hesitating to engage in any extensive operations. The foreign list was rather mixed. United States government obligations were quiet and a trifle soft.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

AUTO INDUSTRY HAS DECKS CLEARED

DETROIT, Oct. 4.—The motor industry goes into the final quarter of 1932 with production at the lowest ebb of the year, but with the outlook promising for increased activity as the quarter progresses. During the next two months automobile manufacturers will concentrate on preparations for new models, with October output confined principally to winding up the manufacturing programs on current lines. At least three companies will get under way on production of 1933 models in October, with the majority doing so in November. That month should show a substantial upturn in output, to be followed by a further advance in December.

CAR STOCKS LOW

The more hopeful outlook for the last two months, from the standpoint of production, is based on current low stocks of cars in hands of retailers, and the necessity for supplying dealers with new models. The determination of manufacturers to clean dealers' shelves of all old models before new offerings are announced has kept production well below retail sales since mid-year, with a resultant sharp reduction in stocks of finished cars. So well has production been controlled that, contrary to the usual experience, manufacturers this year are not the least concerned about disposing of old models before the new cars are placed on the market.

SALES TOP OUTPUT

Some idea of the present condition of new car stocks may be had from the estimate of automobile statisticians that stocks on September 1 were 39 per cent under those of a year ago, which then were considered low. They also were 18.8 per cent below those of January 1, a time when stocks normally are low. New car registrations plus foreign shipments in the first seven months of 1932 exceeded production by 36,294 cars, and the deficiency in production has increased monthly since. August registration exceeded output by 17,559 cars.

September output of cars and trucks was somewhere in the neighborhood of 70,000 units, and indications are that October will fall short of this figure by a substantial margin, probably marking the low point in motor car production since January, 1921, when 51,919 cars and trucks were turned out. From preliminary sales reports, September again will show registrations well above production for the month.

Kenney Sees Gains For Great Northern

ST. PAUL, Oct. 4.—W. P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern Railway, said he does not expect the road to show any more deficits in net operating income this year. Prospects are for general improvement in this region, he believes, with recovery likely to be speeded up after the presidential election.

IMPROVED U. S. FEELING AIDS BUSINESS

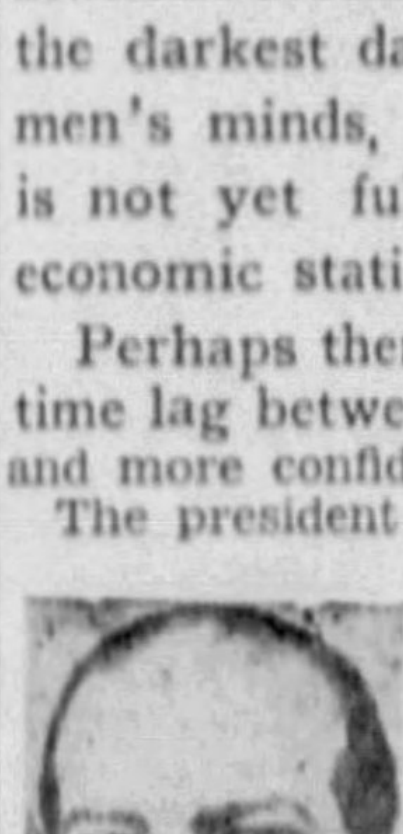
By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Much of the improvement since the darkest days has been in men's minds, and accordingly is not yet fully reflected in economic statistics.

Perhaps there is a necessary time lag between better feeling and more confident action.

The president of one large corporation, in chatting with me about this subject, remarked:



Mr. Rukeyser

"I do see some slight sign of business improvement, particularly in the way people talk and act, which is always a forerunner of better things and times."

Of course, the snail-like pace of recuperation is largely ascribable to the difference between demand for merchandise and what economists describe as "effective demand." Demand is based on need and desire, but it does not influence freight car loadings unless it is effective demand, which entails not only the desire to buy but also the ability to buy. Wholesale unemployment, part time employment, and impoverishment of farmers deprived millions with the desire for things of purchasing power needed to make their wants effective.

The beginning and end of genuine economic reconstruction will consist largely of putting the unemployed back to work and setting up a regimen for giving farmers better remuneration for their activities.

James S. Carson, vice president of the American and Foreign Power Company, writes:

"You said a very profound thing when you wrote this recently in your column: 'Under the necessities and opportunities of the power age, good business becomes indentical with the aims of good sociology.'

LAUDS ROOSEVELT

"I believe far seeing business executives are beginning to realize the importance of this truth. What Walter Gifford said recently at the White House conference would indicate this, and there are many other expressions which corroborate it."

The effect of Gov. Roosevelt's Salt Lake City address was to take the question of railroad relief out of politics.

George B. Elliott, president of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, whose headquarters are at Wilmington, N. C., points out in a message to this column:

"From a non-political standpoint, I think Mr. Roosevelt's six-point plan as to the railroad situation is good. I am referring, of course, to the principles that he enunciates. The laws to carry these principles into effect would, presumably, be limited to the purposes announced."

'Frisco Plaintiffs File Amended Suit

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—An amended suit was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Dora R. and Charles Gans, prior lien bondholders of Baltimore, whose receivership suit against the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad was dismissed recently by Federal Judge Charles B. Faris.

A receivership suit filed against the railroad by a group of stockholders still is pending in Federal Court. In dismissing the bondholders' receivership suit recently, Judge Faris said he would give the railroad "another chance."

VALENTINE

:-: Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love :-:

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Joe Outlines His Plans for The Future But Val Is Unimpressed

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Millie was gone. Gone to New York and Europe. Because Mr. Harris wanted to attend an auction of somebody's collection of paintings.

Only her gifts were left, her gifts of dresses and perfumes and lingerie and a diamond bracelet.

The spell that she had cast over the apartment in the brick house, over Val herself, and her life with Joe, was gone.

The light had gone out, and Val didn't know how to make it come back. Now she saw the shabbiness, the makeshift, the dullness. And Joe wasn't a shining lover. He was just a nice husband who never said mean things when the potatoes were scorched, and only frowned his little troubled frown when Val's reckless investments in out of season fruits, hot-house flowers and novels ran the charge accounts beyond the budget.

Elwyn had arrived, bag and baggage, and she didn't like him a bit better than she had when he was 7, and used to bully poor little Georgie and Ruthie whenever Joe was out of sight.

Mrs. Peacock had taken him in, and was perfectly happy fussing over him, calling him her boy. For a little while Val felt a positive dislike for her. Anyone who could like that Elwyn!

ELWYN CONTRADICTS

Elwyn was quick to see how Val felt and made it up by contradicting everything she said, and praising everything and everybody, so that it made her out a worse sport than ever.

"Elwyn likes the climate," Merritt Claus told her unctuously, when she declined to go walking with his wife because the wind made her head ache. "Elwyn says the damp cold you have on the coast is much more penetrating than ours. Mustn't be a stubborn little girl! Now this is your home, and we're all your friends who want to love our good Joe's little wife."

"Our Val wouldn't mind the cold if she would dress for it sensibly," Sally Claus said in her downright way that was almost as irritating as her husband's buttery smoothness. "What you need, Val, is woolen underwear and I call it real vain and affected of you not to wear it!"

"I couldn't possibly wear it. It irritates my skin. Any wool does."

"Rats!" said Elwyn. "I remember when your Aunt Julia used to do you up in woolen underdrawers and mittens every winter. I guess I've seen 'em on the clothesline often enough!"

DISAPPROVES OF WEATHER

"Wear silk underneath then." Pearl said practically, ignoring Val's attempts to change the subject. "But do something or you'll miss the skating and everything. Gee, skating is keen. What's a winter without snow and ice? I'd hate it!"

"Would you?" Val murmured coldly. "Well, I'd like it!"

Which would have surprised Aunt Julia and Marjorie Vogel, who had been receiving glowing accounts of Val's "first white winter."

She did like the idea of it. But it wasn't what she had expected. She had expected it still and cold and white. And it was gusty and wet and it hurt.

The first time she went out in the sudden winter which had descended upon them, and which seemed to have no more relation to that first pretty snowstorm than the first robin is supposed to have to spring, she was exhausted, terrified and angered. The cold wind blew at her, blinded her, snapped at her ankles like a malicious presence. It whirled her thin skirts, tore up her loose sleeves, laid its icy self on her quivering body. It hurt her nose, threatened to close her eyes and nearly froze her ears.

Go out in that for fun? No, thank you! And she wouldn't give up her pretty trousseau chemises and put on thick, ugly woolens, not if she froze!

DISLIKES PEARL

"Say, let Val alone! Don't everybody pick on her! She's got to get used to things!" Pearl screamed above the clatter of conversation and Val's indignant thoughts. "The poor kid's never known a winter before, no wonder it scares her!"

Synopsis

Valentine Macfarlane is practically deserted at the age of 8 by her gay, widowed mother, Millie. She is brought up by a manhating maiden aunt, Julia, and becomes a stenographer. After a brief infatuation for the dashing Lester Sherwood, she marries a neighbor boy, Joe Carey, and goes to Minneapolis, where Joe is an architect. Pearl Neely, one of Joe's friends, visits and begins to take liberties about the apartment. Val dislikes Pearl, but says nothing. Unused to housework, Val becomes discontented. She is happier after Millie pays a visit.

Now Go On

That was what made everything so IMPOSSIBLE! Pearl always right there, standing up for her, championing her, making excuses for her. Making her perfectly FURIOUS. And Joe looking troubled because she couldn't warm up to "one of the best friends he ever had!" Without Pearl she might have stood it, but with Pearl right at her elbow telling people things for her, as if she didn't have a tongue of her own, was just too much.

After the Clauses and Pearl had gone home, she was sorry that she hadn't been nicer about it.

"But I would if it weren't for Pearl and the miserable Clauses and everybody," she thought. "I wouldn't mind living in Greenland with Joe. It's being expected to rave about it and never being with Joe except with a house full of stupid company, or him doubled up over a sketch or a book or something.

"I AM interested in Joe's career and I suppose it helps him to have friends, but what about MY career, MY life? It isn't enough to go on this way forever. I've got to have more than that—more love, more change. I'm like Millie. I've got to have things happen."

Joe, figuring as usual, legs crossed, pipe in mouth, notebook on his knee, looked up and saw her brooding, staring stonily into space.

"What's the matter, Val, honey?"

"Nothing."

"Oh, yes, there is. Homesick?"

"No."

"Oh, come on, Val—tell me."

He laid down his pencil, took her in his arms. With her head on his shoulder, her cheek touching his, she was comforted. She suddenly wanted to talk, to explain.

COMFORTS HER

"Joe, I don't know how to tell you exactly, but I've been thinking. You see, you have your life, and your career, and your friends, and I want you to have them. I'd like to help you, only I know I haven't. I guess I've been a hindrance instead—"

"Val, dearest, you know you haven't. You're just the whole world to me, and you've made me so happy—happier than I ever thought I could be—"

"No!" She wouldn't let him go on. "No, I haven't. I've worried you and stood in your way. No, don't interrupt me, Joe, let me tell you. I've been a failure—I know that. But even if I hadn't, Joe, even if I could help you and be the sort of wife that—that Pearl would have been—"

She felt her voice breaking, struggled to keep it straight, and sobbed instead when she saw Joe's eyes, so hurt . . .

"Val, you know it was you I wanted? I never wanted anyone but you—never will."

"Let me tell it, Joe. Please, Joe, I know I haven't been a good wife, just as I said. But even if I had, why. . .what is there to it? I mean—I mean—even if you LIKE to wash dishes and do things like that—even if you DO—it can't be enough. Do you see what I mean? Joe, when you asked me to come out here and marry you, you must have had some dream, some hope—something, for both of us—"

DISCUSS PLANS

"Val, of course, I—I thought—"

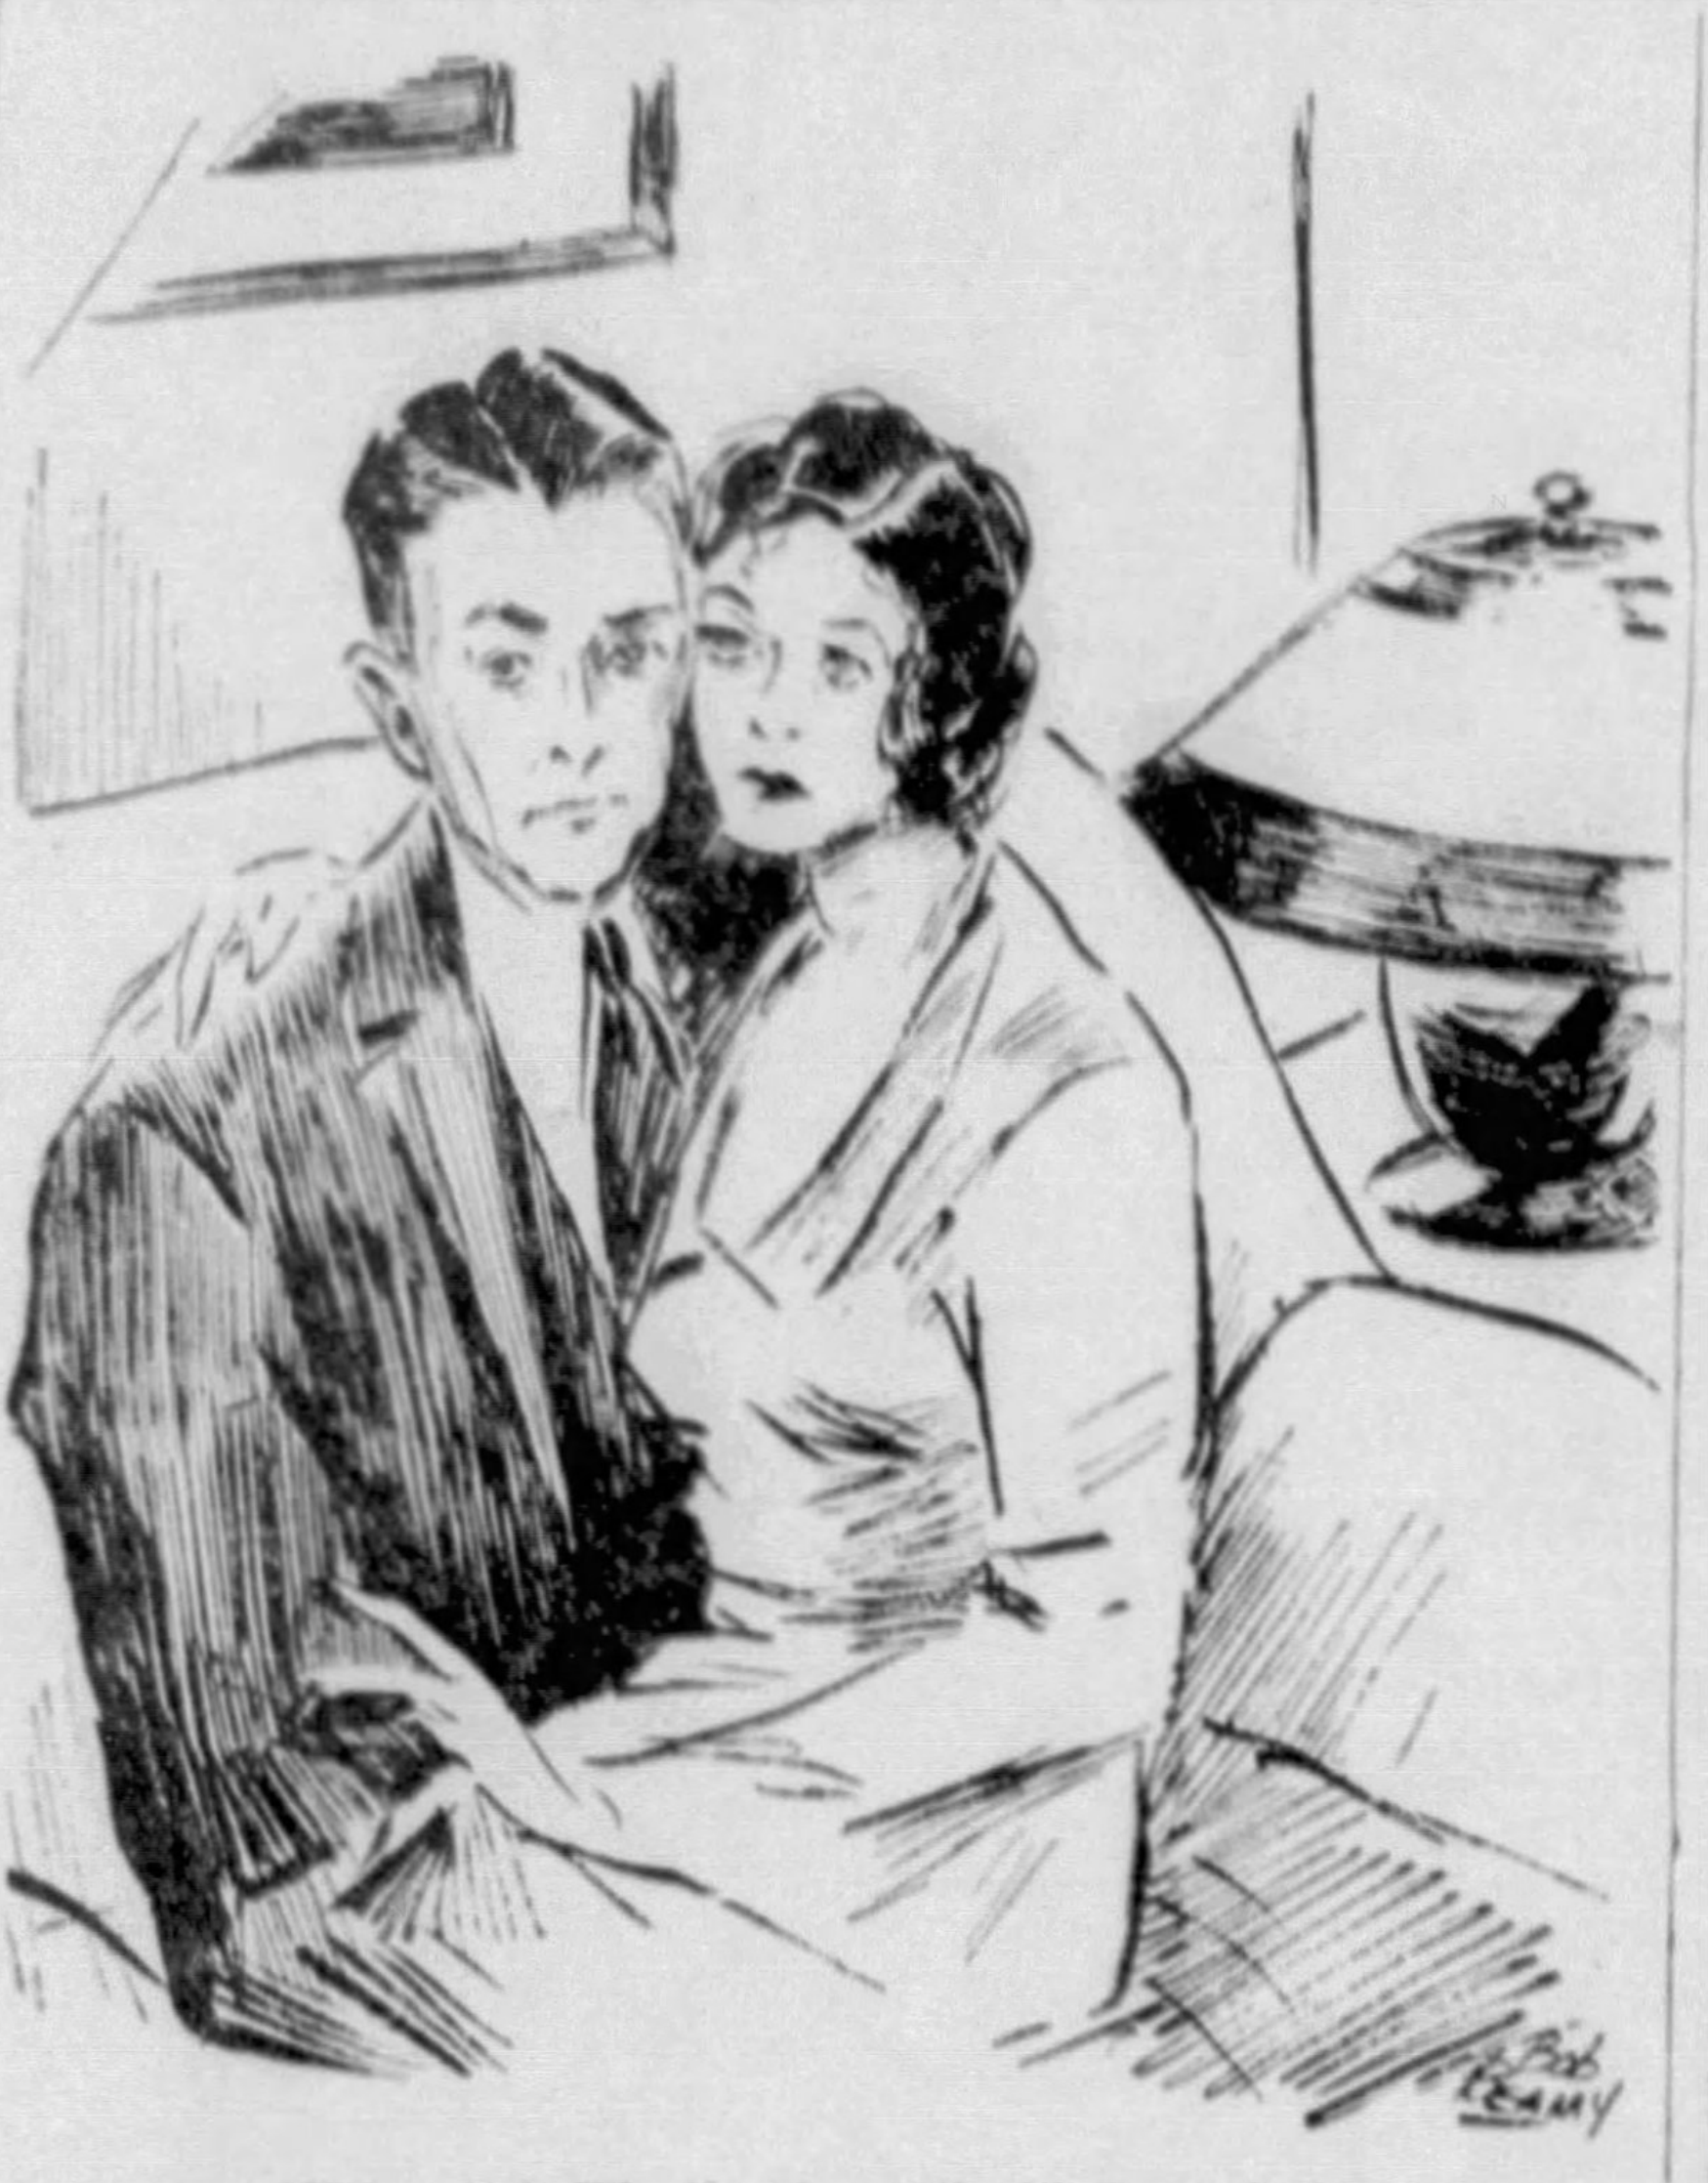
"Tell me what you thought, Joe. Please tell me."

"Why, this was just a little start, here. I thought we'd get along here for a little while—a year maybe, and by that time, with what I could save, and the prospects of making more, I'd have enough to build, with Uncle Joel to help float a loan perhaps—"

"Build," she echoed. . .A house with Joe. . .a dream house. . .

"Yes, overlooking the river—"

"Near one of the bridges, Joe. I do adore those bridges!"



"Why, Val! What's the matter?" Joe asked.

"Near the Lake of the Isles, I thought. And have a garden, and a big living room, big enough for parties, with a fireplace, and—"

Big enough for parties.

A house like this apartment, only bigger. More of it to clean. And a big living room, so you could have more people. The Clauses and the Willowes and the Murphys and Pearl and Elwyn all the same evening.

"But what about me? What kind of a life am I to be having while you are entertaining the Clauses and the Willowes and Pearl and everybody? What about me?"

He saw the frenzy in her eyes, and he didn't understand. He thought she meant, who'd do the cooking.

"Why, if we had a house we'd have a maid, of course."

A maid. Then she WOULD be useless. Here at least she could pretend she was keeping house. She couldn't even pretend then. There'd be nothing for her to do but entertain, and go out—places she didn't want to go!

"Why, Val! What's the matter? Wouldn't you like to build?"

"Is that all . . . all you've planned?" she asked unsteadily.

"Well, I'd like a dog. I've always wanted a dog, haven't you, Val? And eventually—that is, if you feel that way, too, Val . . . Val, wouldn't you like one or two kids?"

Her eyes filled slowly. Of course, she wanted a baby. A baby to buy sweet little dresses and caps and things for, and hold in your arms. She had always wanted a baby, ever since she was a little girl and lavished such love on her dolls. But "one or two kids" . . . as part of the decoration of the house, like the living room for the company, and the dog.

She broke into wild, uncontrolled sobs, and when Joe tried to comfort her, she pushed him away.

"You've got a wonderful life planned for yourself. But I'm afraid there isn't much to look forward to—for me—"

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Girls Sorry Because of Avis Arlen's Invitation

"I'll send for the girls immediately," I told Lillian. "Give me a signal if I say the wrong thing."

"Don't be absurd!" she said sharply. "You're going to tell them about the party, anyway. Don't pay any attention to me. I'm simply an innocent bystander, making a few private observations for my own benefit."

I rang the bell for Katie and my little maid appeared promptly.

"Where are the young ladies?" I asked.

"Dey shoost coom upstairs 10 minits ago back vay from playing dot ting dey call deck tennis," she said. "Dey say dey take shower, und dey took some cookies and apples oop to eat after shower."

"In five more minutes they'll all be in their rooms in negligee," Lillian said. "We'd better see them upstairs, don't you think? Do you suppose they'll be together?"

"'Yes,' to your first question; 'No,' to your second," I told her. "I think we'll find Mary in her own room, alone. I haven't seen anything especial to warrant my belief, but in my opinion the entente cordiale is a bit strained between your daughter and my husband's niece."

"Yes, I've observed that little thing," she said, and she was no longer smiling. "I'm sorry, too, but I suppose it's the penalty that must be paid for a scheme such as we hatched among us."

FLY IN OINTMENT

"I don't think it's a penalty that will outlast the culmination of the scheme," I told her.

"'Leave us hope!'" Lillian uttered her favorite quotation jauntily, and then we went upstairs to my room. Thence I went in search of the girls, finding, as I expected, that Marion and Carolyn were together and Mary by herself.

All three were wearing fetching lounging pajamas, and all were reading so comfortably that I hated to disturb them, but they put down their magazines with alacrity when I told them I had something interesting to tell them, and trooped into my room and perched themselves upon my bed with the naive curiosity of the children they still are, despite their grown-up airs.

They listened, with the pretty deference which is theirs, to my announcement of the dinner dance; but when I had finished outlining the plans omitting only Mr. Veritzen's scheme for a revue, which he had stipulated must be kept secret from as many of the guests as possible, all three of them rushed over to me and hugged me ecstatically.

"Was there ever anybody like you?" Mary said, and Marion and Carolyn echoed her praises until my cheeks were crimson.

"There's only one fly in the ointment," Marion said, when they had finally subsided, "and that is one of the guests of honor. But maybe we wouldn't have had the party without her," She cocked a naively impudent eye at me.

LILLIAN WARNS GIRLS

"Oh, yes. I intended to give you a farewell party anyway, before you went back to school. And though it is indiscreet, I'll admit that I share your opinion. She is a big, disagreeable, blue-bottle fly in the ointment; but there are reasons why I must give this party for her and her mother, so we'll all have to get on with her to the very best of our ability."

"Remember, now!" Lillian put up an admonishing forefinger. "No dirty work at the cross roads. Let the girl have her innings. Your Aunt Madge has planned to have more boys than girls, so let her slay her thousands—"

"Oh, my dear!" Marion exclaimed. "Wait till you see her! She thinks she's Cleopatra and Helen and all the movie charmers rolled into one package. She's got her claws out for Noel, but so far he's escaped with only a scratch or two.

"She nearly sent Auntie Madge into spasms by insisting that she telephone your mother to include her in the house party, but Auntie Madge settled her for fair. But what she'll do when all these cadets and collegians burst upon her vision will be a-plenty."

"Beginning with your handsome brother, I imagine," Mary commented to Carolyn, but I knew that she meant the comment for Marion, in feminine exchange for the gibe about the claw scratch on Noel

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club who attended the regular weekly meeting Saturday at the Belmar Theater found many surprises in store for them in the way of novel games and contests.

When the ushers started up the aisle with armloads of paraphernalia and followed by bringing up three large wash tubs, the children were more than excited, because they could not imagine what was to be next.

Joe Murdock, the manager, announced that the first contest would be a banana-eating contest. The members thought there was some trick to this, as it's a very simple matter to eat a banana. But, and this turned out to be a large but, the bananas were only part peeled and then a string attached, and they were suspended in mid-air, so that the contesants, to reach the end of the banana, would have to stand on tip-toes.

SIX IN CONTEST

After the bananas were arranged three boys and three girls were chosen from among the volunteers to compete in this contest they were: Mary Alice Hallgren, Lucille Herman, Rose Ann Mulinary, Louis Ross, Jack Browdy and William DeBlaisio. At the command "go" the race was on and with much neck stretching and prolonged anticipation among the other memberes Louis Ross finished first. Not only did he eat his banana ahead of the other five but volunteered to help Jack Browdy who was along side of him. But at this offer to help Jack looked for Lou's banana and discovered that it was all gone declined with thanks and grabbed his banana off the string and finished it. He had lost first prize but he wasn't going to loose the banana.

While the banana-eating contest was being staged the ushers were filling the three tubs with water and an apple ducking contest was next on the program. Two boys and two girls were chosen. They were Dorothy Krachala, Rose Ann Mulinary who had just competed in the banana-eating contest and John Dickson and Harry McAvoy. The members who were interested spectators on the sidelines evidently had competed in many an apple ducking contest from the amount of advice they gave to the contestants. None of which by the way was accepted. After much splashing and ducking John Dic[illegible]n emerged the winner and received a big round of applause from the audience. John said that he's all set now for Halloween and expects to capture the title "Champion Apple Ducker" of his neighborhood. He's already invited to several parties and this is just a warning for the other boys and girls who plan to attend these same parties. Better practice if you want to take this crown away from John.

Following these two contests the members were entertained by Mary Alice Hallgren, Clara May Hallgren and May Davis who sang "A Shanty in Old Shanty Town" and sang it very well. These three youngsters harmonize well and proved a hit with the audience judging from the amount of applause they received.

Manager Murdock knowing that all youngsters like to let off steam, more so now that school has started and they must be quiet all day closes each of his meetings with a Komic Club yell And do these youngsters yell? We'll say they do. Anyone passing and not knowing what was going on in the theater would think that nothing short of a great baseball or football game was in progress. Such is not the case, just a lot of happy carefree youngsters riding themselves of much pent up energy.

Hoopeston, Ill., Chronicle-Herald.

When Clyde Hutts went to open Frank Rogers' store at 6 o'clock yesterday morning he forgot his keys.

A window was broken open and entrance effected, but even then it was not possible to throw open the portals because no duplicate keys were inside. The combination of the safe was obtained from Rogers' home, and a search of the safe for duplicate keys was about to be made.

Right then Frank Rogers appeared and unlocked the front doors. At 6:30 the store was open for business as usual.

The Davis Trial Fiasco

Postponement of the Verdict Is a Disappointment to the Voters as Well as to the Senator.

About the mildest term that can be applied to the conduct of the juror who has made a fiasco of the trial of United States Senator James J. Davis is that it was rash. His stupidity has caused the loss of two weeks spent in taking testimony as well as of the money spent on the trial.

The greatest cause for disappointment, however, is that Senator Davis probably will have to go before the voters of Pennsylvania, next month, with the question of his guilt or innocence undetermined by a jury.

Charles J. Margiotti, the Senator's attorney, says he was confident of an acquittal, which makes the necessity of a new trial a bitter pill for the Senator to swallow.

All the more credit, of course, goes to Margiotti for promptly informing the court of the juror's visit.

The Relief Need

Starvation Cases Emphasize the Importance of Prompt Action to Take Care of the Destitute.

While encouraging news of the resumption of mills long idle brings hope that the days of the depression are numbered, we are also having it called emphatically to our attention that destitution, widespread and acute, is still with us and calls for prompt and adequate action.

A man and a woman were found in the streets of Pittsburgh yesterday, in a state of collapse. They were taken to a hospital, where physicians found they were suffering from starvation.

Another case reported yesterday was that of a man and his wife and five children, found in the tourist camp at Schenley Park in a state of destitution. The man had brought his family here from Detroit in the hope of finding a job.

These things furnish Senator Frank J. Harris ample justification for his plan to ask the State Emergency Board to allocate to Allegheny County additional funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's proposed second loan to Pennsylvania.

Mercy for Vote Crooks

The Courts Should Be Impressed With the Fact That Election Cheating Is a Serious Crime.

Of 77 persons convicted of frauds of one sort or another in last year's election only 22, it is reported, were sentenced to prison, and 21 of these were released before they had served their terms. A petition is being prepared for the parole of the twenty-second man, and the District Attorney, it is said, will not oppose it.

In view of the leniency extended to the other vote crooks, it is perhaps but right that the lone prisoner, whose guilt, there is reason to believe, was no greater than that of some of the others, should be released.

But at the same time something should be done to impress the courts with the fact that election cheating is a serious crime, and that the criminals who try to steal elections, and rob the people of the right of self-government, are not entitled to mercy.

Warring on Pollution

Local Refineries Deserve Credit for Co-Operating in the Campaign for Clean Streams.

The rivers in the vicinity of Pittsburgh are so seriously contaminated with industrial waste and domestic sewage that the discharge of additional industrial drainage would not, one might suppose, make much difference. The State Sanitary Water Board thinks otherwise, however. It has been concerned over the discharge of certain wastes from petroleum refineries into the streams and has asked the oil companies to find some other way of disposing of this refuse.

A list has been given out of the companies that have agreed to co-operate in the campaign against stream pollution. It is gratifying to note the names of some local companies, such as the Gulf Refining Company and the Canfield Oil Company, of Coraopolis. They deserve credit for agreeing to do their part to restore the pristine purity of the rivers.

A Venerable Church

The Smithfield Street German Congregation Is Celebrating Its 150th Anniversary.

The Sun-Telegraph called attention on September 24 to the fact that it was the 145th anniversary of the date on which the Penns granted to the Smithfield Street German Evangelical Protestant Church, Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church and the First Presbyterian Church the tracts of downtown property on which their present buildings stand.

The Smithfield Street German congregation had been formed five years before, so that the year 1932 marks its sesquicentennial. It is fitting that the anniversary should be observed with appropriate exercises. Interest in the commemorative services that are being held this month will not be confined to the members of the congregation, but will be shared by all Pittsburghers who have pride in the city's old churches.

The history of the church has been inextricably connected with the history of the city. It is one of our venerable institutions. No one can estimate the value of the service that it has rendered through its religious ministrations and social welfare activities.

The church has gone through many trying experiences—during the World War, for instance, when the United States was engaged in hosilities with the country from which members of the congregation or their forefathers had come; but it has always acquitted itself creditably.

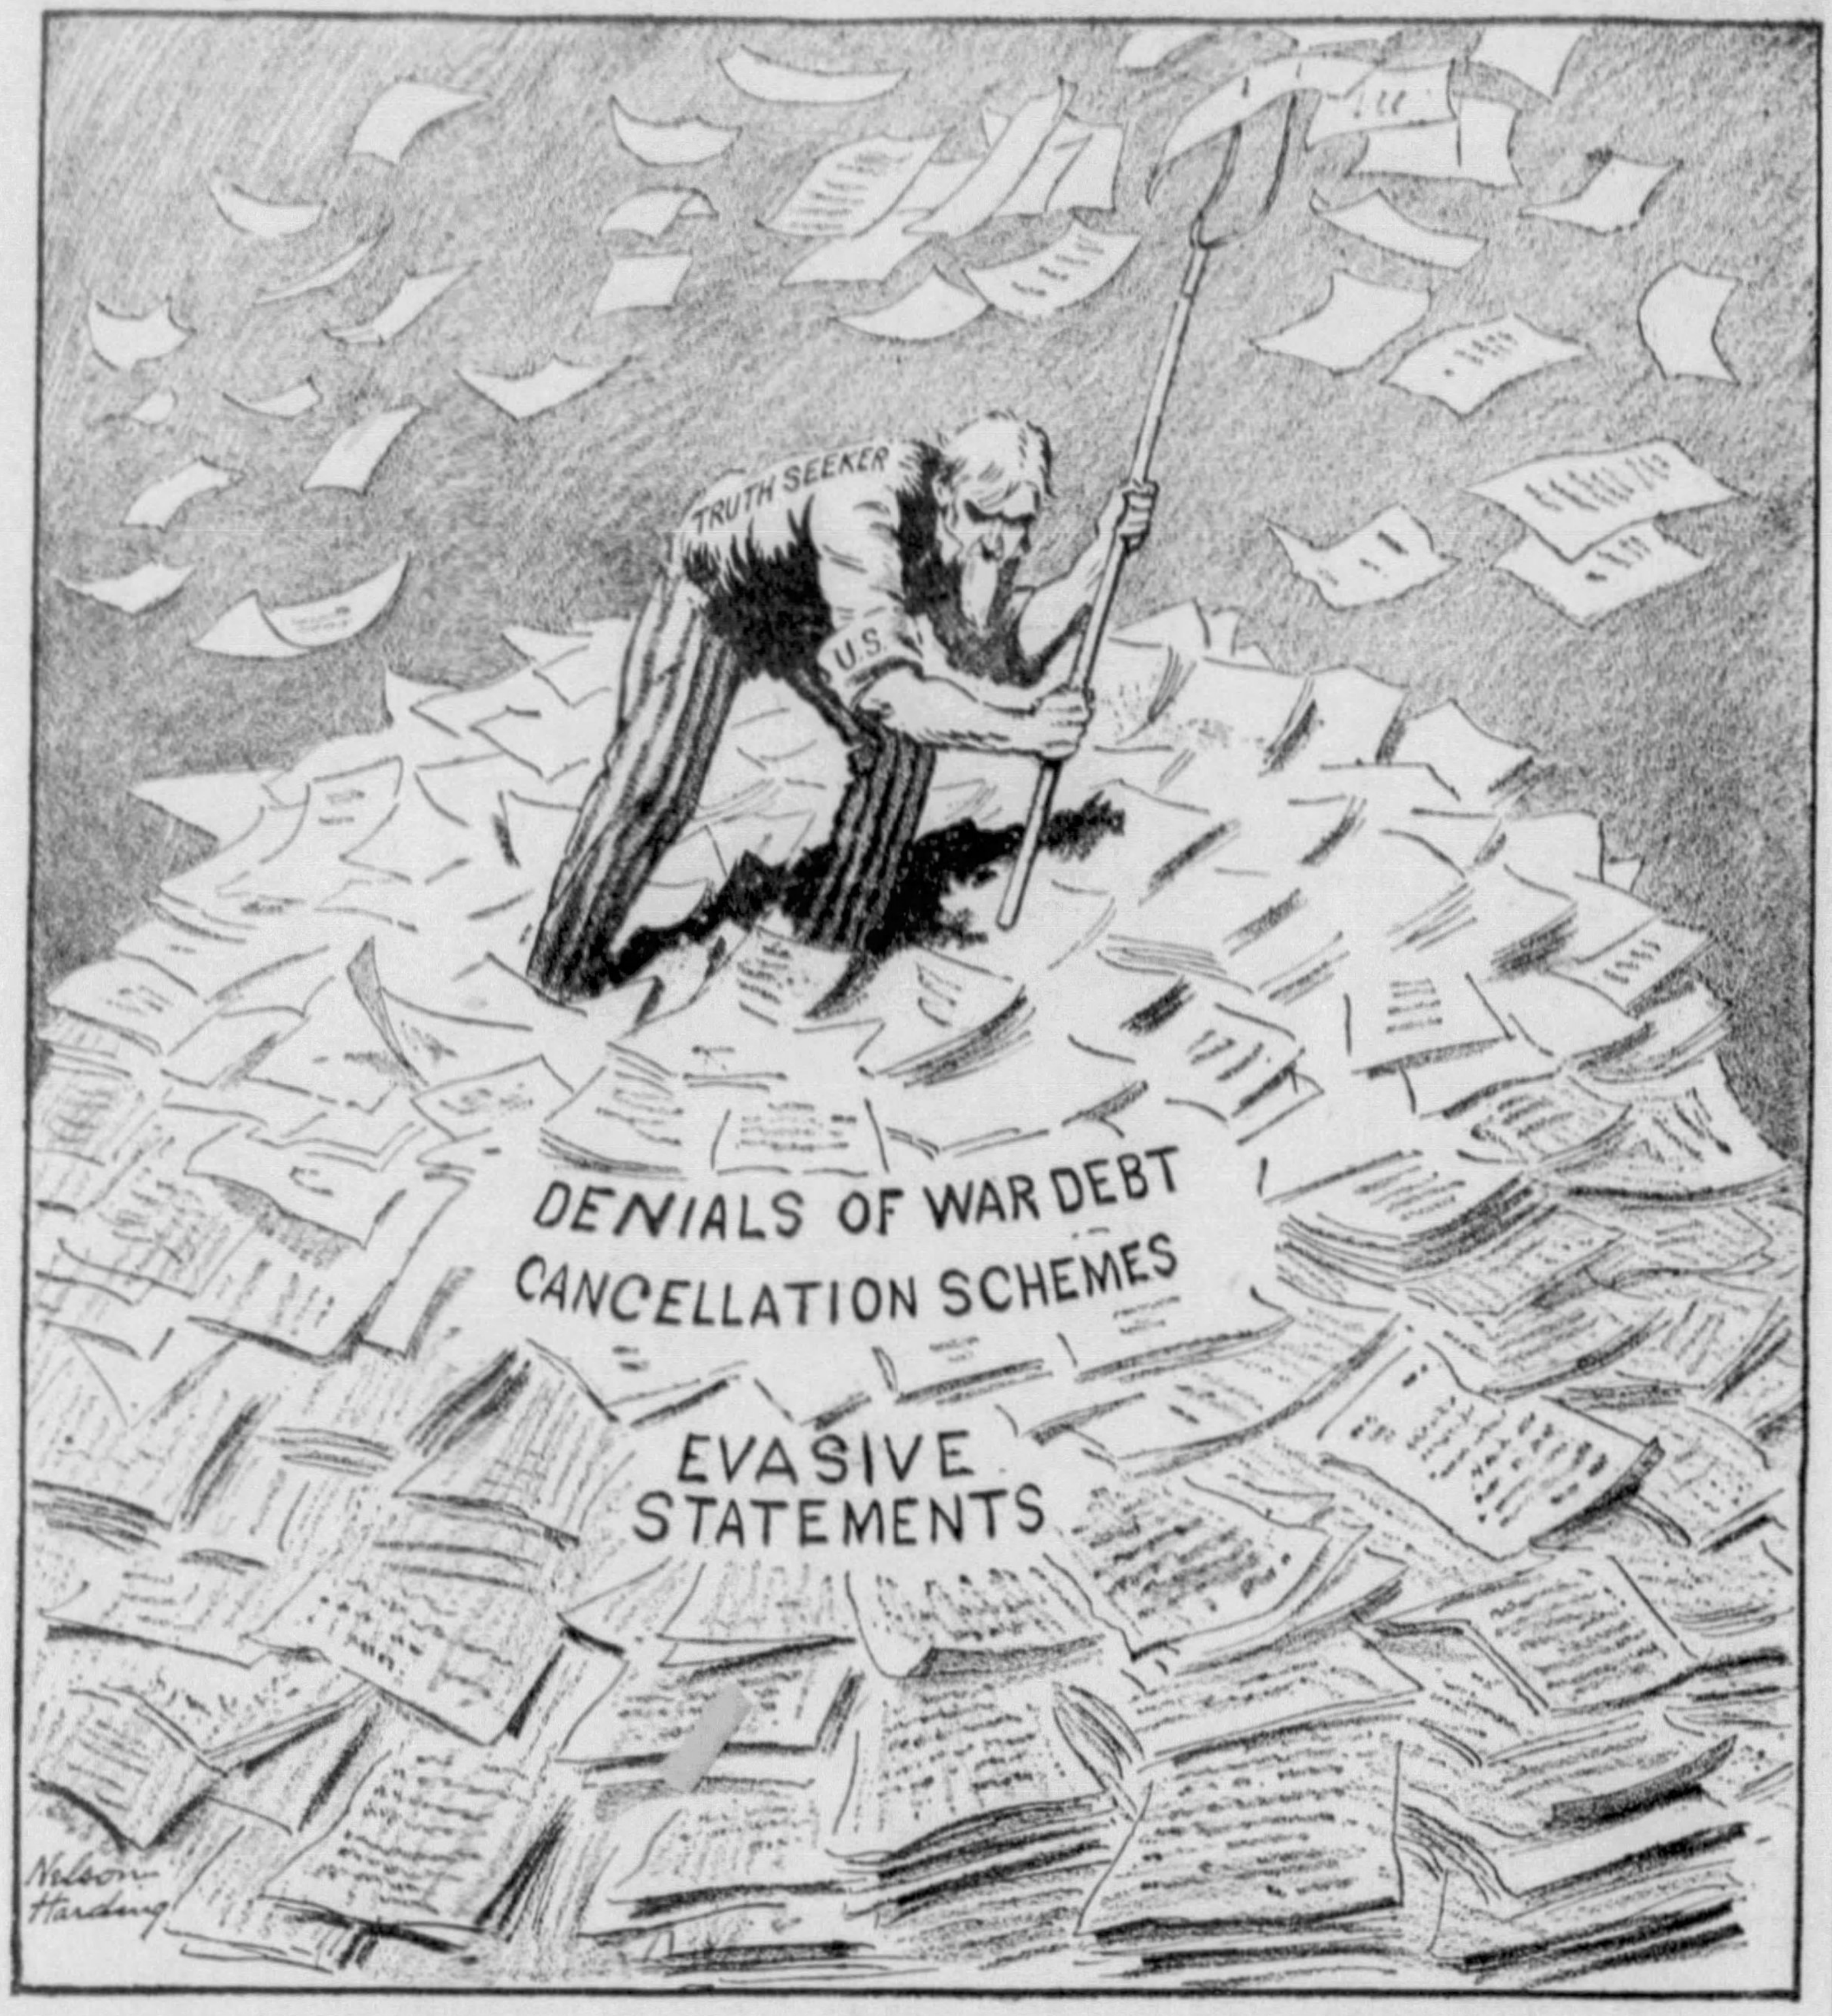
Hunting a Needle in a Haystack -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding



"Like a needle in a haystack,"
As the ancient saying has it,
Is the Truth about the War Debts
Deeply hidden in evasions.

And it is the Truth we're seeking,
Hunting through misleading statements,
Digging, delving through denials
For the facts long hidden from us.

The Spice of Life

That man who kept hitting himself on the head with a hammer "because it felt so good when he stopped," was a great philosopher and psychologist.

* * *

What he needed was a CHANGE! Just a little variety, to give life its proper spice. And that was the only way he knew how to get it.

* * *

Nobody can sympathize with him more acutely than the owner of a country house or a seaside bungalow, when the season has ended.

LET'S GET OUT OF TH' CITY DEAR ?
JUST WHAT I WAS THINKIN !

In the spring you positively hate the sight of the city streets.

* * *

Then you dreamed of a wonderful "Heavenly Rest" in the woods or by the sea and went around all day mentally planting petunias or gathering early violets, or painting pergolas and training ramblers.

* * *

But, of course, you stayed right there in the city and kept on "hitting yourself on the head with a hammer." You had to see the dentist and finish up a lot of business, and get some summer clothes—and besides, it might be chilly and lonely, out there.

* * *

And when you DID go down and the tender young grass spread a magic velvet carpet all around you and the iris blossomed and the petunias burst out into a blaze of glory—and your head stopped aching—you exclaimed:

WHEN ARE WE GOING BACK TO THE CITY DEAR ?
AS SOON AS WE CAN GET OUR BAGS PACKED !

"What? Leave this place in October? Never! I'll stay here till Christmas!"

* * *

And now autumn has come around—the loveliest time of all the year. When the fields are bright with goldenrod, and the paths through the woods are as red as an Indian war-trail. Your nasturtiums are blazing royally against a background of the bluest water in the world.

* * *

So, you are perfectly CONTENT. Oh, ARE you? Not on your life! You are restless and bored and just rarin' to GO—to get back to Town. The City is calling you. You long for the lights and the glitter and the new openings in the gay shops. You are itching to see the new styles and to hear the familiar clamour and clatter. You are longing to have tea and a dance in some soft-lighted popular spot, with some nice, entertaining man. You are burning to get back to the office or the city department. You are aching to GO.

* * *

You want a CHANGE! That is the way God made us.

EUROPE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

PONT CROIX, Finistere, Oct. 4. This is the ancient France of sabots and sixteenth century plumbing, where a depression is something made by a jouncing oxcart in the roadway. Remote, delightfully self-contained and veiled in languor, it is the heart of Brittany where the language is still Breton.

We came to visit the Leon Gordons rusticating while Leon imprisons beauties hereabouts on deathless canvas. We found him by a winding stream painting an old bridge, under which peasant women in a javelin of sunshine were grimly sluicing and laving Papa's pants, after first pounding them on old rocks.

The country suggests Maine—hilly, rich in color, with verdant rolling fields, sudden hills, giant trees, a river edged with clumps of thistles plumed in purple and the inevitable and superbly dirty, crooked little streets tumbling down from the hilltop church to the ancient quai.

Leon has gone native, wearing an enormous hat of black straw, red duck trousers and blouse—a pack on his sturdy back and his face the brown of an Indian. Natalie, too, as lovely as ever, was in latticed bodice and white laced cap. Fields of rye, cut and piled in fragrant mounds, are everywhere.

Towering cliffs are fringed with a topsy turvey scallop of heather. And from them one looks down into a tepid sea streaked with green, yellow, lavender—a great pool of liquid opal, dotted with sailing sloops like so many wingspread moths. It is a painter's paradise. And there must be a song or so for poets.

* * *

A jerry-built inn perches on a dizzy crag, romantically the Hotel des Voyageurs. Comfortable rooms and three whopping meals a day for 25 francs or $1 a person. The nine male guests are artists—two Russian, one Belgian, two French and four American, frolicking, burly fellows, who gather at the single table—bicker, sing and puff fierce-smelling pipes. Everything glistens with cleanliness.

* * *

Evenings are a world shut out, for there is nothing to do, unless perhaps penny-ante or backgammon. Only tipples are vin ordinaire and beer, generally the warm of fresh milk. The chief event is the pig-market every two weeks. Peasants in colorful garb bring their pigs. Cobblestones echo the clatter of wooden shoes in a shrill overtone of frightened squeals. Otherwise life is a drab monotone.

* * *

Amid such pastoral calm turbulent thoughts and work-a-day stratagems immediately coalesce into amazing tranquility. The world we have quit seems astonishingly incongruous. No telephone to startle. No wild rush of unattainable desires or tremors of futile emotions. Only trivial approximations, whether the weather will be fair tomorrow or the fish be tasty for dinner. One is riding life from the topgallant.

Brittany's sun is bright and air amazingly pellucid. Rags of clouds tatter the sombre vault, ballooning into snowy drifts. Sometimes the surrounding lifelessness seems, almost pre-Genesis. Then, out of nowhere, comes a magic lash of shower. A hot, dry, dead horizon melts into shimmering fathoms of wet green.

* * *

A bespattered New Yorker in this insularity incites the curiosity of a three-legged calf, I suspect. Resting at a two-tabled bistro, I was conscious of an undercurrent of excitement. Finally, around the corner came a local peasant, treading gingerly in improvised spats, cut from butcher paper and pinned about wooden shoes. Suppressed sniggers and outright guffaws came from doorway peepers. I was happy to inspire a ripple in the Brittany tedium, and I'm glad Leon thought it up.

* * *

I tasted for the first time here the famous French dessert, Chantilly, a whipped sour cream, sugared up and savouring faintly of kirsch—as delectable an entremet as ever I gulped. And, man and boy, I've done notable gulping hither and yon.

* * *

We returned to Paris on hard benches of a third class caboose—bumpety, bumping at a donkey pace. A fellow peasant carried a mandolin. I borrowed it and did right well by a few tremulous bars of "Over the Waves." Something about the Bretons brings out the Gershwin in me.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

It seems to me that marriage is immeasurably more difficult and dangerous now than it was a generation ago. Yet, here's a riddle:

IT'S MORE DIFFICULT BECAUSE IT IS MORE EASY—

AND MORE DANGEROUS BECAUSE IT'S MORE SAFE.

Marriage wasn't easy 30 years ago. Folks talked a lot of sentimental nonsense, but when they came right down to brass tacks they realized that marriage was a real 50-50 working partnership between a man and a woman; a two-fisted job which kept a young wife hustling most of her time.

And that young wife knew just what the job would be before she tackled it. She had no chance to kid herself, even if she had wanted to. She had learned all about it, "helpin' ma" at home. She knew exactly what hardships and handicaps, what sacrifice of time and temperament would have to be borne.

SHE KNEW THAT THE DAY SHE BECAME A MRS. SHE DEFINITELY AND FOR ALL TIME RELINQUISHED THE CAREFREE STATUS OF MISS—AND BECAME AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT SORT OF CITIZEN.

And, because of that, marriage was a mighty risky business for a young woman. She literally staked her whole life, health and happiness on that one deal. She might, and in rare cases did, seek divorce. But things were never the same again. Divorces were mavericks forever outside the herd.

But today everything about marriage is confused. The very needs and relationships upon which marriage was based no longer exist. Bachelors are no longer helpless creatures, forced to seek out some SWEET YOUNG THING before they can enjoy the comforts of the fireside. The modern bachelor usually has it all over the married man when it comes to comfortable firesides.

Nor are women clinging vines who must find some sturdy oak to give shelter and support. The modern girl frequently does far better by herself than her husband ever can. Nor, when she marries, does she face any such hardship as her mother faced. Housekeeping is a joke. Food, clothes and service come at the touch of a button or the flip of a coin, and my lady can still hold her own job, command her own pocketbook, control her own time. And so marriage becomes a take-it-or-leave-it performance. Particularly to the woman.

She can be a Mrs., with her legalized prerogatives, and still be a Miss, carefree and independent as a girl. She can live with a man, and yet not keep his house, or bear his children, or depend on his pocketbook or disposition. And the day she doesn't like it, she can quit—become an ex-wife, without social stigma.

All the old hardships and handicaps are gone. Married life in 1932 is a snap for any smart girl. Never a burden. Never a risk.

YET NEVER WAS MARRIAGE SO DIFFICULT, SO DANGEROUS.

For that very rigid framework which imposed such hardship on a woman's body in 1902 SERVED TO HOLD THAT WOMAN'S SPIRIT IN PLACE.

And the grave extent of the risk she took WAS ALSO THE PLEASURE OF THE REWARD SHE GAINED.

"Nothing ventured, nothing won" was never truer than in modern marriage.

Give nothing; get nothing.

Why are modern marriages so often a failure, despite modern conveniences, modern privileges?

That's why?

Al. Smith and Ogden Mills Debate Again

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. Coolidge, under whose policy of having government abdicate to, or do the bidding of, the oligarchs of high finance, the most appalling depression in American history was prepared, wants to "let well enough alone;" and in the midst of human misery, unequaled in our country, to "stand pat."

History will ultimately record the fact that the policies of the Coolidge regime of complete subserviency to Wall street made the crash inevitable; that it was during his time and because of his abdication of the duty of protecting the public interest that the most greedy and unscrupulous financial element in the country ran amuck.

It is not surprising, therefore, that he wants Mr. Hoover elected on the ground that "business" will be safer; the tens of thousands of wrecked banks, sweeping away millions of the people's money, the scores of thousands of bankruptcies in business, the 800,000 foreclosed farms last year, the 11,000,000 jobless men removed from the purchasing class and the deliberate throwing away of the foreign market at the behest of that distinguished "businessman," Joe Grundy, must make intelligent businessmen feel safe.

Even in Wall street five months ago they were saying privately that as a leader and executive Mr. Hoover is the most inept man with the least courage and initiative we have ever had.

Al Smith Challenged Coolidge's Conclusion

Al Smith, who knows something about business, and especially public business, has just emphatically challenged Mr. Coolidge's conclusion which is given, by the way, ex cathedra wise, and with no reasons. Smith, who is franker and has less to conceal, is more explicit in his statement which appears in his initial editorial in the New Outlook.

He indicts the Hoover administration for destroying the foreign markets, which means a loss of billions to American business; indicts it for its stubborn hostility to any measure of public works that would put millions of men to work and thus restore them to the purchasing class; indicts it for its position on prohibition which keeps 300,000 men from jobs and adds hundreds of millions to the taxation of American business men.

Mr. Coolidge wants the Hoover party to "organize" and mentions "business" but not the country. That has been characteristic of Mr. Coolidge who measures prosperity by the ticket tape.

Mr. Smith does not resort to such economy of words or ideas.

'Hope of Country Lies In Democratic Success'

After referring to the popular feeling that a change is demanded in the personnel, policies and outlook in government, Al Smith says:

"I sympathize with this view and believe the best interests of the country will be served by the success of the Democratic party and the election of its ticket. I believe that the present administration in Washington, if continued, cannot begin to solve our present problems. It has had a chance to do it and has failed utterly. The hope of the country lies in Democratic success. The one great chance the Democratic party has had during my life time is presented to it now. I believe it is able to meet it. I believe it can go as far as government can go to solve the problems which are as far from solution today as they were when the depression started. I believe that the success of the Democratic party in the coming election is essential to the upbuilding of our national prosperity and our national well-being."

And then he adds something that Coolidge in self-defense ignores:

"The Republican party must take the responsibility for its palpable and inexcusable mistakes, delays and general ineptitude which have intensified the bad times."

Mr. Mills Deals With Cures

The day Mr. Coolidge was writing his little note, which literally says nothing, Ogden Mills, Voice of the Financial Oligarchs, was saying too much that was not true in Michigan—much that was untrue and much that was absurd.

He smugly tries to cover up the blundering of the administration by putting the blame for American misery on Europe, as though Europe had passed the Grundy act that destroyed our foreign trade, and had used the bellows of utter and conscious falsehood the administration operated in the mad inflation of the market, and had anything to do with the policies that made the Insull crime possible.

He hurriedly passes over responsibilities, to deal with cures, and here he smugly ascribes all bi-party measures to Mr. Hoover and gives Hoover credit for actions taken under the lash of men like Senator Wagner and of public opinion. But he reaches the height of hypocrisy when he says:

"The problem to be solved is the intense human one—of putting men to work and enabling producers to receive a living wage for their products."

Nobody Has Been Given a Job

Mr. Mills has come to this conclusion since the Maine election. It did not occur to him when he dictated the platform of his party at the behest of Mr. Hoover. It had not occurred to the administration, which bitterly opposed every plan for putting men to work on public construction. It did not occur during the first two years, when, by active lobbying, the administration killed the Wagner employment stabilization bill. It had not occurred six months ago when Wagner and Garner proposed plans for putting men to work.

It finally had to yield under the lash of Wagner and the Democrats, supported by public opinion, and finally the Wagner—not the administration—bill was passed—providing a public construction program to put men to work, and financial aid in the feeding of the starving victims of the policies of the administration.

And then it occurred to the administration that it might ignore the act. It occurred to Mr. Mills five weeks ago, when for weeks the administration had not turned a wheel, to say that maybe in October he would decide what could be done.

Ten weeks elapsed after the bill had passed before Mills and the administration showed the slightest disposition to put men to work; and only then again under the lash of Wagner's denunciation and after Wagner had personally appealed to them to act.

Thus Al Smith in his editorial sufficiently answers Ogden Mills' impudent pretensions:

"Not a single cent has yet been expended on federal public works for which $186,000,000 was provided. In spite of the fact that the projects were definitely written into the act, and that it was agreed by all parties to the legislation that these projects were ready to go ahead, the Secretary of the Treasury (Ogden Mills) waited until after Labor Day before he decided which projects he would approve. And under this heading, also, nobody yet has actually been given a job."

But Mills was speaking in Detroit, where a vast army is jobless and thousands do not have enough to eat.

We remember former debates between Smith and Mills and the results; the result is the same this time.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

October Song

October hours are tinted
With colors bright and gay:
October gold is minted
Down every forest way.

A touch of sadness lingers
For summer and the rose;
But under autumn's fingers
A brighter blossom glows.

October is all misted
With drifting amber haze,
Her painted leaves and twisted
Fall ever through the days.

As to the year October
Comes, so it must to life,
Yet with no trappings sober,
No hint of wintry strife.

But filled with true love's splendor
And softened by time's haze,
October, wistful, tender,
Brings tranquil, briefer days!
